. . . Take that and that . . .

No, the man at left is not about to destroy something. It's Cole Weston, and he's about to bang his, uh, gavel at a buffet-auction to benefit the Forest Theater Guild. More photos are on Page 9. Sarkiz Sakizoglu (below) was more a receiver than a giver. What he is about to get is an attack from a blackbird in downtown Carmel. He is one of many people attacked by the birds here this week. Staff writer Bob Bates went over to find out what the ruckus was about. More photos and Bates' story on the fearless feathered felons are on Page 5.

Letters

Letters to the editor are welcome. While there is no limit on the number of words, brevity is encouraged. Letters are subject to editing for length and style, but without changing the intent of the letter writer. Viewpoints on all matters are acceptable following the guidelines of good taste. Anonymous letters are not acceptable, but names may be withheld upon request.

Thanks, neighbor

Dear Editor:

I propose an open letter of thanks from all residents of Carmel to the John Roscelli Corp. for their free pick-up of trash and debris this week.

At this time, when most of us are paying more and receiving less for goods and services, it is truly pleasing and surprising to be given something of value.

We are grateful to the management and employees of the John Roscelli Corp. for their contribution to the improved appearance of our homes, gardens and the village as a whole.

Thanks, mayor

Dear Editor:

The "Mayor's Report" now appearing in the Pine Cone, again is a welcome addition.

Thanks to the Pine Cone and mayor Barney Laiolo for keeping those interested in Carmel informed as to the issues coming before the City Council, results and plans the mayor has for improving government in Carmel.

Thanks from Scouts

Dear Editor:

On May 3, the annual Scout-O-Rama was held at the Del Monte Shopping Center in Monterey.

On behalf of Troop 3, I would like to express our sincere appreciation to the many Monterey Peninsula residents and businesses who helped scouting by purchasing the 816 tickets sold by the Scouts of our troop. A special thank-you to our sponsor, the Carmel Kiwanis Club, for its help and interest.

I wish that more residents of the Monterey Peninsula, including those of Carmel, would take time from their busy schedules to see what scouting is all about.

Thank you.

Helping the rich

Dear Sir:

Far from being a tax reform measure, Proposition 13 has turned out to be a relief act for the well-to-do.

The chief beneficiaries, we find, are corporations, large landowners, landlords and the federal government. Most of us saved a couple of hundred dollars a year on our property taxes, but now we see those savings about to be largely wiped out by "user fees" for essential services such as fire protection. Because of the constraints imposed by Proposition 13, these fees cannot be based on value.

Under the current proposal for all homeowners in the county fire districts to pay the same amount, those with homes of lower assessed value will find their fire protection costs vastly increased over pre-13 rates, in some cases as much as 100 percent; while those with large, high-value homes will enjoy a decrease of as much as 80 percent and more. Under the current proposal, anyone with a home assessed at $19,000 or less (one-quarter of assessed cash value) would pay more than he did before. The result? A shift in the burden of supporting government from the more affluent to the lower-income property owner. And this is apparently only the beginning for user fees.

This difficult situation provides an additional illustration why Proposition 9, which would further shift the tax burden from the upper to lower income population, should be soundly defeated on June 3.

Steelhead ladder

Dear Editor:

There was an unintentional, but I think important error in your May 1 article "Poaching for steelhead called serious problem for Carmel River."

You referred to a "fish ladder" provided for the steelhead, to climb 85 feet to a favorite spawning ground.

I suggest some research on this currently nonexistent ladder might provide material for a very interesting article. What was the old one like? What happened to it? When will the new one be finished in relation to this year's needs? How do the fingerlings make the trip down after the water no longer runs over the hazardous enough spillway? How many make it up with the trucking as the only means up?

Better hearing

Dear Editor:

For nearly half a century, May has been designated Better Hearing and Speech Month in the United Stated.

Over 20 million Americans — nearly 10 percent of all children and adults in the United States — have speech, language or hearing impairments which severely affect their abilty to communicate. And, tragically, many of these individuals are suffering needlessly since most communication disorders can be helped by trained professionals.

The American Speech-Language-Hearing Association is the national scientific and professional society of more than 30,000 speech-language pathologists and audiologists whose concerns include the causes and effects of disturbance in human communication and the identification, evaluation and rehabilitation of individuals afflicted with speech, language and hearing disorders.

Information about these handicaps is available from the American Speech-Language-Hearing Association, Box 2167, Rockville, Md 20852, and from Monterey County Speech and Hearing Association, P.O. Box 448, Pacific Grove 93950.

Reader's compliment

Dear Editor:

As a free-lance writer/journalist, I want to compliment Steve Hellman.

His two-phase article on hip joint repair in your May 8 editions of the Carmel papers was journalistic excellence.

Every journalism teacher would do well to discuss that article with their students.

I have never met Steve Hellman.

Bus riders

Dear Editor:

Many in the city of Carmel, as well as residents elsewhere on the Peninsula, depend on the buses of Monterey Peninsula Transit. We are glad MPT is around and covering many areas.

MPT deserves a well-earned "pat on the back" for its very substantial success. It achieved an astonishing increase of 72 percent in passengers from February 1979 to the same month in 1980. Unfortunately, there are some negative features that must be listed, also.

In spite of the cost per passenger remaining relatively stable from 59 cents in 1974 to 68 cents in 1980, why did MPT increase its book-of-tickets for $10? And, once again to lose 30 ride-tickets for $10?

Why did it try to eliminate two bus routes — Del Rey Oaks and La Mesa? Why did it heartlessly urge elimination of senior citizen free passes now in use in non-rush hours? It retreated from these two attempts in the face of widespread indignation. Why did it also propose a 50 cents fare (instead of the 35 cent fare)? The MPT board of directors (made up of an official of each city) approved it, starting July 1.

With such astonishing increase of riders year by year and more funds from riders and other sources, is MPT spending too freely? Letting funds go out too generously with the idea that the riding public can be made to foot the amount in various ways?

If so, beware a disenchanted public may in time ride the buses less. Over the years past, many private bus sytems in the land folded up after years of reducing service and increasing fares.

May MPT grow in ridership, in service everywhere, in consideration always of its passengers. May it use sound judgment and good will. May it shun any notion that leads to killing the goose that lays the golden egg.

Fire district fees: a sound investment

By AL EISNER

WHEN CARMEL AREA VOTERS march to the polls June 3 to elect a new member to the board of supervisors, and to make their choice in the Presidential primary, they will also be asked to vote for a fee to continue the level of fire and emergency services they have come to expect.

This will be true in the unincorporated areas around Carmel as well as the entire Carmel Valley. Residents of the city of Carmel, of course, are immune to such problems because of the bonanza the city reaps from its thriving tourist industry. Carmelites enjoy the very best police and fire protection at virtually no cost because the thousands of people who visit Carmel every year leave millions of dollars behind — and that pays the bill.

An article appearing elsewhere in this edition of the Pine Cone examines the fire district user fee issue. All of the districts would have to sharply curtail emergency services if the fees fail to win voter approval. Some would have to shift to volunteer departments instead of staffing with professionals.

It's always touchy to ask voters to cast a vote that costs money. The fees for the various districts range from $160-$200 per single family home.

Will the voters continue the taxpayers' rebellion and reject the fees? It would be most unfortunate if this happened. We have already seen the havoc wreaked on our schools by the cutbacks forced by Proposition 13. Many of the people who voted for Proposition 13 thought they would merely be cutting the fat out of government bureaucracies. In the Carmel school district and other similar districts, though, the cutbacks affected the muscle and bone structure of the system.

I believe that fire and emergency services would suffer in the same manner if the user fees are rejected. Anyone familiar with the cost and quality of private ambulance service will appreciate the protection offered by our volunteer departments.

•

ONE OF THE INTERESTING side effects of the fire district user fee election is the impetus it will undoubtedly give to the annexation movement. Residents of Carmel Woods and Hatton Fields who voted against annexation to Carmel last November will think twice if they must pay a fee for fire protection, when they could avoid the fee by voting to join the city. Because there is a new climate on the Carmel City Council, and sanity seems to have been restored, the issue will undoubtedly come again this November.

•

ONE OF THE STATEWIDE propositions on the June 3 ballot has received little publicity.

A statute now on the books protects newsmen from contempt proceedings for not revealing their sources of information. Proposition 5 would make that law part of the California Constitution so that judges would be restrained by the separation of powers from jailing newmen for contempt.

Journalists naturally have a vested interest in seeing this proposition succeed. Skeptical readers, however, may feel that the press enjoys too much freedom already, and that journalists should not get any extra protection.

Voters should consider that they, too, have a vested interest in freedom of the press. The First Amendment ot the U.S. Constitution addressed this issue squarely by stating, ". . . Congress shall make no law abridging . . . freedom of the press."

Several California newsmen have been jailed for protecting the confidentiality of their sources of information. This has had a "chilling" effect on newsgathering aggressiveness. Reporters must be shielded from the threat of contempt citations by judges. Washington Post reporters Woodward and Bernstein might have been intimidated by the threat of such action, and never uncovered the Watergate scandal if they had felt such restraint.

A free press is the guardian of our freedoms. The California press shield law must be made a part of the constitution to make certain that reporters are free to uncover and write about issues and events without the threat of a jail sentence.

•

THERE ARE ELEVEN propositions on the ballot. As a service to our readers, we plan to publish in our next edition the "Pros and Cons" on these measures as prepared by the League of Women Voters of California.

We will also publish in-depth interviews with the five candidates for supervisor in the 5th district. And yes, the newspaper will make an endorsement.

See you next week, folks!

ONE MAN, ONE VOTE, until otherwise indicated.

That, plus appointments, is all a Carmel mayor possesses in power, whether elected or chosen as before.

But, any mayor has "unwritten" power. The power of the word "mayor." As such, he is the temporal head, spokesman, symbol, father or authority figure, and in this illusionary role is where the deference lies.

Therefore the word (mayor) gives its own power, because we respond to the word as due authority, if not the person.

SO A DOLL HOUSE turned out to be the culprit in the gypsy moth caper.

Believe me, I'm taking a long look at every caterpillar I see, and though I usually leave them alone, or at least remove them to the outside again, any with blue and red spots are going to get a different treatment.

Wonder if we could develop an appetite for them in our blue jay pal. He is pretty spoiled by the peanut routine, but it's sure worth a try.

•

NEVER HAVE liked the spraying of Sevin, though know it is necessary, but we have an alert system in our neighborhood: whenever anyone sprays his trees, or the forestry boys are around doing so, we use either the telephone or the block telegraph, (the "Hey, Joe" system, which is infallible).

The reason for the alert is that we gather all the pets inside so they won't get sprayed, and wash their feet off after they do go out.

No matter what is said, there are a few too many coincidences with spraying and sick animals, especially dogs and cats that lick their feet a lot. So we're all a bit more careful and things work out okay.

•

BRAVO FOR BARNEY'S reappointments to the Planning Commission — two good men who will be invaluable in shaping our Master Plan. Now we need to add more like them.

Stephenson has an incredible ability to work out realistic compromises, when necessary. Both men are feisty, intelligent and speak out about what they believe. This does tweak a few noses at times, but they will work toward solutions — and that's one of their main strengths. Another is their expertise. And that's not just guessing.

So Barney may not be a broom that sweeps everything out — and that is probably the best thing that could happen.

TOOK OFF EARLY one a.m. — the Missus waving a cheerful goodbye.

She was just busting to get started on all her projects and was tickled when I decided to take off. Men are "only underfoot" during spring cleaning, closet straightening and new curtain time, she says.

Flew down to Guaymus, Mexico, rented a car and headed for Bahia San Carlos. Hadn't been there for 20 years, and wanted two things: to walk that 30-mile-long, solid-white sand beach, and to catch a marlin.

Now I've fished all kinds of waters, with all kinds of gear, salt and fresh, but just never got around to a bill fish for some reason, and thought it was time to do so before I was too old to land one.

Funny thing. I never have really cared whether I caught anything or not (though I get as excited as a 6-year-old when I do), I just like the act of fishing. It's about the most peaceful time of all.

Anyhow, back to Bahia San Carlos. It's on the east side of the Gulf of California, by Baja, on the Mexican mainland, and it's the edge of that huge desert where the nomadic Indians wandered for thousands of years with their cattle.

The gila monsters, lizards, tarantulas, etc., haven't changed, though other things have, and the wild burros are still in evidence. But I was there for other reasons.

Juan had the boat — and the gear — and off we went, into the Gulf, with the rising sun at our backs, making diamonds of all the wavetops. We headed straight out, then down, keeping lookout for any straggler whales that hadn't left yet on their journey north past Carmel. Had a great day, got some small stuff, but not the quested marlin, and came back in about 4 p.m. Told Juan we'd try again day after, but tomorrow would be the beach.

And it was. Almost the beach to end all beaches, white and endless. I walked for miles, picking up shells by the hundreds, bi-valve, cone, conch; trying to be realistic about how many I could continue to carry.

Headed back after my pack lunch, covering new ground with the receded tide, and got back to home base just before sunset. Sat down, watched the sunset, and as I'd found the perfect conch, waited for the right moment. Just as the last rim of the sun disappeared below the horison, I blew a blast on the conch shell in tribute to a great day, and felt that I was doing what probably had been done for thousands of years before me.

•

THURSDAY, JUAN and I went off again, and this time we spotted our quarry just a few hours out. The lines were run and Juan kept the boat turned right, while I sat braced in the chair, waiting. Then, there it was — that tremble through the pole as he took the bait. Funny, you wait for it, anticipating, and when it happens you can't belive it and sit frozen.

Then things start happening so fast that everything's a blur — the shouts, the moves, even the mind blurs it all, until he breaks through the surface of the water and time stops, and the image of that fish is frozen on your eyes and in your mind forever.

"He walks," Juan shouted, and that huge fish tail-walked across the waves, twisting and turning before diving below again. Incredible.

I pulled and reeled, pulled and reeled, and my arms were tense with strain and pain, but I hung on, and slowly he got closer to the boat. The mate got the grappling hook ready and leaned over the side, then picked up a club and lifted it high as the marlin was brought to the side of the boat.

"No!" I yelled, and grabbed his arm as he started down with the club. I had realized what he was doing.

"Senor, we have to kill him to bring on board," he said.

"Let him go," I said. "I don't want to take him." He shook his head in disbelief, but cut the hook and let the marlin slip back into the water.

The fish looked at me, resting for a moment by the boat, then tossed his bill, flipped his tail, his blue and white only a shadow below the surface, and was gone.

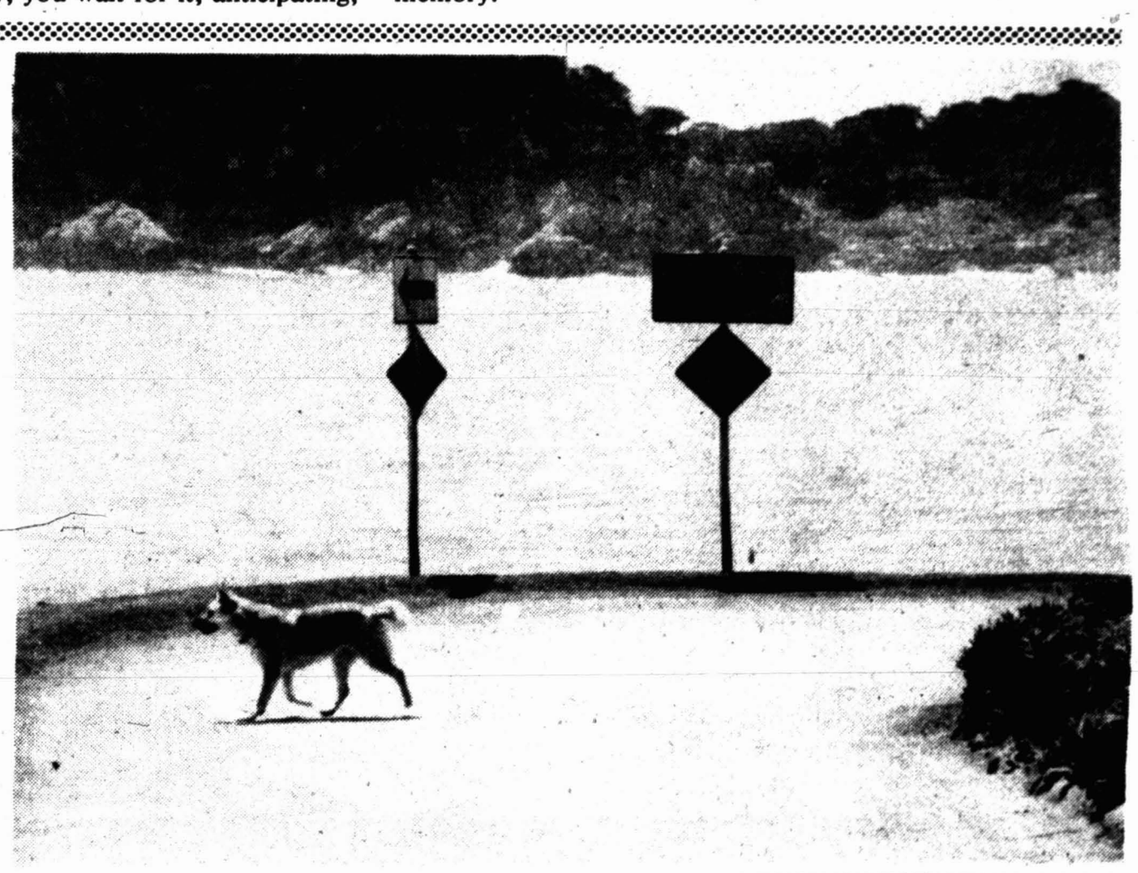

When I got home a few days later, the closets were so straight I couldn't find anything. The new curtains made me jump with unfamiliarity when I walked into the bedroom, and the welcome of my family was warm throughout the house.

The shells for necklaces were distributed, the shells for decorating were labeled in boxes and the conch of the setting sun found its place on my desk. Everything was in order.

And, periodically, for the rest of my life, I shall see that stop-motion image of the blue marlin, rising from the sea, water streaming from his sides, droplets gleaming in the sun, strong and beautiful.

He will live his own years now. And mine as well, in my memory.

Which way, Fido?

This dog doesn't seem bothered by the signs, which seem to be telling it to go both ways at once. The signs are at the turn at Carmel Point on Scenic Drive near Stewart's Cove.

Boys State

Jim Fellows, son of Dave and Greta Fellows of Carmel, will represent Carmel High School at Boys State this summer in Sacramento.

Boys State educates young leaders in the duties, rights, and responsibilities of American citizenship.

Fellows will participate in a program of practical American government.

A letter from Gwen

Dear Ben:
From "The other side of the Grapestake Fence."

HOLY TOLEDO!

Less than three months ago a new sidewalk was poured at the corner of Sixth and Dolores (in front of the Village Corner). Two weeks ago a portion of that brand new sidewalk was jackhammered into oblivion and another sidewalk (this time for the handicapped) was poured. This kind of inefficiency is becoming par for the course in the Public Works Department — shameful!

•

Remember all the hullabaloo when Gunnar asked for an office to be built so that he might conduct city business somewhere other than his home?

Such was the carrying on by all, one would have thought he had suggested motherhood be outlawed. Be that as it may, Barney became mayor and Barney moved lock, stock and barrel into the finance director's office. Would it be naive of me to ask why that same privilege was not offered to Gunnar? Speak up Mr. City Administrator.

CHEWING GUM, just for fun, is quite all right with me. But please, Frank, not during council meetings.

"WE'VE GOT TROUBLE folks, right here in River City."

Change River City to Carmel and you've got it. Do you realize if the Bank of Carmel receives its charter, it will then be built on the corner of San Carlos and Seventh and the Mobile station will bite the dust? The demise of the last service station south of Ocean! That leaves us with three stations to serve the residents and hordes of tourists.

THE CLOCK is running out.

It is time for the City Fathers (and Mothers) to do something.

Unless they do, we indeed have trouble right here in Carmel

From Gwen

The Mayor's report:

I WILL FIRST COMPLIMENT the Pine Cone for the fine coverage of council proceedings which appeared in the May 15 issue.

I'm happy to see that its description of actions taken was accurate and thorough.

Al Eisner's editorial suggests I'm "feeling my oats." This verifies my thought of Al as a perceptive individual. However, there are some statements in his editorial which need clarification:

1. Barney does not assume he "is the boss."
2. Barney's function is to get the facts and present them to the council for its consideration and deliberation.
3. Barney's plan is based on a practical and efficient use of land and resources to serve the city and its residents well.
4. Barney does not intend to reverse any of the statements that were made during his campaign.
5. Barney is not thinking of a countdown of 24 months as a liability, but rather as a period of time during which constructive accomplishments will occur.
6. Come hell or high water I'll do my best to nurture a cooperative atmosphere in the council, and hopefully the hours spent in research and study will prove that common sense still pays off.

I would not normally take time to respond to an editorial, but felt the need to express my feelings to the public regarding the items covered.

To get to the serious business of what I've been doing for the last week . . . I wish to state that I've spent many hours with various people regarding the loss of a service station at San Carlos and Seventh and, especially, the loss of this gasoline allocation to our community. I've had several more meetings dealing with low-cost housing and parking and, hopefully, a plan will be formulated soon for council consideration in this area.

In closing, I wish to thank the city for giving me an opportunity to attend the League of California Cities' conference for new mayors and council members in Santa Clara, May 8-10. It was most rewarding and informational.

Still smiling with my oatmeal.

Mayor Barney

P.S. Who is on Santa Claus' "Good Girls and Boys" list to receive $50 for being a resident of Carmel, as suggested by Al? (I think there is a better use for keeping this money in Carmel.)

The Village:

Herrick gets library post

DR. FRANCIS H. HERRICK was sworn in as a trustee of Harrison Memorial Library by City Clerk Patricia Dantes during the May 15 library board meeting.

He fills the vacancy created by Frank Lloyd, who was elected to the City Council April 8.

Lloyd's seat on the board would have expired in June.

Herrick will complete that term and serve an additional three years, according to Jo Childers, board secretary and director of Harrison Memorial Library.

Herrick was appointed to the position by Mayor Barney Laiolo May 12.

The library board also recommended the appointment of Mrs. Lucette Cannon to the board. The recommendation will be made to the mayor during the next meeting of the City Council, June 2.

Mrs. Cannon would serve a three-year term to fill a seat being vacated by Mrs. Patricia Faul.

•

TREASURER WALTER GOREY said library expenditures for April were $26,583, or 8.1 percent of the budget for 1979-80.

The library has spent $266,920 of its $325,170 budget for the fiscal year which ends in June, he added.

"We are slightly under budget at this time," he said. A tentative budget proposed for 1980-81 of $349,688 was approved.

The budget is eight percent more than the 1979-80 budget of $322,670.

The tentative budget approved for 1980-81 will be given to board president Steve Crouch for consideration before final approval.

•

A PROPOSED $12,000 security system for the library was discussed, although Crouch said the system has not been authorized.

"We are losing books," Crouch said. "We won't know how many this year until inventory is taken."

Also of concern to the library is the disappearance of pages of reference books and volumes of artwork.

To discourage theft of reference book pages, Herrick suggested the library offer use of the library copying machine free.

"We might authorize the staff to make the copies for legitimate research projects by school children," he said. Crouch asked Ms. Childers to develop a plan.

Crouch said the floor in the reference room is sagging and has no support. The situation is so bad, he said, that if someone adds five more sheets of paper to a filing cabinet, the whole floor might fall through.

"What is underneath is kids," board member Pat Sippel said.

Couch asked Herrick to investigate having an engineering firm inspect the floor to see if it is safe.

"It appears that I am starting from the ground up," Herrick said.

•

THE LIBRARIAN said she had written a letter of protest to the president of Columbia Pictures in Los Angeles about damage to flowers and shrubbery on library property by film crew members and onlookers during the filming of a Columbia picture in Carmel in April.

"I got a call from him personally," Ms. Childers said, "and received two letters from his administrative assistant asking what they can do.

"I believe they are really sincere," she added.

City Councilman Lloyd spoke about tenure.

"When I came on the library board, it was set up to be non-political. Trustees are vulnerable to re-appointment anyway," he said.

"Once appointed, the individual board member is beyond the reach of the City Council. The mayor should not interfere with the workings of the library board."

Ms. Childers said, "The board doesn't feel we need to get involved in that.

"The City Council can do that on its own accord.

"The library board is governed by state law, not the City Council," she said.

Mayor Laiolo told the Pine Cone he had not said anything about limiting terms for library board members to anyone.

Village Theatre will try again to convert its building to shops and apartments

ON THE MAY 28 agenda for the Carmel Planning Commission and Board of Adjustments will be the resubmittal of plans to convert the Village Theatre on Dolores, between Seventh and Eighth, to three floor-level shops and six upper-story apartments.

It will be the third time the plans have been submitted to the Planning Commission in recent months for design and review consideration.

The Design and Review Committee, which has studied the plans, recommends approval.

The plan was originally submitted to the Planning Commission Feb. 20. It was continued, pending more information.

The commission gave the owners 120 days to return the plan for consideration.

When the plan was resubmitted April 16, it was continued another 30 days to allow commissioners to study it.

•

ALSO ON THE AGENDA will be a design review of a new commercial building on the west side of Casanova between Eighth and Ninth. It was submitted by Thomas Sweeney.

The building proposed is a two-story apartment and commercial one with four upper-story apartments (4,000 square feet total) and a 3,000-square-foot lower level for commerical use yet to be indicated.

A variance application for seven in-lieu parking spaces has also been filed for the location.

The project has been recommended for approval by the Design and Review committee.

An application to alter an existing building, the former Arco service station at San Carlos and Seventh, into a retail store (Peaches and Cream) is recommended for approval as well, with conditions.

Also on the agenda are applications for an additional awning at Mediterannean Market, Ocean and Mission; an application for a brick fence at a single residence building site at Casanova between Eighth and Ninth, and a fence and masonry wall exceeding six feet in height in a front yard setback on San Antonio between 10th and 11th.

The application was made by Comstock Associates. The committee has recommended approval of the design for masonry walls only.

The May 28 meeting is at 4 p.m. in City Hall.

More planning board hearings due

TEN PUBLIC HEARINGS are scheduled at a meeting of the Carmel Planning Commission and Board of Adjustments at 4 p.m., Wednesday, May 28, in City Hall.

Included are: a permit for Norman McBride Jr. to establish a building site on land on Second Street, between Casanova and Palou, with a slope of 30 percent or more, and to establish maximum heights of the proposed buildings. The application is continued from the March 19 agenda.

McBride also wants a public hearing on an application to allow additional plumbing fixtures in a detached studio workshop in a single-family building at the same location.

Consideration of a use permit application to retain plumbing fixtures to create a darkroom in a single-family home at Santa Rita and Third Street will also appear on the agenda. The application was filed by Viola Wise.

A hearing to consider an application to allow change of ownership in a restaurant, Judy's Pantry on Lincoln, between Ocean and Seventh, will also be held. Paul Steenwyk made the application.

A variance is being asked by Walter Unger to allow additional coverage on a residential building site on San Carlos between First and Second.

A variance application by Melvin Kline seeks additional height above the 30-foot maximum in the R-4 district at Junipero between Fourth and Fifth.

Kline also wants a variance to allow eight in-lieu parking spaces in the C-1-C and C-1-S zoning districts at Mission between Fifth and Sixth.

Kline wants a reduction of one parking space at the same locations.

Appplication for a variance to establish a parking lot at the front setback for a home on Carmelo, between 12th and 13th streets, is being made by Ernest Arbuckle.

Seven in-lieu parking spaces are also being asked by Thomas Sweeney in the C-1-S district on Dolores, between Seventh and Eighth.

CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA ORDINANCE NO. 80-6

AN ORDINANCE CHANGING THE TIME OF BEGINNING OF REGULAR MEETINGS OF THE CITY COUNCIL

THE COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA DOES ORDAIN as follows:

Section 1. Part II, Division 2, Section 200 of the Municipal Code is amended to read in its entirety as follows:

§ 200. COUNCIL MEETINGS — REGULAR. The City Council of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea shall hold regular meetings as follows:

7:30 p.m. on the 1st and 2nd Mondays of each month.

4:00 p.m. on the 2nd Monday of each month, for the purpose of permitting the City Council to consider on the site those items it determines should be viewed by the Council prior to Council action.

Said meetings shall be held in the Council Chambers in City Hall, Monte Verde Street south of Ocean Avenue, in said City, but may thereafter adjourn to such other locations as the conduct of city business may require.

Section 2. Effective Date: This Ordinance shall become effective thirty (30) days after its final passage and adoption.

PASSED AND ADOPTED BY THE CITY COUNCIL OF CARMEL-BY-THE SEA THIS 12th day of May, 1980, by the following roll call vote:

AYES: COUNCILMEMBERS: ARNOLD, BROWN, BRUNN, LLOYD, LAIOLO

NOES: COUNCILMEMBERS: None

ABSENT: COUNCILMEMBERS: None

Signed:

Council meetings

AN ORDINANCE changing the regular meeting time of the Carmel City Council to 7:30 p.m. was passed May 12.

It will become effective July 7.

Council meetings have traditionally begun at 8 p.m.

The council will also meet at 4 p.m. the second Monday of each month to look at buildings and land before acting on them.

The ordinance was proposed by Mayor Barney Laiolo shortly after he took office April 15.

No new evidence found of gypsy moths in Carmel

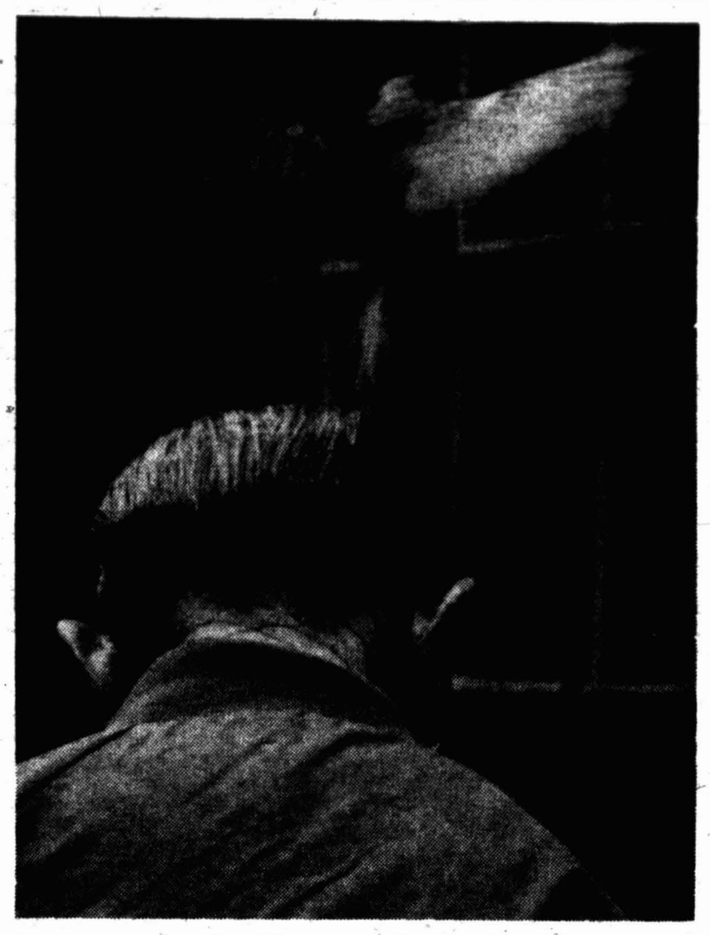

NO NEW EVIDENCE OF gypsy moths has been detected in Carmel since city and county workers sprayed an area infested with them near Torres and Second Streets May 8.

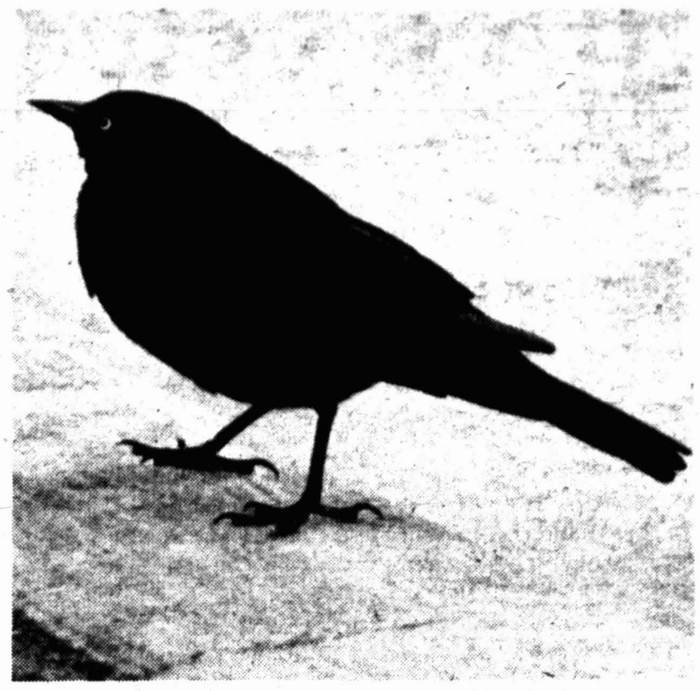

City Forester Greg D'Ambrosio said the county Department of Agriculture and his department have been monitoring an area from Junipero to Monterey streets, between Pico and Third, for evidence of the spread of the moth, which was in its larval stage when found here.

The moths came to Carmel in furniture delivered to a home on Torres and Second streets May 5.

Traps will be set for mature male moths, if any, that may have survived spraying with the chemical Sevin May 8.

The traps use a female sexual attractant to capture the male moths. Traps will be set to at least a mile from the site of the spraying.

Another passerby falls victim to a Brewer's blackbird (left). A winged warrior stands guard (above).

Birds, 1; pedestrians, 0

By BOB BATES

WATCH OUT FOR THE BIRDS . . .

A pair of Carmel blackbirds, that is.

They have been dive-bombing pedestrians on San Carlos south of Ocean. They're protecting their eggs in a nest in a bush next to the sidewalk.

It all started like this.

Carmel Animal Control Officer Valorie Baumgart got a complaint from a worker in a shop in the Paseo San Carlos shopping mall.

"I've been attacked by birds," the young man complained.

Visions of Hitchcock's chiller, The Birds flitted across Ms. Baumgart's mind.

"I'll be right over," she responded, "with a net."

Ms. Baumgart quickly sized up the situation.

A pair of Brewer's blackbirds had a nest in front of Kocek Jewelers. It had four to eight spotted eggs.

Brewer's blackbirds often nest on the ground. This pair, however, had picked a bush on a busy sidewalk.

Parental instincts prompted the birds to dive-bomb unsuspecting passersby who came too close to the nest.

Although no injuries had been reported, the chirping assaulters presented a dilemma for Ms. Baumgart.

Should she try to put the nest elsewhere?

Should she net the beaked Banzais and take the eggs to the Monterey County Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals for hatching and raising?

A third alternative — the one Ms. Baumgart chose — was to leave the birds alone and hope the eggs will hatch successfully in about six weeks.

•

REACTION FROM SHOP OWNERS at Paseo San Carlos was mixed initially, Ms. Baumgart said. Some worried the birds would frighten customers away; others were sympathetic to the Brewers and urged her to leave them in peace to raise their family.

The owner of the shop whose employee made the complaint to Ms. Baumgart — a tiny woman with kind eyes — said, "I'll kill that kid" for finking on the birds.

Another man, brother of a shop keeper in the mall, said he and his brother were on the birds' side.

Ms. Baumgart said public opinion leaned toward allowing the birds to stay.

"Only time will tell," she said, "whether Carmel is for the birds."

But one incident may shade her feelings.

As a news photographer tried to capture her peering into the nest, the mother-to-be, or was it the father-to-be, swooped at Ms. Baumgart's head while its mate kept a vigil on the nest nearby.

And as the frantic cries of the attacking blackbird reached other blackbirds in the area, they began to amass on a nearby roof . . . one . . . by . . . one . . . by . . .

WHO'S NEWS

. . .on the Carmel business scene

By FLORENCE MASON

THE ZOO OF CARMEL
Mel and Lor Wachter

It started out to be a "zoo" — animal artifacts, prints and sculptures — but when more space became available, Mel and Lor Wachter decided to include apparel, designer clothes and home accessories.

This is in line with Wachter's experience. He has been a designer 20 years. His wife's interests have been antiques (in Santa Barbara) and commercial investments. She is a licensed real estate broker and a member of the Carmel Board of Realtors.

The store is on the southeast corner of Ocean and Monte Verde. The Wachters, who lived in Southern California, had planned to retire to the Carmel area eventually; they just decided not to wait. According to Wachter, they seized an opportunity to open "a unique shop in Carmel, one that would provide top quality merchandise at reasonable prices." Clothes by top designers for women, such as Dabi, San Carlo of Italy and Robert Haik, are included. And of course, the animals.

Wachter went to schools in Pennsylvania. Mrs. Wachter, who graduated from USC, had been coming to Carmel off and on since she was 2. They live in Carmel Highlands. They have three grown children and a grandchild.

JUDY'S PANTRY
Paul and Judy Steenwyk

It worked so well in Sonora that Paul and Judy Steenwyk decided to do it here.

That is, open a restaurant featuring salads, soups, sandwiches and their own pies made from scratch.

Judy's Pantry opened May 5 on Lincoln between Ocean and Seventh. It is open for breakfast and lunch from 7:30 a.m.-4 p.m., seven days a week.

For a while, Steenwyk will commute between Carmel and Sonora to oversee his first restaurant. However, the couple expects to sell the Sonora business and complete their move to Carmel within a year.

Mrs. Steenwyk is the cook; her husband handles the business end. There is also a manager — Jeff Gadzia — who left Sonora and is a permanent resident of Carmel.

The third member of the family involved in the excitement of opening a restaurant is 10-year-old Eric, who was seen sweeping the sidewalk in front of Judy's Pantry the day before it opened. Bringing homework along, he took a week off from school to be with his parents. Until the family settles here, he'll be commuting to Carmel with his father on weekends.

DEE DEE'S
Dee Dee Garcia

The owner of this beauty salon at San Carlos and Seventh has seen women's hair styles go from soft and curly to long and straight and now back again.

Dee Dee Garcia says the softer, more feminine look has returned; curls are "in."

Dee Dee's offers manicures and pedicures as well as general hair care. Its owner, who was born in Mexico, settled in Texas at age 5. She has been in California 20 years, graduating from North Salinas High School. She is single and lives in Monterey.

The shop suggests one of its owner's hobbies, as there are potted plants in profusion. "Anything with butterflies," also delights her.

Miss Garcia has been in business 15 years. She had a shop in Salinas, then looked to Carmel as a livelier business scene because of tourist activity.

Sharing the space with her is Lisa Campbell. She rents a station and is also an independent businesswoman.

Young musicians offer breath of fresh air

By SCOTT MacCLELLAND

NOTES: THE ANNUAL MONTEREY COUNTY SYMPHONY POPS CONCERT will be played at the Naval Postgraduate School in Monterey on Sunday, June 8, at 2 p.m., on the lawn in front of Herrmann Hall.

There will be no admission charge.

•

SANTA CRUZ County Symphony music director George Barati has resigned, and the symphony directors are seeking a replacement in time for the 1980-81 season.

•

IN REVIEWING the several concert seasons planned for Carmel in the 1980-81 season, we made only offhand reference to the Carmel Festival of Dance, a highly popular venture developed by Richard Tyler of Sunset Center. Season tickets are now being offered for four coming attractions.

Opening the series will be the Ohio Ballet on Oct. 21. On Jan. 31, 1981, will be the Japanese duo, Eiko and Koma. On March 11, Gus Giordano Jazz Dance Chicago will appear. The celebrated Joffrey II Dancers will conclude the season March 23.

Season ticket prices are $28 and $24. Season ticket renewals are being honored. Send orders to Sunset Center, Box 5066, Carmel 93921.

•

ANYONE WHO HAS ATTENDED the annual competitions sponsored by the Chamber Music Society and the Carmel Music Society knows how revealing and exciting these events are.

After a season of "pros," occasionally falling below expectations, the young and unseasoned musicians are never less than a breath of fresh air, and are often much more.

The chiefs of the Carmel Music Society recognize the significance of this phenomenon by extending a commitment to each year's winner to appear as part of the society's subscription season. Hence, this Friday's recital by Ruth Golden (nee Goldstein).

But further behind the scenes, and with greater reflection of this "cultural" community's musical achievements, are the successes of our music teachers. Their students often possess formidable talent, and some of them may ultimately rise to the limelight levels of the crazy business of making musical art.

The Monterey County branch of the Music Teachers' Association of California, under the current and assertive leadership of Lyn Bronson, presented an honor recital of its member teachers' best pupils last Sunday at Monterey Peninsula College.

While it would be premature to pick at the details of these students' accomplishments, the recital proved both nourishing to our future expectations and amply laden with that ethereal value we call talent.

Most impressive for technique and imagination were Cynthia Fox, 20, a student of Lyn Bronson; Christy Blackwell, 19, whose teacher is Marie Oliver; and Miki Nakata, 18, who studies with Dorothy Heer.

Darryl Mar, 18, a student of Wade Parks, was virtuosic, and Katie Clare Mazzeo student Logan Frederich, 16, was skilled in voice balancing and dynamics. At age 13, Frances Martin, a Lyn Bronson student, accomplished some remarkably mature Beethoven.

There were other young musicians who performed well but revealed less.

This and similar programs are rarely visited by those not personally involved, but the energy spent and the time involved are as serious to the participants as love, and that is the word Leopold Stokowski cited as the closest literary equivalent to music.

Scott MacClelland is classical music director of KWAV-FM 96.9

REMEMBER WHEN?

50 years ago

From the "Carmel Pine Cone," May 23, 1930

ADVISORY BOARD TO HOLD MEETING

At the request of the City Council, the Municipal Advisory Board is to discuss the broad question of Carmel's future. What should the town be like in years to come? What will it be like? How can a beautiful village be insured for the future?

At the same time the board will take up a specific task referred to it by the council. Should a small industrial zone be established in or near Carmel? If so, where should it be located?

Whatever the advisory board may recommend, its opinion can only be transferred on to the City Council for final action.

WE CHALLENGE THE WORLD

Carmel, with a population of 2,248 — census of 1930 — has 2,378 library cards out, which needs some explaining.

The fact is, our public library makes no distinction between dwellers in Carmel proper and the residents of the suburbs. Although it might properly charge a fee or exactment of the dwellers without the city's bounds for the privilege of borrowing books, it has not seen fit to do so. Those who pay a library tax and those who do not are upon the same free list. Which shows a generous spirit, and the desire to educate whomever, especially with mystery stories.

NURSERY SCHOOL GETS BAY; BOARD MAY BUY LAND

The school board at its meeting last night took formal action to discontinue regular classes at Bay School at the end of this term, and to turn Bay over to the Parent-Nursery School. Everyone was resigned to the sad but necessary expedient, since it appears to be the only way of keeping the little country school house at San Jose Creek in use. Not more than five or six children could be counted on to attend Bay next fall, and these can be transported more economically to River School.

The Parent-Nursery School, with an enrollment of 30, needs more room and is eager to move from its quarters in the basement of the Carmel Youth Center. The school board agreed to pay for utilities at Bay and to put up $450 worth of fence.

SCHOOL BOARD CALLS FOR BIDS ON RIVER UNIT; BUYS FURNITURE

The school board, meeting last night, called for bids for construction of the new classrooms at River School.

The bid of $3,705.72 of the Brunswick Company was accepted by the board after a lengthy debate. There were four other bidders, several of whom offered lower bids than Brunswick Company, but the board decided in favor of the latter because they thought their furniture was more attractive, more durable, and, according to elementary principal Mrs. Marjorie McCausland, more appropriate to the needs of River School. She has tried out at the school samples from each of the companies. The budget allowance for furnishing the new rooms at River is $4,000.

CITY EMPLOYEES UNITE; SEEK COUNCIL RECOGNITION

The newly reorganized Carmel City Employees Association will ask for formal recognition from the Carmel City Council at the next council meeting on Wednesday.

The Carmel City Employees Association (CCEA) represents 57 paying members from seven city departments. One member from each department is designated by election to serve on the board of directors. Current chairman of CCEA is Robert Griggs, assistant building inspector.

THIRD-GRADERS PLANT 52 TREES, PLAN MORE

The third-graders at River School have planted 52 trees so far this year and hope to plant a redwood grove and two weeping willows before the year is over.

The children have been studying conservation all year, but began intensive study about three weeks ago. Thus far, they have seen films on pollution, littering and the preservation of wildlife, and heard a talk by Mr. and Mrs. Colton of the Canadian and American Wolf Defenders about the shooting of wolves and other animals from airplanes and helicopters.

In addition, the children have been learning about organic gardening methods and visited an organic farm in Carmel Valley, where no pesticides or chemical fertilizers are used.

Forest Theater raises money

Foggy skies didn't dampen the spirits of 35 board members and friends of Carmel's Forest Theater who enjoyed a buffet and auction at the theater Sunday afternoon, May 18. The party was held to raise money for the Forest Theater Guild, which will stage Hamlet and Rosenkranz and Gildenstern Are Dead at the outdoor theater this summer. More than $350 was raised. Gunnar Norberg and Philip A. Oberg (top left) chat during the party. Norberg has appeared in past Forest Theater productions. Laurie Cano (top right) fills her plate. Mrs. R.W. Scheffler serves Jean Brenner (middle right). Sharing conversation (middle left, from left) are John Sullivan; Peter De Bono, who will direct Hamlet for the Forest Theater this summer; Betty Fowlsten, veteran local actress; and Henry Littlefield, headmaster at York School, Monterey. An overview of the party is shown in bottom photo.

Results of our poll: Proposition 9 opposed

By STEVE HELLMAN

A POLL OF CARMEL AREA residents last week showed overwhelming opposition to Proposition 9, the measure sponsored by Howard Jarvis to cut state income tax in half.

Residents were questioned by this newspaper in front of post offices in Carmel and Carmel Valley Village, and only three of 18 persons supported the measure.

Although many of the residents polled had voted for Jarvis' Proposition 13 in 1978 to cut property tax, they said another tax cut was not needed now. They expressed concern that Proposition 9 could cripple public schools and government services. Some even questioned whether tax cuts could alleviate public dissatisfaction with government.

"That's the one where they want to cut the school money? I'm voting 'no,' " said Mrs. Rose-eve Lewis, a Carmel housewife. A resident of Carmel 31 years, she said she had also voted against Proposition 13.

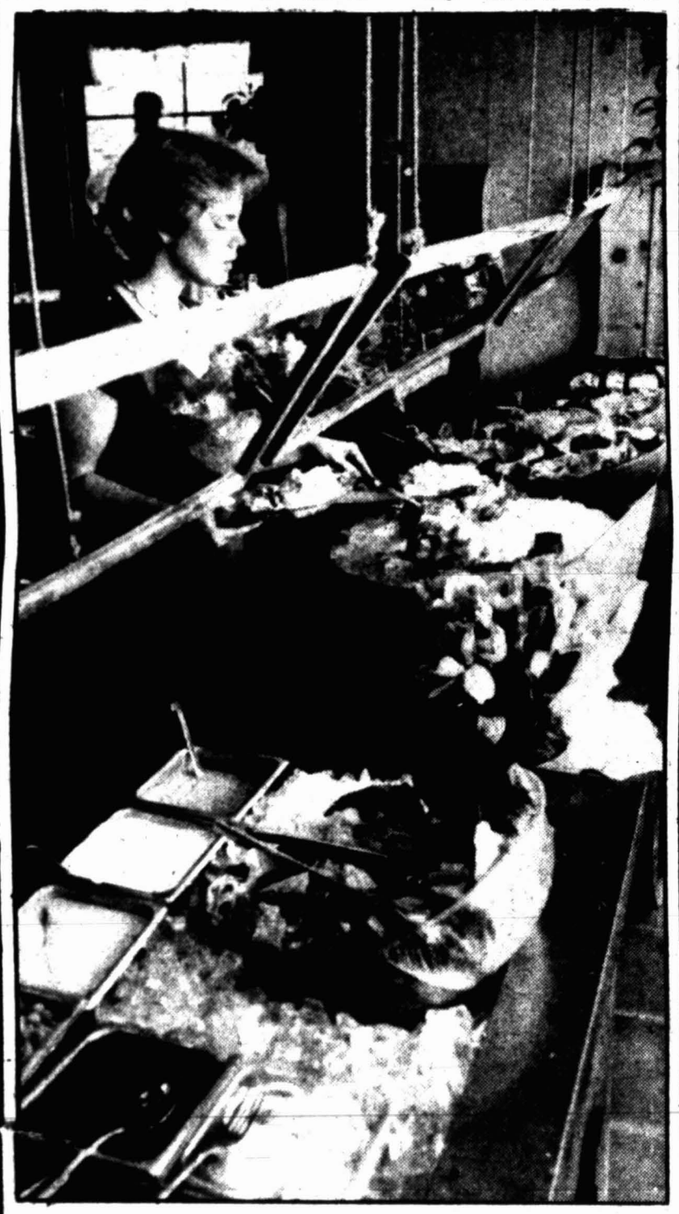

Elgin Williams, 72, a Democrat, said he would vote for it. A resident of Carmel since 1964, he said, "I'll vote anything for taxes. I voted for Proposition 13. They said it would cut our schools, but it didn't."

Living on a $600 monthly retirement pension, Williams said he did not know how much the tax cut would save him. He insisted, however, his vote is a message to legislators and bureaucrats. "They're cutting the peons and keeping all the top dogs. They got to cut at the top," he said.

oppose Proposition 9. "It's not going to cut fat; they'll just add other taxes or raise sales tax," she said. "We're really not getting anywhere with cutting government waste through taxes."

Walter Unger, 68, said he was concerned that fire and police services might be cut. He said he would probably vote against Proposition 9 if it is shown to affect services. Unger said he had voted for Proposition 13.

Barry Mangan, a 31-year-old Carmel lawyer, was emphatic: "No, the little person isn't going to save that much. I voted 'no' on Proposition 13; this one is even worse."

Most of the impact of Proposition 13, Mangan said, was felt by people on fixed incomes. He said people with higher income would benefit from Proposition 9.

"That's the Jarvis measure? I'll probably vote 'no,' " said Jean Warriner of Scenic Point.

Miss Warriner, a teacher at the Naval Postgraduate School in Monterey, said, "They want to jump in quick with more cuts, it's not a good idea. They've done enough already. It's time to level off."

Alternatives better than cutting state income tax are available, Robert Huntley of Hatton Fields said.

A stock broker, Huntley said he voted for Proposition 13, but said Proposition 9 was "too catch-all." He added, "It would be better if the state simply exempted the first $20,000 of income from taxation."

Selden Prentice, a 24-year-old student, said she would vote against it because she had heard it will force cuts in public schools.

•

FRAN HUGHES, a Carmel Valley real estate broker, said he would vote against it. Hughes, 38, said he had also voted against Proposition 13. "A basic premise of life is that there's no free lunch. We need taxes to support government," he said.

"Proposition 13 didn't cut into services," said Charles Whiston of Carmel Valley, so he planned to vote for Proposition 9.

Whiston, a retired college professor, said, "We need to cut down on legislative spending; there's no limit to it."

"I don't see why we need another one (tax cut)," said Mrs. Kay Darland, a Carmel Valley housewife. "It (Proposition 9) is just an unnecessary addition to what we're already doing (with Proposition 13)."

Paul Rink, a Carmel Valley author, said he had supported Proposition 13, but opposed Proposition 9. "It's too much," he said.

Mrs. Junis Olson of Carmel Valley, a housewife, said she opposed both tax cuts. "I think there may be other ways to solve our problems," she said.

Mrs. Mary Sherman said she supports Proposition 9 as "the only way I can get a message to government that they have to squeeze the fat at the top."

She hoped her 'yes' vote would also "stop public employees from encouraging people to go on welfare."

"I'm leaning towards a 'no,' " said Mrs. Diane Scholl, a Carmel Valley housewife and mother. She said she has educator friends who are concerned a tax cut would hurt public schools. "I voted against Proposition 13 for the same reason," Mrs. Scholl said.

"I didn't vote for Proposition 13; and I'm not voting for this one," said Mrs. Susan Freitas of Carmel Valley.

A personnel specialist, she said, "I don't think penalizing public services and schools is the answer. We need to get the public involved to monitor our government. We elect our representatives; we get what we deserve."

One woman who refused to be identified said she was "absolutely, positively against it. I don't like Mr. Jarvis; I don't like what he's doing."

Adams to receive Medal of Freedom

Ansel Adams of Carmel Highlands, chairman of trustees of The Friends of Photography, has been named as one of 14 recipients of the 1980 Presidential Medal of Freedom.

The award, the nation's highest civilian honor, will be presented by President Carter during ceremonies in Washington, D.C., June 9.

The medal was initiated in 1945 to give recognition to Americans who have made important contributions to world peace, to the security or national interest of the United States, or to cultural or other significant public and private endeavors.

In addition to Adams, awards will be presented to Lucia Chase, Archbishop Iakovos, Clarence Mitchell Jr., Roger Tory Peterson, Admiral Hyman Rickover, Beverly Sills, Robert Penn Warren, Eudora Welty and Tennessee Williams. Posthumous awards will be made to Rachel Carson, Hubert Humphrey, Lyndon Baines Johnson and John Wayne.

Fire protection, ambulances will be cut if voters reject fire district fees June 3

By STEVE HELLMAN

FIRE PROTECTION, emergency medical aid and ambulance services will be drastically curtailed in Carmel Valley and the unincorporated Carmel area if voters do not approve fire district fees June 3.

Revenue losses after Proposition 13 have cut fire districts' money.

Fire district officials warn that unless user fees are approved, services will be halved, ambulance response will be slower and fire protection ratings will drop.

In some cases, fire districts could be forced to consolidate, or whole districts with crew and equipment could be eliminated.

Fire insurance premiums would rise, costing homeowners more than the proposed fees in some districts.

Fire district officials also caution that if Proposition 9 passes (cutting state income tax in half), state money for fire districts will be wiped out.

If Proposition 9 is defeated, state bailout money is not guaranteed for fire districts.

Monterey County has a new policy that it will not distribute state money to special districts that fail to adopt user fees June 3.

•

A COMMITTEE of 12 fire chiefs from throughout the county has developed a formula for user fees. It is based on "units of benefit" assigned different kinds of property: 10 units per vacant lot; 20 units per residential lot, and 40 units or more per commercial or industrial lots.

By adding up its parcels of land, each fire district arrives at a total level of service, or benefit, to property owners.

The total "units of benefit" are divided into the district's projected budget deficit to determine a rate for the fees. The rate for Mid-Carmel Valley Fire District, for example, came to $9.62 per unit of benefit. The rate is based on the maximum the district can charge over the next three years.

'The issue before you people today is whether you want to lower services drastically, or maintain the level that you established before Proposition 13.'

The fees are not based on property value. Fee for a single-family home on less than 11 acres is charged uniformly, regardless of the size of the home or its distance from the fire station.

Approval from two-thirds of the voters in each district will be required to adopt the fees.

•

THE FOLLOWING ANNUAL FEES are proposed for single-family homes: Carmel Valley Fire District, $139; Mid-Carmel Valley fire district, $190; County Service Area (CSA) 43, serving the mouth of the Valley, including Hatton Fields and Carmel Woods, $160; CSA 39 (Aguajito area), $90; CSA 42 (Pebble Beach), $184, and Carmel Highlands, $199.

Directors of the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association voted at their May 7 meeting to recommend approval of fees in the Carmel Valley and Mid-Carmel Valley fire districts and CSA 43.

The directors heard detailed reports from several fire chiefs and comments from homeowner associations.

Ron Zeise, chief of the Mid-Carmel Valley Fire District, told the directors his district's 1980-81 budget is $334,000. The budget covers a full-time, four-man crew, equipment maintenance and operating expenses.

The district, however, will receive only $121,000 in property tax revenue this year from the county, or only one-third of its needed income. Without user fees, the district faces a deficit.

Fire districts receive 11.1 percent of the county's general fund, which is collected from property tax. General fund revenue was cut 57 percent by Proposition 13.

This year, the fire districts and County Services Areas asked for $3 million more than the county could deliver.

That prompted the county Board of Supervisors to adopt a policy in February that the county will not distribute state bailout money to districts that do not establish user fees.

"The state has told us," Zeise said, "that its bailout monies for fire districts will be cut off completely if Proposition 9 passes."

Fire districts have been surviving on their budget reserves, Zeise said, but all have been used up.

If voters do not approve fees, he added, the county is not required by law to provide fire protection.

"The intent of the fees is to make the fire districts self-supporting, while relying on the county for 30 to 35 percent of their budget needs," Zeise said.

•

MID-CARMEL VALLEY Fire District is helped somewhat by a volunteer force of 25 men, he noted. The volunteers save the district $250,000 a year, but other districts have not developed as large a volunteer force, or any at all.

County Fire Marshal Tom Perkins told the directors CSA 43 would be hard hit without user fees. It is served by a paid crew of 10 men, six at the Rio Road station, four at the Carmel Hill station. It has no volunteers, but Perkins said, "CSA 43 might have to go to a volunteer force down the road."

CSA 43 has a Class 4 insurance rating, one of the lowest in the country, because of its full-time crew and service record, he said.

"The issue before you people today is whether you want to lower services drastically, or maintain the level that you established before Proposition 13," Perkins said.

Ambulance service provided by the fire districts would be discontinued without the user fees, Ed Haber said.

Haber, a director of the Mid-Carmel Valley Fire District, said half the district's emergency calls are medical. His district and Carmel Valley Fire District both have ambulances at their stations.

If you have a car accident on Carmel Valley Road, you don't have to wait until an ambulance comes from Monterey, Haber said. He said many of the elderly in the Valley rely on the fire district's emergency medical service. He urged voters to approve the fees.

Charles Wilbur, president of the Rancho Rio Vista Property Owners Association, said voters should approve the fees.

Wilbur, a former insurance agent, said homeowners will not only face increased premiums if services were cut, but might have trouble finding insurance companies to sell them a policy.

"The insurance companies are all strapped; they've doubled their limits in five years because of inflation, but they haven't doubled their assets," Wilbur said. "You won't find a market for policies."

Earl Moser, a resident of Hacienda Carmel and president of CVPOA, said he had consulted his insurance agent and several other insurance carriers about the impact of lowered services.

His insurance agent indicated the annual premium on a $100,000 policy would increase $38 if fire protection rating in CSA 43 dropped from Class 4 to Class 7, he said. Moser conceded, however, that most homes in Carmel Valley are insured for more than $100,000, and the premium increase could be much higher.

Moser questioned why residents of Hacienda Carmel have to pay the full fee for a single-family residence when their units are grouped four to a structure. He also questioned whether the commercial businesses at the mouth of the Valley, which demand more fire protection, were charged enough under the proposed fee formula.

Homeowners in CSA 43, Moser insisted, will be paying four times what they had been charged for fire protection before Proposition 13.

Zeise replied that the proposed fees are the maximum a district can charge for the next three years. After the election, each district will establish the actual fee for its budget needs; it could be lower than the maximum, he said.

Fees will be reviewed each year.

Homeowners concerned about the impact on their insurance should consult the Insurance Services Office in San Francisco, Zeise said. The ISO rates all the fire districts in the state.

According to the ISO, he said, "If I went from a Class 6 to a Class 8 (in Mid-Carmel Valley), the premium on my three-bedroom home would increase $190 per year."

"That's more than the user fee."

Motel application is due

THE USE PERMIT application for the proposed 40-unit motel at Garrapata Creek is scheduled for consideration May 29.

County Zoning Administrator Robert Slimmon indicated last week he will either deny it or ask the developer to withdraw his application because the Environmental Impact Report for the project has not been certified.

Gurries Management Co. of Gilroy proposes 39 two-bedroom family units and a unit for the motel manager on a 40-acre site east of Highway 1 across from the proposed Garrapata Creek State Park.

The company, which owns Tickle Pink Motor Inn in Carmel Highlands, applied to the county last year for the use permit.

The county is required to act within a year of the application, but Slimmon said it cannot rule on the use permit until the EIR is certified by the Board of Supervisors, expected in about two months.

The project will also require approval from the Regional Coastal Commission.

Candidates are divided on fire district fees

THE FIVE CANDIDATES in the Fifth District supervisor race are divided on the fees proposed for fire protection districts.

Speaking at a candidates night in Del Mesa Carmel May 13, three candidates supported the fees to maintain fire protection services. Two candidates questioned if the fees are appropriate or equitable.

The fees are proposed to replace operating revenue lost since the passage of Proposition 13.

Neill Gardner of Pacific Grove, billing himself as a fiscal conservative, said he opposed the fees.

"I think the county should provide for our safety, and that includes fire protection," he said.

Social welfare programs can be cut, Gardner said, to help provide funds for fire services.

David Thorpe said the fees are not equitable, noting that the owner of a single-family home is charged the same fee as a cemetery, auto dealer, repair store and warehouse.

He complained that fire district officials determined the fees without comment from the public. Calling it "monopoly pricing," he said that no attempt was made at "marginal cost pricing" or competitive pricing between fire districts.

"There is no mention of places like Denmark, where much of the country's fire protection has been turned over to a private firm, with which a large number of local governments have agreements," he said.

•

WILLIAM PETERS OF Carmel Valley supported the fees, saying they were necessary not only for fire protection but to retain emergency medical aid and ambulance service. He noted the county is not required by law to provide structural fire protection.

Florence Hunter of Pacific Grove said the user fees are necessary because of Proposition 13. She said, "The money for fire services has to come from somewhere. If government taxes don't pay for it, individuals have to pay for it."

Jim O'Brien of Pebble Beach supported the fees, acknowledging that reduced taxes have forced cuts in services, and user fees will be needed to maintain fire protection.

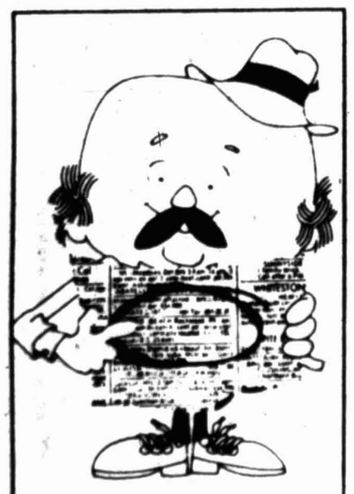

He questioned, however, if the fees are allocated fairly.

•

MARY ANN MATTHEWS, a member of the audience, said fire fees will shift the financial burden for fire services from owners of expensive homes to the less expensive.

All homeowners will pay the same fee, she noted, while before Proposition 13 the rate depended on property value.

The result, she said: "Low-assessed homes will be paying four times what they were before Proposition 13, while high-assessed homes will be paying 50 to 80 percent more."

Preliminary map of Holt Ranch

Holt subdivision to be reviewed

THE PRELIMINARY MAP FOR THE PROPOSED HOLT RANCH, a 176-lot subdivision on Robinson Canyon Road, will be considered by the Monterey County Planning Commission, Wednesday, May 28.

Commissioners will review the preliminary map and offer suggestions on the layout, densities and design of the proposed subdivision. They will rule on its environmental impact.

Planning department staff has recommended an Environmental Impact Report due to soil constraints, sewage disposal levels and geologic instabilities. Staff cites adverse cumulative impacts on traffic levels and air and water quality.

Developer Richard Pryor of Carmel Valley proposes 176 lots on 473 acres immediately west of Robinson Canyon Road and south of the Carmel River. The project would include as many as 70 low- and moderate-income housing lots; those lots are not counted in the project's density formula or allocation figures.

The land extends from the river to the south ridge of the Valley, and covers meadows, brushland, tree-covered slopes and sheer cliffs. Only animal stables are on the property.

•

THE LOW- AND MODERATE-INCOME LOTS are proposed on the bottomland next to the river, with the standard lots planned mainly on a bench above the Valley floor.

Average size of the 176 standard lots would be 1.2 acres. The low- and moderate-income lots would be either 27 one-acre lots, 50 half-acre lots, or 70 one-third acre lots.

Pryor said the number of low- and moderate-income lots will depend on requirements in an ordinance that the county has yet to adopt.

Developers will be required to set aside either 15 percent of their units for low- and moderate-income housing, or contribute an equivalent amount of money or land for the same. A draft of the ordinance is being reviewed by a committee of lawyers and the county Board of Supervisors.

Pryor said he would prefer more low- and moderate-income lots, since it would be better for the community. It would also buffer his losses on the low- and moderate-income units.

The three-bedroom units will sell for not more than $65,000, while real market value would be about $175,000, he said. To qualify for the units, a family cannot make more than $24,000 a year. Haff's Homes and Acreage of Carmel Valley will market the units.

"We want to help provide housing for people who work in the community — the school teachers and firemen," Pryor said.

It is more attractive, therefore, if a larger number of units are built on one-third-acre lots, instead of fewer on acre- or half-acre lots, he said.

The county Health Department has notified Pryor that septic tank systems are not allowed on lots smaller than one acre. Pryor indicated that for the low- and moderate-income lots, he would build either a package sewage treatment plant or use specially-designed, individual home treatment and disposal units.

Average cross slope of the land is 42 percent, with more than 30 percent slope on 203 acres, which is not suitable for building. Some 240 acres would remain in open space.

Density of the standard-lot portion of the development would be 2.4 acres per unit.

Zoning for the land is rural residential, 2.5 acres per unit.

Pryor proposes rezoning to an R-1 classification to allow one-acre-per-unit density.

Planning Department staff has determined that the project's density is consistent with the new Carmel Valley Master Plan.

Based on the Master Plan's slope/density formula, and a rezoning to R-1, there could be 233 lots maximum. Staff figured that by using the conventional formula based on the existing 2.5-acre zoning, there could be 189 lots. Either way, 176 lots would be less than the maximum allowable.

•

THE COUNTY SUBDIVISION COMMITTEE reviewed the preliminary map April 24 and forwarded it to the Planning Commission with 10 recommendations, mainly concerning access roads, interior streets and floodplain mitigations.

The county Public Works Department has requested that the developer participate in the cost and constructing of a new intersection at Carmel Valley and Robinson Canyon roads. It also wants the developer to widen Robinson Canyon Road from the project's entrance to Holt Road, and contribute to the widening of Carmel Valley Road.

The county Water Conservation and Flood Control District asks that the developer delineate the area subject to innundation by a 100-year flood, and place all those areas into scenic easements.

Review of the preliminary map will be followed by application for a tentative subdivision map. Pryor said he hoped to submit his tentative map application and an EIR for the project in time to make the first series of subdivisions that will be considered this year under the new Master Plan.

Candidates for supervisor speak in Valley

By STEVE HELLMAN

GROWTH MANAGEMENT IN CARMEL VALLEY and the fiscal crunch in government were major issues discussed May 13 by candidates in the Fifth District Supervisorial race.

The five candidates talked before about 100 persons at Del Mesa Carmel at a meeting sponsored by the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association.

They answered questions on the Carmel Valley Master Plan, fire district fees, improvement of the Carmel Valley and Robinson Canyon roads intersection, and water supply.

It was the first time the five candidates met face to face in public.

Verbal jabs were traded by William Peters and Neill Gardner, the two candidates expected to receive the majority of votes June 3.

•

VYING FOR THE SEAT BEING VACATED by Supervisor Sam Farr of Carmel are: Peters of Carmel Valley; Gardner of Pacific Grove; Florence Hunter of Pacific Grove; Jim O'Brien of Pebble Beach; and David Thorpe of Monterey.

Peters, a member of the county Planning Commission and proponent of the Carmel Valley Master Plan, is considered the front-runner.

Gardner, Hunter and O'Brien, however, could garner enough votes to deprive Peters of a June 3 victory.

A majority of the votes is required in the June election to win the seat; otherwise a runoff between the two top vote-getters is held in November.

CANDIDATES IN THE Fifth and Fourth district supervisorial races who spoke last week in Del Mesa Carmel are (from left) William Peters, Florence Hunter, Joseph Sullivan (Fourth District), Neill Gardner, David Thorpe and Jim O'Brien.

•

PETERS opened by touting his work on the new Master Plan. He noted that 70 percent of a supervisor's time is spent with "critical land planning decisions."

Adding that he helped write the county's Growth Management Policy, he said, "We must limit and control growth throughout the county.

"The challenge is how to allow growth that is quality, and at the same time not change the character of our environment."

He insisted that in his vision of Carmel Valley 20 years from now, the impact of growth under the Master Plan will be "quite slight."

Peters is backed by a $15,000 war chest, the largest in the race, which was collected from what he says is more than 350 contributors.

•

MRS. HUNTER is a Pacific Grove lawyer, a trustee of Monterey Peninsula College, and former administrative assistant to Farr.

She declared herself a growth-control advocate, calling Carmel Valley a strategic area and herself a supervisor who would "keep careful tabs on the Master Plan.

"I will be concerned," she said, "about who is named to the citizens committee that evaluates subdivisions in the Valley, and about how the point system is implemented.

"I do not wish this place to change in any way that will hurt its beauty."

Mrs. Hunter noted that as a lawyer with clients in real estate, she has also "seen views from the other side of the fence" and she would be qualified to make balanced decisions.

•

A STOCKBROKER, fiscal manager and Del Monte Forest resident, O'Brien also espoused controlled growth.

"I would not have supported the exclusion of Carmel Valley Ranch from the quota and allocation system of the Master Plan," O'Brien declared. "It (the development) is too much, too soon."

The project calls for 500 condominiums, a 100-room hotel and golf course. All but 100 of the condominiums were excluded by the Board of Supervisors from the competition for approval and allocation that is required for all new subdivisions, including single lot-splits.

O'Brien said he also would not have supported the lifting of the building moratorium in Carmel Valley.

The supervisors lifted a year-long development moratorium two weeks ago, intending to begin implementing the Master Plan June 6. The action was taken despite a lawsuit against the supervisors, asking that they set aside implementation and order an Environmental Impact Report for the Master Plan.

O'Brien said, "The county should work to avoid lawsuits instead of defending them."

Turning to what he termed the most important issue facing the county, O'Brien said, "We're in for some serious financial times. The markets have been telling us for a while that the crunch is coming.

"Local governments," he said, "are going to get zapped as revenues drop and the recession deepens."

A stockbroker for 34 years and accounts vice president for Paine Webber in Monterey, O'Brien said he is qualified to handle tight fiscal situations and money management.

O'Brien has received campaign contributions from around the state. He is well-known in the Del Monte Forest as chairman of a committee that last year urged incorporation of that area.

•

GARDNER said he opposed the new Carmel Valley Master Plan, although he stopped short of the public statement he made previously that the plan is "forced socialism."

Gardner said, "Inflation is a direct threat to our freedoms — inflation caused by government waste."

"The roots of waste are in Salinas, Sacramento and Washington," he said, adding that he opposed programs that involved matching funds between county and federal governments.

He also attacked the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District as "full of people who want to use water to control growth."

•

THORPE, a Monterey businessman and author, confined his opening comments to the proposed user fees in fire districts. He opposed the fees as not equitable and "monopoly pricing" by the fire districts.

The candidates were asked what alternative they favored for improving the intersection of Robinson Canyon and Carmel Valley roads.

Peters said the developer of Carmel Valley Ranch is paying for the intersection. Claiming that the county Public Works Department has pushed through improvements larger than necessary in similiar cases, Peters said he would "not let public works push an L.A. intersection on us." He opposed an underpass.

"You have horrendous problems on Carmel Valley Road," Mrs. Hunter said, "so you need traffic control. You won't want a huge concrete intersection; the supervisors should make sure you get as much traffic control with as little visual impact as possible."

Gardner replied that if it comes down to a decision between a signal or an underpass, he would choose an underpass that is camouflaged.

O'Brien said it is "incredible" that foundations have been poured for 80 condominiums at Carmel Valley Ranch and its golf course is going in, while access to the development has not been provided first.

Asked to elaborate on changes that were made in the Master Plan by supervisors to allow more development, the candidates offered these comments:

Thorpe: "The citizens evaluation committee is going to be tarred and feathered."

Gardner: "I would not change the plan back, I would eliminate it. Right now it wouldn't allow Del Mesa Carmel."

Mrs. Hunter: "You should elect someone who will closely watch the plan."

Peters: "I opposed Rancho Canada Lodge, but I know that the supervisors had to include it in the plan to implement its decision to approve the project.

"I will spend the next four years trying to make the Master Plan work," he added. "I want to assure that people don't take it apart."

Peters also responded to a question about his stand on the four new wells proposed in the Valley by California-American Water Co.

Additional water is needed, Peters said, "Because residents have stopped conserving. Any loss of rain in one year will put us back into a drought situation."

He noted that the state Public Utilities Commission has ordered the four wells, but they are opposed by residents who fear massive drawdown of the water table from commercial wells.

The supervisors still have to rule on the use permit for the wells, he noted.

Peters said he favors establishing off-stream reservoirs to greatly reduce reliance on wells. As a supervisor, he said he would seek to be appointed as the county's representative to the water management district.

•

THE TWO CANDIDATES IN THE FOURTH DISTRICT, which covers the eastern end of Carmel Valley, were invited to the meeting.

Challenger Joe Sullivan of San Benancio Canyon appeared. Incumbent Michal Moore did not attend, due to another commitment.

Sullivan, chairman of the county Planning Commission and a Monterey lawyer, said he supports the Master Plan.

"It has compromises that don't please everyone, but it's on the ground and it's workable," he said.

He supported the fire district fees, noting that without them, the level of services will diminish.

The Outlook covers the Valley like the sun!

George Mosolf: A Carmel coach who influenced thousands

By BOB BATES

FORMER CARMEL HIGH SCHOOL coach and teacher George Mosolf, who died at age 71 on April 25, influenced the lives of thousands of Carmel youngsters during his coaching and teaching career spanning more than three decades.

Mosolf taught more than 5,000 Carmel youngsters to swim in the Carmel High School pool. He developed winning football, baseball and basketball teams with regularity.

Doyle Clayton, member of the Carmel Unified School District Board of Education, a former player for and friend of Mosolf, paid tribute to his mentor at the board meeting May 13.

"I can say that I played for the best," Clayton remarked.

"George was the coach with the longest-standing win record (in high school football) in California. He was 'Mr. Athletics.' "

Mosolf led CHS varsity football teams to a record 33 successive wins. He retired from coaching in 1961.

In spite of that impressive record, Mosolf taught his players that good sportsmanship was just as important — if not more so — than winning football games.

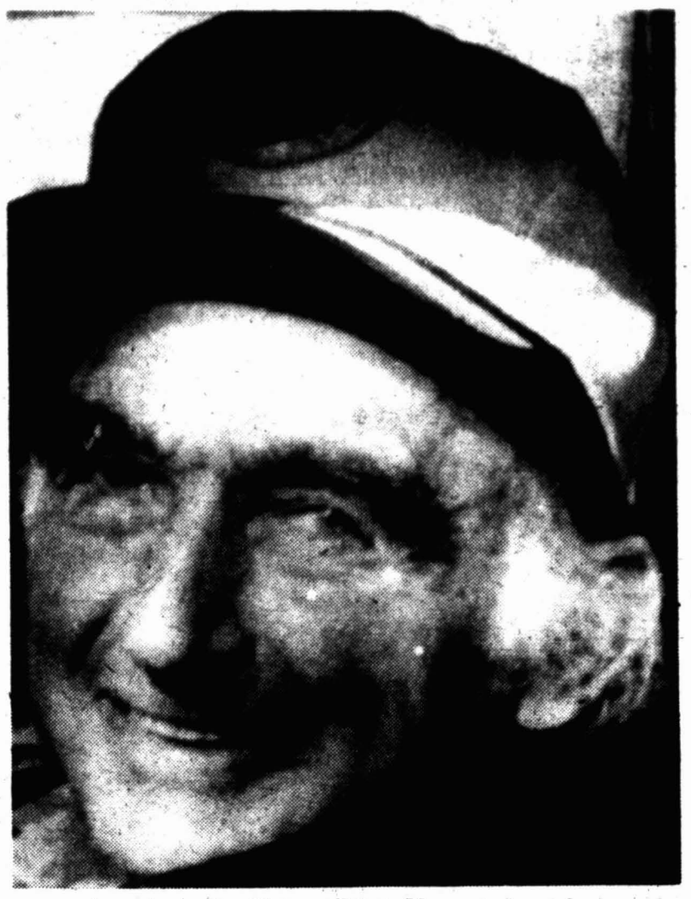

Throughout his career as a coach, not one of Mosolf's players was tossed out of a game for unsportsmanlike conduct.

"George used to sit on a medicine box during the games — until half-time — then return after the half and sit on the box for the rest of the game," Clayton said.

"He never yelled at his players from the sidelines as a lot of coaches do now."

Born in Tacoma, Wash., Mosolf was a letterman at Tacoma High School in football, basketball, baseball and track.

He later played those sports at San Diego State and graduated in 1937 from the University of California.

George Mosolf
1909-1980

"When I graduated," Mosolf told the Pine Cone-Cymbal in 1961, "There were three towns I would have liked to have had jobs in, La Jolla, Laguna Beach and Carmel.

"So naturally I ended up somewhere else, at Winters.

"There was no high school in Carmel then, but I attended a coaching clinic in Monterey in 1940, saw Carmel and fell in love with it as everyone does."

When Carmel High School was completed in 1941, Mosolf applied for a position as coach that took in the entire athletic program at CHS.

When he took over the athletic program at CHS, there was no school gym, so basketball was practiced at Mission Ranch.

Mosolf produced league title teams at Carmel High in 1947, '49, '55, '57, '58 and '60.

His teams finished the 1961 football season with 33 consecutive wins.

"I am prouder of the record for clean play than I am of the wins though," Mosolf said in 1961.

"In fact, I put two things ahead of winning: sportsmanship and participation."

Mosolf believed that every player should be allowed to take part in a game. He was one of the prime movers in setting up Carmel's recreation program.

•

ALTHOUGH THERE WAS NO SWIMMING POOL in Carmel before 1948, Mosolf insisted on teaching every child he could how to swim.

Swimming lessons were taught at La Playa Ranch in Carmel Valley or in the Carmel River lagoon.

Mrs. Grace Howden of Carmel would later volunteer her swimming pool for Mosolf's swimming instruction.

A pool was finally built at Carmel High School in 1948.

Mosolf's five children — Mike, Terry, Tim, Pat and Susan — shared their father's enthusiasm for sports when they were growing up in Carmel.

Mike played football for Carmel High School and was a quarterback at the University of Idaho.

Susan and Pat were school yell leaders.

Terry and Tim were also talented athletes.

Only Terry remains in Carmel. Mike and Tim live in Montana. Pat resides in Seattle. Susan lives in Mountain View.

Mosolf's widow, Beth, also resides in Carmel.

PADRE SPORTS

By MARK SANFORD

THE CARMEL HIGH SCHOOL VARSITY BASEBALL TEAM retained its Mission Trail Athletic League title by finishing league play with wins over North County (15-3) and Pacific Grove (9-7) before the Central Coast Section playoffs.

The Padres finished with a 12-1 league record and were 16-5-1 overall. The team will now defend its CCS title.

Against North County, David Spear, Brent Eagling and Mike Wecker were the leading hitters.

Spear had three hits — including a double — scored three times, stole a base and drove in a run.

Eagling had two hits — both home runs, one a grand slam, driving in six runs and scoring three times.

Wecker homered, scored twice and drove in two runs.

Pitcher Greg Raynes threw an excellent game. He went the whole way, giving up only three hits and three runs. He struck out nine and walked just two.

Wecker was the slugger against P.G. He had three hits — including a homer — a stolen base and scored three times. He was also the winning pitcher. He gave up five hits and struck out five in five innings.

Spear pitched two perfect innings in relief to get the save.

Cory Bliesner and Gary Childs each had two hits and drove in a run.

Eagling drove in two runs with a single, and Barry Powell drove in one with a sacrifice fly.

The league coaches chose Wecker "Most Valuable Player" in the MTAL, and he was named to the all-league team. Also named to the team from the Padres were Bliesner, Spear, Raynes and Mike Odello. Eagling and Mike Matson got honorable mention.

THE VARSITY TENNIS TEAM won its last league match 7-0 over Gonzales before losing to Salinas in the Region IV playoffs.

Rico and Olaf deRouen, Anthony Galang, Paul Marto and Erik Dormody all won singles matches against Gonzales.

The doubles teams of Mike Robertson and Andy Robinson, and Peter Lloyd and Tony Rowedder also won.

•

THE JUNIOR VARSITY BASEBALL TEAM ended its season with a 7-3 win over Pacific Grove and a 12-6 win over North County.

Ken Hall was the winning pitcher against P.G. He helped himself by driving in two runs.

Ward Crane was the leading hitter with two hits, including a double.

•

THE VARSITY GOLF TEAM lost its bid to keep its league title by losing to King City by 12 strokes.

Curtis Jones and Andrew Whitacre were the only bright spots for the team, qualifying for the Region IV playoffs.

Jones shot 74 and Whitacre 76 on the par 71 Laguna Seca Golf Course.

The Region IV playoffs are being held today at Rancho Canada Golf Course in Carmel Valley.

•

THE VARSITY GIRLS' SOFTBALL team lost its last game to P.G., 22-8.

•

THE GIRLS' JUNIOR VARSITY SOFTBALL team ended its season at 9-5, with a win over North County 20-17 before losing to P.G. 12-9.

•

THE BOYS' SWIMMING TEAM held its banquet on Monday, May 12.

Art Strum was chosen the "Most Valuable Varsity Swimmer," Peter Kelly was the varsity captain, and Bruce Lathrop was selected "Most Improved Swimmer."

For the frosh-soph team, D. Kelly was chosen "Most Valuable," John Keller was "Most Improved," and Alex Brodie the captain.

Bill McCreery and Paul Tourangeau were given the Coaches' Award.

•

MIKE WECKER is this week's "Athlete of the Week."

He is a pitcher and first baseman on the varsity team.

Wecker came to the plate seven times, had five hits, scored five runs, had four RBI and stole a base. Two of his hits were home runs.

Wecker also raised his league pitching record to 5-0 (6-1 overall) with a five-hitter against P.G.

Wecker was also selected to the all-league team and chosen the league's "Most Valuable Player."

Graduation security tightened

GRADUATION EXERCISES for Carmel High and Middle schools will be conducted with a dignity this year that has been lacking in recent years, according to Ken White, president of the Carmel Unified School District Board of Education.

This year, there will be tighter security and a limit on the number of guests, he said at a board meeting Tuesday, May 13.

"Graduation at Carmel High School has just gotten out of hand," White said. "It gets a little crazier each year."

A smoke bomb that ignited a student's dress last year, firecrackers and vandalism at the school were mentioned as examples of behavior the board hopes to eliminate this year.

A specified number of tickets for graduation ceremonies at each school will be issued to graduates. Extra tickets may be available, however.

Six tickets per graduate will be issued at the high school, three at the middle school.

The high school graduation is at 6 p.m., Friday, June 6, at the school football stadium. Major changes in the format include admission by ticket only and the audience will be seated, with increased supervision by faculty and the Monterey County Sheriff's Department.

Graduation for Carmel Valley High School will be held on the campus at 5 p.m., June 4. Students who entered Carmel Valley High School after the second week of November 1979 will be awarded a Carmel Valley High School diploma. Students enrolled at CVHS before the second week in November 1979 may choose a Carmel High or CVHS diploma.

There are no attendance restrictions at CVHS graduation.

Graduation at Carmel Middle School will be Thursday, June 5, at 6 p.m. in the school gymnasium. Admission is by invitation only.

School officials said limited seating would provide better control than ceremonies outside, as in the past.

Deluge of applications forecast for school superintendent job

WHILE ONLY a few applications for the job of superintendent of Carmel Unified School District had been received by April 14, many inquiries have been received since.

"We expect a deluge of applications as the deadline (May 23) approaches," William Rand, assistant superintendent of instruction and personnel, said at a School Board meeting Tuesday, May 13, at Woods School.

A committee will screen candidates. It will have 18 members: two teachers each from elementary, middle and high schools; an administrator; central office representative; two "classified" representatives; five elementary school parents; a middle school parent; a high school parent, and a student.

The position has been vacant since the April 8 resignation of Dr. Carl E. Wilsey.

Wilsey said "basic philosophical differences" between himself and the five-member board was his reason for resigning the $38,000-a-year post.

"It must remain clear at all times that the responsibility for choosing a final candidate for this position remains with the board," a report states.

A suggested calendar for selecting a superintendent and the selection process plan were approved.

The calendar calls for a May 23 deadline for applications; submittal of selections of committee members by organizations, May 23; organization of the professional screening committee, May 27; professional screening report to the board in executive session, June 9; interview of top candidates by the board and screening committee, June 16 and 17.

The board will hire a superintendent June 24, according to the calendar.

Summer workshops planned on water problems in Valley

CALIFORNIA-AMERICAN WATER CO. and Monterey Peninsula Water Management District plan to co-sponsor a series of community workshops on water problems in Carmel Valley this summer.

They will provide a public forum on riverbank erosion, protection of riparian vegetation and drawdown on groundwater supplies.

Residents who lost large portions of land this winter to erosion along the river blamed Cal-Am's wells for lowering the water table and killing riverbank vegetation.

Cal-Am General Manager Richard Sullivan said the workshops are proposed as an informal setting for gathering information and sharing ideas with the public.

Water and engineering experts will be invited to speak at the workshops, which are being financed completely by Cal-Am.

A Consensus Report will be developed at the conclusion of the workshops and forwarded to the county Board of Supervisors before they conduct hearings and rule on the use permit for Cal-Am's proposed four new wells in the lower Valley.

Directors of the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District have indicated they want to be directly involved in water supply matters, and with the impact of Cal-Am's wells on the Carmel River. They may form an assessment district along the river corridor to pay for mitigation measures, irrigation of vegetation and protection of the river.

An executive committee will assist Cal-Am in preparing the workshop agendas and securing expert speakers. The eight-member committee will also condense the workshop comments and information into the Consensus Report.

The committee will represent a cross-section of interests — including the water company, water management district and private organizations — in an effort to obtain as much participation as possible in the workshops, Sullivan said.

Tentative members of the committee are: John Williams and Alfred Gawthrop, water management district board members; Earl Moser and Bill Wheaton, representing Carmel Valley Property Owners Association; Richard Hughett and David Hazlit, members of the Carmel River Watch, and two representatives of Cal-Am.

First meeting of the committee was scheduled for May 22, when it will choose membership and establish dates and guidelines for the workshops.

Planners rule subdivision is inconsistent

THE MONTEREY COUNTY PLANNING COMMISSION ruled May 14 that the proposed Casas de la Cumbre subdivision, 12 lots on 40 acres in Carmel Valley, is inconsistent with the new Carmel Valley Master Plan.

Voting unanimously on a motion by Commissioner William Peters of Carmel Valley, the commission found Casas de la Cumbre inconsistent with requirements for: access, density, visual impacts and soil stability. The commission also deemed the subdivision growth-inducing.

Developer Robert Jackson of Salinas proposed the 12 lots on a ridgetop site above Schulte Road. Steep slope of the land would have allowed only six to seven lots. It also raised the question of soil stability.

Access to the site was the major obstacle. The present road is unimproved dirt that becomes virtually impassable in wet weather. Efforts by several property owners on the ridge to form an assessment district to improve the road have been rejected by the county Board of Supervisors. Peters termed access to the project "an unresolvable problem."

Jackson said he would submit a revised plan with the help of his engineer, William Dryden.

The commission ruled that an Environmental Impact Report is required for the proposed River Oaks subdivision. It also agreed to allow the developer of the proposed Village Greens II subdivision to use his EIR, for Village Greens I, with supplemental information on drainage, traffic circulation and sewage disposal.

River Oaks is a proposed 24-lot subdivision on 84 acres that are part of a 628-acre parcel owned by Mrs. Genevieve de Dampierre of Carmel Valley.

The subdivision would include four lots above Robles del Rio, next to Merv Griffin's ranch, and 20 lots at the end of East Garzas Road behind the Trail and Saddle Club.

Residents on Garzas Road and Borondo Road objected to the subdivision. They submitted two petitions with more than 100 signatures, citing concern for increased traffic.

One petition maintained "a very dangerous situation" would result on the narrow residential roads with the River Oaks project and development of the Condon land on Garzas Road.

The commissioners, noting that the two projects would double the population of the neighborhood, voted unanimously to require an EIR for River Oaks.

Tony de Sugny, Mrs. de Dampierre's son, pleaded unsuccessfully for the commissioners to waive the EIR. He noted that development was proposed for only a small portion of his mother's parcel. He said his mother is negotiating with the Trust for Public Land in San Francisco to transfer 540 acres to Garland Ranch Regional Park.

Engineer Frank Van Zander, representing de Sugny, complained that an EIR would delay the project while his client hoped to include it in the first series to be evaluated this year under the new Carmel Valley Master Plan.

Carmel Scouts hike trail

Ten Scouts from Carmel's Boy Scout Troop 3 recently hiked the Fages Trail, qualified for patches and medals, and shared a bit of early California history.

Fages Trail, in Wildcat Canyon and Tilden Regional Park near El Cerrito, is sponsored by the Order of the Arrow, an honorary camping society. The trail is named for Pedro Fages, a Spanish military leader who played a prominent part in the history of Spanish California.

Scouts who hiked the 10.4-mile trail were Van Crego, Addison Phillips, Clifton Bonner, Siegfried Lackner, Conard Lindgren, Chris Tolles, Daniel McLean, Joe Bernet, Tim Callahan and Ben Godfrey. They were accompanied by Scoutmaster Art Crego and Assistant Scoutmaster Ron Williams.

Youth baseball

By WENDY BANKS

The first half of the Carmel Youth Baseball season is over, and Granite Rock has maintained a narrow lead over Derek Rayne and Pine Inn on the Bronco scoreboard.

Helping the leaders out have been Brennon Langley, Mike Takigawa, Bill Fogle, Jon D'Attilio and a team effort.

When Roscelli beat La Playa, Mark Sentiz and David Cuff were instrumental for the winners, but the losers accomplished two double plays: Neal Bell to Jeff Fenton and Greg Harrison to Greg Solt.

Pine Inn over Roscelli had Oliver Wildschut hitting a triple and Todd Mohktari, Eric Hanzelka, Marco Flores and Tommy Wang all doubling for the winners. Kerry Woodson pitched Derek Rayne to a 5-1 win over Roscelli, with doubles by Jim Miller and Kent Rullman.

Roscelli went way ahead of La Playa 19-6 with Steven St. Germain pitching and doubling along with Curt Graham. Mark Sentiz and Jason Anderson did a good job for the losers.

Chris Hall helped Derek Rayne beat Granite Rock 6-1 with help from Kerry Woodson, Matt Pretzer and Mike Cox; Brennon Langley aided the losers. Pitching well for Pine Inn were Greg Hinton and Ricky Van Every.

Orange Julius has the undisputed lead in the Mustang division as they have completed an undefeated first half. Michael Little, Craig Cox, Chris Stevenson and Donovan Jones have been hitting for the league leaders.

Victor Greco aided Shoe Box with a triple, Erik Sincoff did some fancy catching and Frankie Jenkins pitched Shoe Box to a 6-4 win over Rudy-Harris.

Darren Reed helped Kidder-Peabody squeeze by Rudy-Harris 6-5 when he went 2 for 2.

Joshua Banks got the season's first home run in a game in which Rudy-Harris beat Nielsen Brothers 4-2. Joshua, when being congratulated about parking it over the center field fence, said, "I couldn't have done it without Jeff Roberts' fast ball pitch." Josh added another in-the-park home run later that week.

Neanderthal Furniture was helped along to a 6-4 win over Dick Bruhn by Steve Stazy and Bobby Carrol; Paul Wagstaff did a good job of fielding for Dick Bruhn, while Robert D'Attilio and Jeff Letowt added hits.

Frankie Jenkins added a home run for Shoe Box while beating Nielsen Bros. In that same game, Sterling Meheen made a great fielding play. Jeff Roberts hit a hard double and struck out six batters.

The Legend...

In 1917 fate brought together two great women of our century face to face—Dr. Nadine Payot and the fabled ballerina, Anna Pavlova. "When I met Pavlova, I was struck by the curious difference between her face and body. Her beautiful body was still young and lissome and firm through daily exercise and lack of exposure to the elements, while her face was severely marked by age," reported Dr. Payot. "I was fascinated by the possibility of changing all that." Dr. Payot committed herself to the art and science of helping women protect their skin from moisture loss and protect their facial muscles from premature deterioration by proper massage and exercise. Her methods and preparations were so successful that the rich, the beautiful and the renowned flocked to the "Payot Institut de Beaute", located at the historical mansion of the Countess of Castiglione, where Napoleon III had once climbed incognito up the spiraling staircase to rejoin the Countess. Almost 60 years of success in more than 50 countries have proven the effectiveness of Payot.

SMOKE ALARMS

Everyone's talking about something that's sweeping the country and being featured in newspapers, magazines, and on radio and television. To look at one, a person might wonder what the excitement is all about, because it's rather small and unobtrusive. But fire protection and public safety officials are hoping every dwelling will have one or more installed.

It's called a smoke alarm, and it offers a measure of protection out of all proportion to its low cost, efficiency, and ease of installation. Considered the best form of fire warning for a family, a smoke alarm "discovers" a fire in its earliest stages. Smoke will be evident from a fire much sooner than heat, and will trigger the alarm, waking sleeping occupants.

Two types of alarms are available. One is called the ionization detector and the other the photoelectric detector. Information on which to use and where to install them can be obtained from fire protection groups, fire departments, and consumer organizations. So join the rest of the country in a massive effort to reduce injuries and fatalities from fires. Install smoke detectors in YOUR home!

CHS juniors chosen for Rotary

Josh Kim and Don Williams, juniors at Carmel High School, have been selected to attend the Rotary Youth Leadership Camp this summer.

Camp Royal for 1980 will be held June 15 to 20 at Lake Sequoia.

The young leaders are selected on the basis of leadership, personal values, intelligence and promise of future success. Kim and Williams will represent CHS in an intensified leadership program with about 130 other leaders from 75 high schools.

Trash center wants permit

OWNERS OF the Carmel Valley Disposal Center are seeking to renew the use permit for their beleaguered project.

Work on the trash collection and recycle center was halted last year, and final inspection was delayed after county officials found that design approval had not been granted for the camouflage arbor over the center.

Design approval was later denied by the county Planning Commission, which ruled that the 24-foot arbor was "too imposing." Owners Tom Struck and Jim Carroll appealed the decision to the Board of Supervisors. It is scheduled to consider the appeal June 3.

Meanwhile, the use permit for the project is due to expire, and the owners have applied for renewal.

The Planning Commission is scheduled to consider the renewal application May 28, although it is expected to postpone action until the supervisors rule on the arbor.

County Zoning Administrator Robert Slimmon noted that use permits are usually renewed as a perfunctory matter, although this case is complicated by the debate over the arbor.

The commissioners could renew the use permit for all or just parts of the project, he said, although he added, "It would be sticky for them to grant a use permit without the arbor in light of their earlier denial on it.

"They'll probably delay the renewal, waiting to see the board's attitude on the arbor."

AFS aided by party

A dinner and theater party to benefit the Carmel chapter of American Field Service was held at the Studio Theater in Carmel on Thursday evening, May 15. About 120 guests were treated to a buffet dinner and The Man Who Came to Dinner on stage. Among the guests were (top) Dick Lawitzke of Carmel, being served by Gretchen Siegrist, a student at Carmel High School awaiting AFS assignment abroad later this year; and (bottom, from left) Ted Fehring, Andreas Barz, an exchange student from Switzerland spending 11 months here with Pat, Steve and Richard Sippel. Mrs. Sippel was an AFS student in Germany in 1954.

When a liberal becomes conservative

By SALLY HUNT STREITER

MY FRIENDS CONSIDER ME a woolly-headed liberal and I suppose I am.

On most issues I seem to come up on the liberal side. But I find that when I do disagree with my liberal friends, it's usually on a question involving what economists call "elasticities."

Elasticity is response to price in the sense of using less and producing more. It is response to price of both supply and demand.

Liberals think responses to price are minimal and unimportant.

Conservatives, on the other hand, think responses to price are substantial and even fundamental. On that issue, I side with the conservatives.

People do not use less energy because they are imbued with national pride. They use less energy because it costs more. That is elasticity.

Since the oil price rises of 1973-74, projections of increased national energy use have been halved because of the effects of elasticities. But maximum conservation will take place only when we stop deceiving ourselves with subsidized prices.

For example, residential natural-gas prices are regulated to below replacement cost. My co-op in New York City considered all sorts of conservation options to save fuel. Compared to oil prices, the measures seemed cost-effective. But the most cost-effective move was to switch to gas; compared to gas, none of the conservation moves was cost-effective. So our co-op spent a pile of money to save money, but saved no energy at all. That's elasticity at work: We simply responded to price.

IF LIBERALS AND ENVIRONMENTALISTS in Congress and across the country truly want to see alternative technologies developed, they will have to face up to the reality that the price of fossil fuels must reflect their replacement costs. Unless the alternatives are priced at their real costs, solar development will be stymied.

Look at the consequences of our controlling of oil and gas prices in the critical period from 1974 to 1979.

We insisted on keeping the prices of oil and natural gas low. If you understand elasticities, you realize that kept demand too high.

Did it save consumers money? No, because suppliers didn't develop new supplies. Why should a gas supplier drill a $2 well when he has to sell the output at 52 cents?

What of the alternative technologies — wood, wind, solar, biomass and all the other sources that so many people hope will somehow solve our energy problems without resorting to nuclear power?

Well, the sun has been around since day No. 1 and warming water since time immemorial. Wood has been plentiful since the beginning of history. Distillation of alcohol was probably known before the Exodus, and windmills antedated electricity-generation by many centuries.

All those "technologies" went out of style as energy sources in widespread use for one reason: Oil was cheaper. They may soon become economic, in which case people will begin to market them again.

The history of energy development is replete with technologies that were eminently feasible, but uneconomic.

If the government would stop allocating here and prohibiting there, the alternatives to imported oil might have a fighting chance to grow.

If we give the elasticities a chance to work, we may yet see some way out of the current energy confusion.

Yes, I advocate higher prices for fossil fuels, and even taxes on oil, because I believe in conservation and the alternative technologies. And they can't succeed without the higher prices.

Elasticity is not conservation dogma; it is economic reality. It's time we liberals adopted it as our very own.

SUNNYSIDE DOWN: San Franciscan Don Carter is really flying his 1933 Bucker Jungmeister upside down, as he did last year at the annual Watsonville Antique Fly-in. More than 400 antique airplanes will be displayed Saturday and Sunday, May 24-25 at the 16th annual air show at the Watsonville Airport. Many will perform from 1-3 p.m. each day.

'Images by Four Women' to open at Gallery Artique

Images by Four Women, a group show of multi-media works, will open Saturday, May 24 with an artists' reception at Gallery Artique in the Bonneymead Court on Lincoln between Ocean and Seventh, Carmel. Everyone is welcome to meet the artists from 4:30-7:30 p.m.; refreshments will be served.

Media ranging from brush painting on silk to sculpture is included in the group show. Photographer Frances Bradley, a Carmel resident known to her friends as "Ganci," employs natural light to capture the vibrant colors of tranquil scenes.

Nina Hastings' watercolors softly depict each scene in detail. Jeanne Gonnet's brush paints on silk wall hangings are sometimes nostalgic and sometimes whimsical. Realistic sculptures are created by Kris Swanson.

The show will continue through June 14. Hours are 10 a.m.-5 p.m., Tuesday through Saturday.

For further information, phone 625-3920.

GRACEFUL SWANS are captured in a color, natural light photograph by Carmel resident Frances Bradley, known to her friends as "Ganci." Her works are included in a group show titled Images by Four Women opening Saturday, May 24 at Gallery Artique, Lincoln between Ocean and Seventh, Carmel. Everyone is welcome to meet the artists from 4:30-7:30 p.m.

Big Sur Arts and Music Festival scheduled

The Big Sur Arts and Music Festival, three days of music and craft displays, is planned Saturday through Monday, May 24-26, at the Ripplewood Resort, located 26 miles south of Carmel on Highway 1, Big Sur.

More than 40 artisans will display wares which include glasswork, leather goods, ceramics, jewelry and clothing, from 10 a.m.-6 p.m. each day.

Among the musicians who will perform from 12:30-6 p.m. each day are the Monterey Peninsula Jazz Ensemble; Jason Serinus, a whistler who provided the song for Woodstock in the recent Peanuts animated film; the Chamber Music Quintet which will perform baroque and classical music; the five-piece jazz ensemble from San Francisco, Venus Return; and the country music group, Country Magic.

Admission is free.

Vintage planes to participate in big Watsonville Fly-in Those "daring men in their flying machines," more than 400 strong, will soar high over Watsonville Airport Saturday and Sunday, May 24-25, at the 16th annual West Coast Antique Fly-in. The airport is located just off Highway 1, 25 miles north of Monterey.

Owners of antique, classic, neo-classic and home-built airplanes, all of which are in flying condition, participate in group "fly-bys" or aerial parades over Watsonville. Aerobatic demonstrations are scheduled from 1-3 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

Aerobatic acts will be presented in each air show. The small craft dip and glide into snap rolls, hammerhead stalls and outside spins. To make the maneuvers more visible, oil will be added to the planes' exhausts to create trails of smoke. A crowd favorite is the eight-point roll in which the plane does a complete sideways somersault in eight steps.

Aerobatic adventurers include Frank Christensen who will fly an Eagle I and an Eagle II; Eddy Andrieni in his Stock Stearman and Great Lakes; Amelia Reid soaring in her 150 Aerobat; and Jim Nissen dipping and turning in a 1917 Jenny.

There will also be hot air balloons, which will attempt to race across the Santa Cruz Mountains to Gilroy, south of San Jose each morning at 8 a.m., weather permitting.

In addition to the 400 airplanes on view, more than 1,000 spectators will fly to Watsonville in their antique flying machines.

Flying aces from as far away as New Zealand, Wisconsin, Florida and New Jersey are expected to attend. Special guests are dogfighters Pappy Boyington of World War II fame, and the Japanese fighter pilot who shot him down, Mike Kawato, now a resident of Gardena. The two will meet for the third time — the first was in the air and the second, three years ago in Los Angeles.

Hours are 6 a.m.-6 p.m. each day. Admission is $3; senior citizens, $1; and children under 12, free.

For further information, phone 1-724-3849.

Traditionalist Andre Andreoli to open one-man show Saturday

A one-man show of traditionalist paintings by Andre Andreoli will open Saturday, May 24 with an artist's reception at the Zantman Art Galleries, Mission and Sixth, Carmel. Everyone is welcome to meet the artist from 5-8 p.m.

A descendant of a distinguished Italian family, Andreoli was raised in the Netherlands, where he graduated from the University of Amsterdam. Originally a student of architecture, he became disillusioned with the emphasis on mathematics rather than the creation of beautiful buildings and thus became a painter. His love of architecture provided the basis of his subject matter, though his only art teachers were the works of the old Masters. "Such schools do not exist in the 20th century," he claims.

Recognized for his ingenious paintings of the facades of old Italian buildings, he has now mastered the 19th century genre Dutch landscapes in the style and technique of the old Dutch Masters.

Whether it is a 16th century Italian house with its weathered, crumbling facade and moss-covered tile roof, or a Dutch farmhouse set in a winter landscape, Andreoli proves his technical ability and flamboyant style.

Andreoli now has his principal studio in California, and when not painting, may be found working on the land he is developing into an agricultural project, the proceeds of which will be donated to two philanthropic causes: Mother Theresa's center in Calcutta and the founding in Southern California of a facility for abused children.

The works of Andreoli may be viewed through June 11. Hours are 10 a.m.-5 p.m., Monday through Saturday, and 11 a.m.-5 p.m., Sunday.

For further information, phone 624-8314.

BOSKOOP (HOLLAND),* a traditionalist painting by Andre Andreoli, is included in his one-man show opening Saturday, May 24 at the Zantman Art Galleries, Mission and Sixth, Carmel. Everyone is welcome to meet the artist Saturday from 5-8 p.m.

The Wine Connoisseur

'The wine game is not an easy one'

PASSENGERS aboard California's own airline, PSA, may find in the May 1980 issue of the in-flight magazine a most provocative story, Profits Sweeter Than Wine by Thomas Shess and Edward Day, on why big business "is bullish on California's wine industry."

Early on, it has this statement: "Holding title to wine-producing land in California is a quick ticket to financial stardom, and don't think this bit of wisdom has escaped the boardrooms of large corporations around the world."

However, it should be noted that the vineyard trail has some quite large and very visible monuments to such investments abandoned by some of those large corporations who came, saw and did not conquer. The Pillsbury doughboy retreated to Minneapolis several years back. Schlitz Brewery of Milwaukee is having second thoughts about its handsome Geyser Peak Winery in Geyserville, reputedly for sale. The wine game is not an easy one. The bankers' role is a big one, as any winemaker will tell you. The black ink and profits arrive only with glacier speed, ultimately rewarding the dedicated and best.

It remains true that big international corporations are still looking to California vineyards and wineries for potential investment and purchase. Buena Vista Winery and Franciscan were purchased wtihin recent months by West German wine companies. Moet & Chandon of Epernay, belonging to the even larger Moet-Hennessy company of France, is very happy with its sparkling wine cellars in the Alexander Valley.

•

THE WINE SPECTRUM OF COCA COLA of Atlanta is making its portfolio of offerings international, beyond its holdings in New York state vineyards and wineries, and the California facilities in Monterey County and the Napa Valley. And early fears that Coke would tamper with the quality goals of Sterling Vineyards of Calistoga have been allayed; if anything, the Sterling label will become the peak of The Wine Spectrum's holdings.

Fine premium Napa Valley vineyards have been planted already to their choice varietals, Chardonnay, Sauvignon Blanc, Cabernet Sauvignon and Merlot, and handsome aging cellars, filled with the most costly French oak, are in place.

If there is anyone in California who could write a book on the dramatic peaks and perils of the wine industry, it is winemaster Rodney D. Strong of Sonoma Vineyards. Twenty years ago, the slim danseur noble and choreographer of the Lido in Paris and Broadway hits in New York, with ancestral ties to the Rhineland, decided to quit show biz before his "tights got loose," as he colorfully described his decision, to tackle a second career in the California wine country. Most of us learned about him and his wines through the mailbox, with offerings from Tiburon Vintners. Via the route of custom-printed personalized labels under the Windsor Vineyards brand, the tiny tasting-room cellars in Tiburon grew to become the handsome modern architectural monument known as Sonoma Vineyards.

In the '70s, Strong planted some of the finest vineyards of noble varietals extant in the state, notably the Alexander's Crown with Cabernet Sauvignon, River East and River West with Chardonnay and Pinot Noir. The boom of the early '70s experienced the trauma of a bust in '73. There were big losers, but there were also tested survivors. Strong was among them. He had to sell his magnificent Iron Horse Vineyard, which has become an independently fine winery, but he retained 1,600 acres of the finest, now mature and bearing vines. In 1976, Renfield, distributors of Gordon's, Piper-Heidsieck and Haig & Haig, among other famous products, invested substantially in Rod and Charlotte Strong's Sonoma Vineyards, bringing in not only capital, but a first-class distribution network. Crisis solved.

The mailbox network of Strong's charter customers has now swelled to an active six-figure roster for Windsor Vineyards wines. Stores in nearly every state in the nation, and leading restaurants, proudly present Sonoma Vineyard selections, and vie to get their share of the Alexander's Crown Cabernet Sauvignon and River West Chardonnay.

Currently, the mail-order customers are having an opportunity to buy a new collection of choice varietals, each estate-bottled, proudly bearing the "Rodney D. Strong" label. Each of these vintage selections is a no-risk, good-value selection. We've tasted them all, including the fermented-in-this-bottle champagne. All come from those vineyards planted in the '60s, now in prime bearing age, reflecting the winemaster's own well-honed skills. To learn more about them, write: Rodney D. Strong, P.O. Box 789, Windsor, Calif. 95492, or phone (707) 433-6545.

•

IF YOUR WINE MERCHANT sells Sonoma Vineyards wines, help yourself now, while the supply lasts, to the River West Chardonnay 1978 ($7.50). It is superb, and the River East Pinot Noir 1976 ($8), equally elegant with Cote de Nuits translucence and richness. There is a LeBaron Vineyard 1978 Johannesburg Riesling ($8) with seven percent residual sugar, as silky as anything from the Rhineland itself.

At this private tasting, we also previewed the release of the 1976 Alexander's Crown Cabernet Sauvignon ($12). A 100 percent Cabernet, it is rich, already big with the complex scents of black raspberries, reminiscent of First Growth French clarets. For good tasting moments, when a fine champagne is in order, Sonoma Vineyards Cuvee 113 Brut, a blending of 90 percent Chardonnay and 10 percent Pinot Noir, very dry, clean and crisp, at $10 is one of California's premium sparklers.

Financial stardom in California wine country can indeed become a reality. It's not an easy road, nor absolute certainty. It remains for the brave and strong.

Theatre review

Studio Theatre production is a winner

By MARC RIVETTE

FOR THOSE WHO do not remember Alexander Woolcott, there is a drawback to understanding the first act of The Man Who Came to Dinner, now on stage at the Studio Theatre/Restaurant, Carmel.

For the record, Woolcott was one of the wits, along with Dorothy Parker and Robert Benchley, of the Round Table of the Algonquin Hotel in New York. His name was a household word due to his radio program, The Town Crier; his voice was unctuous and one of the best known in America; his wit and personality were waspish; and his influence enormous. It was probably the last time in our history that a literary figure was a national lion. And, in spite of all of Woolcott's faults, the public loved him.

Given such a national figure, playwrights Moss Hart and George S. Kaufman had a tale wherein every line was funny. Though the play is a satire on Woolcott, they painted him three-dimensionally with all his nastiness and his great sentimental and generous side. They also portrayed his enormous power. His words on his radio show could make or break a play or a book. As a consequence, the great and the near-great vied to get close to him.

•

WITH THIS in mind, the opening act is marvelously funny. Sheridan Whiteside "came to dinner" at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Stanley in a small town in Ohio while on a lecture tour. He slips on a piece of ice on their sidewalk, and with monumental self-pity, takes over their house, threatening to sue for $150,000.

The Stanley family is banished from their living and dining room, and even forbidden their own telephone, while Whiteside runs up astronomical phone bills for calls all over the world. It being Christmastime, gifts for him of the most exotic kind clutter up the house.

He takes a liking to the two youngsters of the family, encouraging them to rebel against their parents, who are doing their level best to be nice to him. He tries to break up a romance between his secretary, played artfully by Pat Horsley, and the owner of the town newspaper, exuberantly portrayed by Tom Bender.

Not a very likable fellow, but Jim Webber makes this irascible codger exasperatingly lovable. He has nothing but contempt for the people who try to be nice to him, such as the Stanleys, played obsequiously by Jan Williamson and Arthur Montgomery who are appalled and delighted to have such a distinguished guest in their house. He bullies Florence Mason, who plays his long-suffering nurse, until she finally blows up and unleashes one of the finest speeches of the play.

•

THE PLAY'S CAST is large, calling for 26 characters, which, in this production are alloted to 15 actors. Hence, there is a lot of doubling up. Yeoman service in this was rendered by Robert Tidwell and especially Randy McEndree. The latter's three characters were Professor Adolf Metz, Beverly Carlton, a Noel Coward character, where he sang well, and finally, the Groucho Marx character of Banjo that was one of the hits of the evening.

Other notables were the wispy Harriet Stanley of Laura Converse and the satiric glamor of the actress, Lorraine Sheldon, played by Nita Raichart.

Keeping a large cast coordinated in this zany, screwball comedy is no mean task, and director Marina Curtis was up to it. It bounces along making the most of wild character and lines that are all too seldom seen anymore. And when such a production as this comes along, it is well worth seeing.

The only drawback is that the play's mention of prominent characters reads almost like an obituary. The substitution of more modern names might work, but the fault lies with Hart and Kaufman, who probably did not realize that their play would be around longer than some of the household names they mentioned would.

The Man Who Came to Dinner is staged each Thursday through Sunday. Dinner is served at 7 p.m., with curtain at 8:30; both are one hour earlier on Sunday.

Assembly hopefuls to speak in Monterey Monday

State Assembly candidates for the 28th District seat will attend a public forum sponsored by the Concerned Senior Citizens Monterey Peninsula Club Monday, May 26 in the community room of San Diego Federal Savings and Loan, 316 Alvarado St., Monterey. Everyone is welcome to attend at 1:30 p.m.; there is no charge.

A three-minute opening statement will be presented by the candidates, which will be followed by a question and answer period.

Backgammon

by Alfred Sheinwold

AVOID THE GAMMON

You, White, roll 6-5 in the diagrammed position. How do you play it?

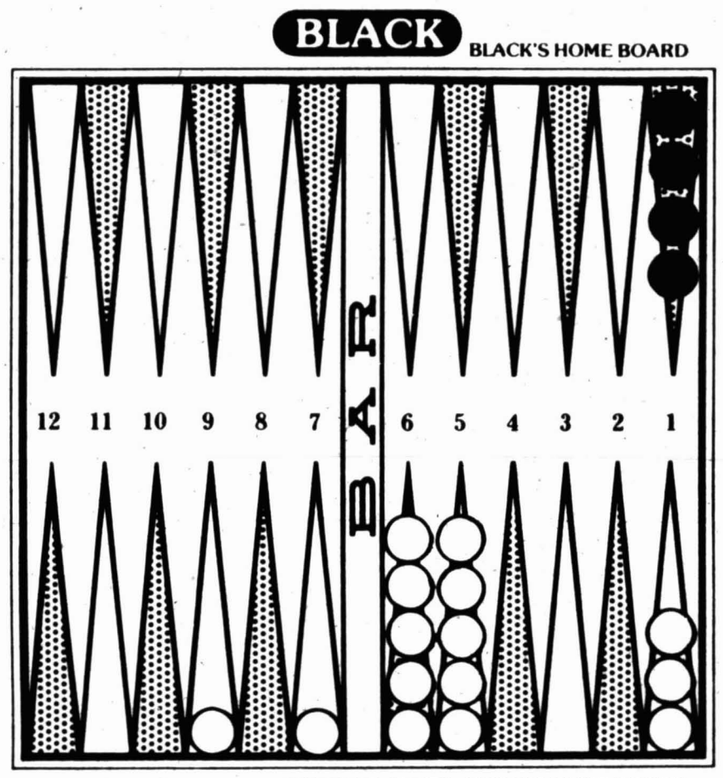

If Black doesn't roll a doublet you will get another roll. You must place your men to have the best chance to bear off if you get that one additional roll.

You are tempted to take the six from your 9-point and the five from your 7-point since this spreads your men out on the largest number of points. But if your next roll is 4-4, nothing comes off; and you are gammoned after all.

The best move is five from your 9-point, landing on your 4-point; and six from your 7-point, piling another man on your 1-point. The position is inelegant, but you will surely bear a man off no matter what your roll at your next turn.

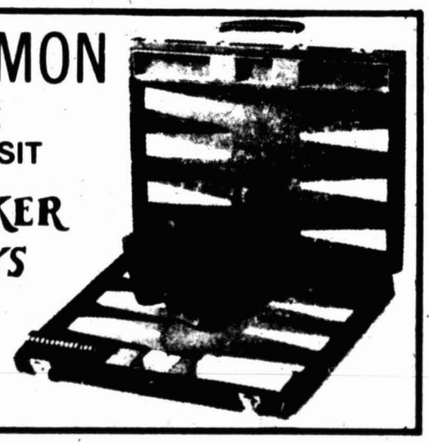

The odds are more than 40 to 1 that you won't get 4-4 at your next roll (if any), but why take even that small risk?

Would you like to have Alfred Sheinwold teach you how to play backgammon? A 12-lesson booklet will be on the way to you when you send 50 cents plus a stamped, self-addressed, No. 10 envelope to Backgammon, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1000, Los Angeles, Calif. 90053.

Soprano to sing in final Music Society concert

Grand prize winner of the 1979 Third Annual Young Artist Competition, soprano Ruth Golden, will present the final concert of the Carmel Music Society's 53rd season Friday, May 23, at the Sunset Theater, Carmel. The program begins at 8 p.m.

A native of Philadelphia, Miss Golden earned her bachelor of arts degree from the University of California, Berkeley, and continued studies with Donald Stenberg, affiliated with the San Francisco Conservatory of Music. She now attends the University of Southern California where she is working on her master's degree in vocal arts.

She has appeared in the San Francisco Bay Area as guest soloist with the Contra Costa Youth Symphony, the Oakland Youth Symphony, the College Opera Association and San Francisco's Gilbert and Sullivan Company.

This season, the young soprano was regional finalist in the San Francisco Opera auditions and a finalist in the Concert Artist Guild Annual Audition conducted in New York City. Among the operatic roles she has performed are Susannah in the Marriage of Figaro; Pamina in The Magic Flute and Despina of Cosi fan Tutte.

Works that Miss Golden will perform include Handel's V'adoro Pupille; Auf einer Wanderung, Gebet and Rat einer Alten by Hugo Wolf; Schubert's Der Hirt auf dem Felsen; and six melodies by Poulenc composed to accompany the poems of Louise de Vilmorin.

Reserved seat tickets, at $4, $4.50 and $5, are available at the door on the evening of the performance or may be reserved by phoning 624-2085.

SOPRANO RUTH GOLDEN, winner of the Carmel Music Society's 1979 Young Artist Competition, will appear in concert Friday, May 23 at Sunset Theater, Carmel. Sponsored by the Music Society, the concert begins at 8 p.m.

Hidden Valley ensemble to stage 'My Fair Lady' this summer

Lerner and Loewe's beguiling musical My Fair Lady will be staged by the Hidden Valley Musical Theatre Ensemble as part of its summer musical theater season beginning July 10.

A touring production of You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown will also be performed during the summer months.

Based on George Bernard Shaw's play Pygmalion, the musical is the story of Eliza Doolittle and her transformation from an illiterate Cockney to an elegant society woman. Among the songs to be performed are Get Me to the Church on Time, A Little Bit of Luck, I've Grown Accustomed to Her Face and I Could Have Danced All Night.

For more information, phone 659-3115.

Carmel man to perform in recital

Mark Burroughs of Carmel will be one of two Monterey Peninsula College voice scholarship winners who will perform in recital Saturday, May 24, at 8:15 p.m. in the Monterey Peninsula College Music Hall, Monterey.

Burroughs, a tenor, will perform three songs by Michael Cordas, an instructor at the Defense Language Institute in Monterey. Accompanist will be Camile Olaeta. Soprano Josephine Zizzo is the other soloist.

Burroughs is a graduate of Carmel High School, where he sang in two honor choirs and received the Bank of America Drama Award. He has been in numerous productions on the Monterey Peninsula and has frequently been a soloist with the MPC Chorus. He is also a soloist and assistant conductor at the All Saints' Episcopal Church in Carmel.

Everyone is welcome to attend at no charge.

For more information, phone the MPC Music Department at 649-1150.

Greek vacations topic of free slide program

Out-of-the-ordinary vacations in Greece will be the topic of a slide/lecture program sponsored by University of California Extension, Santa Cruz. The free program begins at 7 p.m., Thursday, May 22, at the Carmel Art Association, Dolores near Sixth, Carmel.

Guest speakers will be Linda Griggs, a weaver, and poet/novelist Morton Marcus. Both have lived in Greece. Griggs is a faculty member of a folk culture school in Athens; Marcus has studied Greek history and his latest novel is set in Greece. The pair will lead a study tour to Greece this July.

For additional information, phone Lorri Ungaretti at University Extension, (408) 429-2971.

University of California to offer courses here

Learn the art of Gyotaku (Japanese fish printing); explore Elkhorn Slough or Point Lobos; study the music of Bach; or hear psychologist Bruno Bettelheim's thoughts about families at courses to be given in Monterey County this summer by University of California Extension, Santa Cruz.

Among the programs scheduled in Monterey, Carmel and Pacific Grove are two courses for parents and youngsters on Introducing Children and Youth to the Seashore, a seminar on Dealing with Death and Dying, a field course on The Sea Otter, and a Personal Resources Workshop for Professionals.

Puppetry in Education, Concepts of Recovery from Alcoholism, and a management seminar on Data Based Modeling: Case Studies in Management are also offered.

All courses are short. Most meet over one weekend, some over two or three weekdays, while The Music of Bach is scheduled on weeknights. There are no prerequisites, and most courses may be taken for credit.

In addition, natural history and photography courses will take participants to Yosemite, Zion and Bryce National Parks, Kings Canyon, the Colorado Plateau, Alaska and Hawaii.

Details are listed in Perspective, Extension's free summer catalog available by writing to University of California Extension, Santa Cruz, Calif. 95064, or phoning (408) 429-2351.

Friends of Photography plan 1980 Asilomar Workshop

The 1980 Asilomar Workshop, an annual program sponsored by The Friends of Photography, will be conducted July 15-20 by a faculty of contemporary photographers. The workshop is composed of seminars, critiques, discussions, lectures and field sessions that will be presented at the Asilomar Conference Grounds, Pacific Grove, as well as various locations on the Monterey Peninsula.

Workshops will be lead by award-winning photographers Ruth Bernhard, Jo Ann Callis, Henry Gilpin, Bill Owens and Todd Walker.

The works of Bernhard were displayed at the Friends of Photography Gallery in Carmel in 1979, and were published by The Friends in the catalogue Collecting Light. Born in Berlin, Germany, in 1905, she worked as a commercial photographer in both New York and Los Angeles, and after a 1935 meeting with Edward Weston, began her continuing involvement with creative photography.

Callis was the recipient of the Friends 1978 Ferguson Grant and is currently working with color imagery. She earned her undergraduate and graduate degrees in art and photography from UCLA and has taught photography at both the California Institute of the Arts in Valencia and at California State University at Fullerton.

Gilpin has served as an instructor at the Ansel Adams Yosemite Workshop for seven years and has been active in past workshops at The Friends and at other institutions. He has taught at Monterey Peninsula College since 1965.

Owens gained national recognition as a documentary photographer in the early 1970s with the publication of his book Suburbia, which paired photographs of his suburban neighbors with their comments. His work has been exhibited at the Oakland Museum, the Focal Gallery in San Francisco, and the Neikrug Gallery in New York City, and has also been shown widely in Europe. He is currently working in color and in black-and-white, documenting American leisure activities.

Walker has established a reputation as a teacher and innovative contemporary photographer. His creative work has explored a broad spectrum of photographic media, including silver prints, hand-pulled offset prints, and self-published books, in addition to more than 130 multi-color, limited-edition photographic silk-screen prints. He received grants from the National Foundation for the Arts in 1971, and the Florida Council of the Arts in 1976.

Tuition for the five-day workshop is $295. Enrollment is limited and applications must be received by July 1 and accompanied by full payment or by a deposit of $100. Full payment is due July 1.

The cost of room-and-board at Asilomar during the workshop — five nights and 14 meals — is $150 for double occupancy, and $200 for single occupancy. Individual meals may be purchased on the grounds by those not staying at Asilomar. A grounds-fee of $2 per day is charged by Asilomar to workshop students staying elsewhere.

For additional information, phone 624-6330.

Art workshop slated June 4-6 at Sunset Center

Carmel artist Deborah Amaral will lead a three-day art workshop Wednesday through Friday, June 4-6, in room 10 of Sunset Center, Carmel. Classes continue from 9 a.m.-4 p.m. each day.

Expressionist florals which are done with a knife is one of the techniques that will be taught. Upon completion of the workshop, individuals will have three paintings finished.

The registration fee for the three-day workshop is $50.

For more information, phone 625-5113 or 649-4674.

Salmon feast to benefit Carmel High Scholarship fund

The sixth annual Salmon Feast sponsored by the Carmel Kiwanis Club is planned Wednesday, May 28 at the Pernille Restaurant, Sixth and San Carlos, Carmel. Dinner continues from 5-8:30 p.m.

Fresh-caught salmon and all the trimmings will be served by members of the Carmel Kiwanis who will act as waiters, bus boys and wine stewards.

Restaurateur and Kiwanis member Fred Fozounmayeh has donated the use of his restaurant for the feed to raise funds for college scholarships that will be awarded to Carmel High School seniors.

Tickets, at $5, are available from Carmel Kiwanis members.

For further information, phone 624-4887.

Father Farrell's Wisdom

Balance your life with a sense of humor

By THE REV. LARRY FARRELL

For a number of years I have been an ardent fan of a gal who is not an actress nor a movie star, but a loyal wife and devoted mother. She's one of the rarest of women, a professional humorist in the American tradition of Mark Twain and Will Rogers.

Many women are funny without trying; she tries and succeeds. The object of my devotion is my friend Erma Bombeck, who has just published the largest first edition ever to go to press, 600,000 copies titled Aunt Erma's Cope Book.

When she joined the fight for E.R.A. (the Equal Rights Amendment), I felt she might lose her sense of humor but when an uncommitted gal asked her why she stumped for the E.R.A. when women are already superior to men, she said, "I want it in writing; inscribed in the Constitution. The feminists threw a war and they forgot to invite the housewives. My aim in life is to communicate with the greatest number of people and make them laugh at themselves."

O Lord, help us to keep our sense of values and our sense of humor. May we have the wisdom of Erma and her predecessor, Will Rogers, who said, "Don't fret too much. Try to laugh a little especially at yourself. Live your life so you won't be afraid to sell the family parrot to the town gossip."

Finally, if a Rotarian thinks for one minute that he understands women then he has it timed just about right.

OBITUARIES

Robert Cairns

Robert C. Cairns, 92, of Pacific Grove, formerly a Carmel resident for many years, died Friday, May 16, in Eskaton Monterey Hospital.

He was born in Devil's Lake, N.D. He attended Northwestern University in Evanston, Ill., and in 1917 he moved to Modesto where he owned and operated a grocery store until his retirement in 1941.

During World War, II, Mr. Cairns was chief clerk in Modesto for the Office of Price Administration. In 1950, he moved to Carmel where he built a home on Torres Street near 10th Avenue. He had lived at Forest Hill Manor in Pacific Grove since 1973.

Mr. Cairns leaves no survivors. His wife, Alma, died in 1972.

Memorial services were planned at the Community Church of the Monterey Peninsula, of which Mr. Cairns was a charter member.

Cremation will be held at the Little Chapel by-the-Sea in Pacific Grove, with the Paul Morturary in charge of arrangements.

Friends suggest that any contributions may be made to the Community Church of the Monterey Peninsula.

Frances Strong

Frances R. Strong, 80, of Del Mesa Carmel, sister of Doc Ricketts of Cannery Row fame, died May 13 in Community Hospital.

She was born in Chicago, came to the Peninsula in 1926 and helped her brother establish his Cannery Row laboratory. Ricketts was featured in John Steinbeck's novels.

She leaves her husband, Fred G. Strong, and a brother, Thayer H. Ricketts of Waco, Texas.

Private family services will be held later. Cremation was at the Little Chapel by-the-Sea in Pacific Grove. Inurnment will be at Monterey City Cemetery.

Paul Mortuary was in charge of arrangements.

Bette Graham

Bette Claire Graham, a part-time Carmel resident who invented "Liquid Paper," died May 12 in Richardson, Texas.

She is the mother of Michael Nesmith, a former member of the Monkees rock group and currently president of Pacific Arts Corp., a record and television production company based in Carmel.

Mrs. Graham made in her kitchen the fluid now commonly used for covering typewriting errors, and formed her own marketing company to sell it in 1956.

She retired as president of Liquid Paper Corp., the company which marketed the bottles of white paint equipped with a tiny brush, in 1968. She sold her remaining stock last November, when the company was bought by Gillette Co. for $47.5 million.

Raymond Johnson

Raymond Glenn Johnson, 61, a retired Army colonel, died May 11 in Community Hospital.

He was born in Caldwell, Ohio. He retired in 1970 after 34 years service, including duty in World War II, Korea and Vietnam. He came to Carmel 12 years ago.

He was born in Caldwell, Ohio. He retired in 1970 after 34 years' service, including duty in World War II, Korea and Vietnam. He came to Carmel 12 years ago.
was a 32nd Degree Mason.

He leaves his wife, Willfried, of Carmel; a daughter, Joy Wolherman of Reynoldsburg, Ohio; a son, Stephen Johnson of Columbus, Ohio; a sister, Helen Conway of Phoenix; five grandchildren and a great-grandchild.

Services were held in the Little Chapel by-the-Sea, with an Army chaplain officiating.

Paul Mortuary was in charge.

The family has requested that memorial contributions be made to Community Hospital.

"FAIR OF FACE and FULL OF GRACE"
Carmel

A treasury of ample spaces and traditional charms, this lovingly maintained two-story house with convenient circular drive represents all we think of when we say "home." Gracious living, creature comforts, flexible floor plan and privacy! On the upper level; a beamed ceiling living room with marble framed fireplace and sliding glass doors to a sunny enclosed patio full of colorful potted plants and shrubs (most of which will stay); two bedrooms, 1½ baths; formal dining room; country kitchen and marvelous old fashioned pantry. Two more bedrooms, bath and immense sitting room with fireplace and separate entrance complete the ground level. Closet space galore, huge laundry/sewing room, skylights, two furnaces, and easy walking proximity to town and beach, are some of the goodies that come with this eminently livable house, which is also one that lends itself to elegance of decor. Casanova and Fourth. Gerry Hopkins or Lucretia Butler. $272,500.

Interest rates are down but they are nowhere near 9¾% and they probably won't be in the near future—if ever again.

This lovely two-year-old home has just such a loan on it; $120,000 at that low rate. The owner might consider a small second loan. It is possible that you could get into prideful ownership of this beautiful and immaculate home for as little as $65,000 down by picking up the first loan and getting a second from the seller. Try to get this quality, location, condition, and size for that money elsewhere around here.

Featured in this delightful home are three bedrooms, two baths, dining room, large kitchen, living room with huge stone fireplace, double garage, patio, and oak-covered hillside. It all comes just moments from shopping and a short distance to downtown Carmel. Quiet cul-de-sac living.

This livable, lovely home is offered at the unbelievably low Carmel price of $199,500.

CARMEL OFFERINGS

CARMEL BY THE BEACH and not far from downtown either. You can have this gorgeous, two-year-old classic Mediterranean beauty that features three bedrooms, den, living room, dining room, double garage and 3½ baths. Oversized Carmel lot with delightful garden setting. $525,000.

CARMEL IN THE CANYON on the lower reaches of Carmel Views is this two-year-young immaculate three-bedroom and two-bath family home just waiting for its new owners to enjoy its oak-covered serene environment. Living room, separate dining room, huge kitchen, and double garage complete the setting. Large assumable loan and asking only $199,500.

CARMEL VALLEY ON THE HILLSIDE In the Los Tulares section of the Valley is one of the more unique homes currently on the local market. Designed for a couple, it features two bedrooms of truly heroic size, three baths, a kitchen as large as many living rooms and a combined living-dining room that Henry VIII would have been comfortable in. It is topped with its very own "Tower"—there's Henry, eyeing the French in the distance. $525,000.

It's a Buyer's Real Estate Market

The market is a set of arrangements for bringing together buyers and sellers. When demand exceeds supply at the current price, price tends to advance. When supply exceeds demand at the current price, price tends to decline. Also, when there is an advance in price, the cost of money and interest rates, demand is reduced and the supply of real estate is increased.

The present shortage of mortgage money, current high interest rate has changed our real estate market to a buyer's market.

So what does this mean to you?

1. For the investment buyer it's the best time to buy, better terms are available from the seller and prices are soft.

2. If you're looking for your first home many sellers will help with financing your home with low down payment and good interest rates.

3. If you are looking for a new home, interest rates are dropping; presently available for those who qualify is 12¼% yearly interest (APR) on 30-year owner-occupied home loans plus 2 points and $200 up to a maximum of $150,000.

Villa Favorita

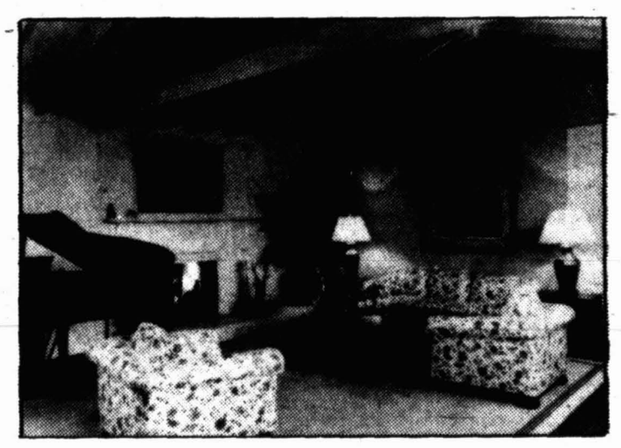

An extended, semi-circular, walled drive sweeps up to this spectacular 44-year-old home. A magnificent balcony, 6 bays wide, supported by 25 carved beams, spreads above the entrance and looks down on the parking plaza and out across the trees to the Valley, the Santa Lucia Mountains and the sea.

The entrance is a paneled colonial door flanked by carriage lamps, framed by Doric pilasters and a carved pediment. On this lower level are (a) the tiled entrance hall, (b) the outsized 2 car garage, (c) a charming rumpus room with 4 built-in bunks, a raised fireplace, beamed and planked ceiling, carpeted floors and (d) a decorative small bath with shower. The playroom is 20 x 25 and seems cozy!

A circular colonial stair rises from the entrance hall to the second level. This 2 story well is a miniature cathedral with great stained glass window, octagonal shape and planked ceiling. At the top a hall opens through double doors to the balcony. Or you can turn right toward, the 3 bedrooms and tremendous 3-room bath complex. The latter looks toward the hills and sea, and a mirrored ceiling gives one the odd feeling it goes up and up. Other mirrors add to the illusion.

Bedrooms are either plank-walled or finished with heavy vinyl paper. All are carpeted, all have plank ceilings, one has a charming corner fireplace.

A left turn at the top of the stair brings you into the cathedral beamed living room: deepset picture window facing south, virginal white fireplace on the north wall, spacious shelves all about, and extraordinary floors of straight grain random planks stained a cedar red. Beyond this is an enormous, tile-floored solarium: beamed ceilings again, the other side of the stained glass window, 3 skylights, and glass wall opening to a gigantic brick patio with space for all kinds of outdoor living.

The kitchen occupies the east side, a long pullman style spanning the house: breakfast nook toward the south, glass door to patio on the north, tiled walls, oak floors, butcher block counters, Jenn-Air range and stainless steel appliances.

There are dozens of "touches". Surprise closets, cabinets galore, custom made brass hardware, many deepset windows with window seats, shutters, woodwork one seldom finds, mirrored doors, cedar-lined closet. There's a 3rd bath off the back bedroom, which also opens to the solarium.

This splendid home sits on more than ½ acre which slopes down to Hatton Road. The number is 25855. The price is $479,500.

Lone Cypress Point

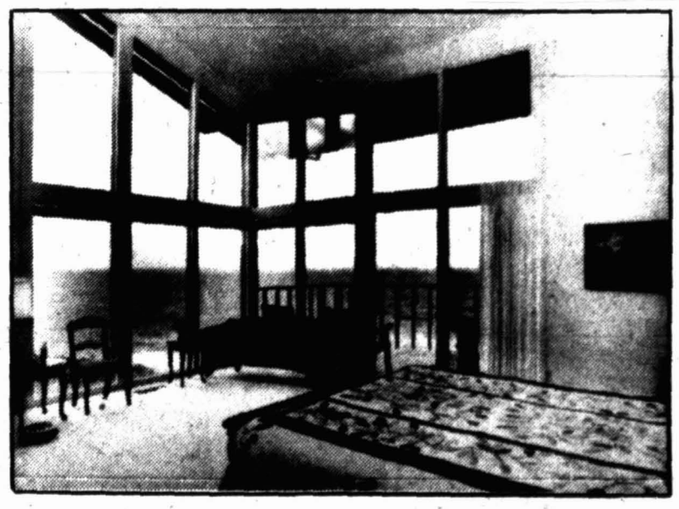

Surf, sunsets, sea otters, spouting whales, also the sea shimmering in sunshine, mysterious in moonlight, are beguilements in this shake-roofed, redwood home, architect-adapted to Lone Cypress Point, its seagirt two-acre site on the coast 12 miles south of Carmel.

Below a dramatic entry, the living room has a stone fireplace flanked by bookcases and cabinets as well as window walls framing view and opening to decks, one of them off the formal dining room and kitchen, the second extending past the master bedroom suite.

The capacious country kitchen features a woodburning stove in its sitting area, a breakfast bar, movable butcher block island, counters with handpainted tile insets, custom cabinets, quality electric appliances. Off it are two pantries, a laundry room and bathroom.

The sound of the sea is a lullaby in the master bedroom suite with compartmented bath/dressing area enhanced with artist-designed tiles. In a second suite opening to a third deck are two more rooms and bathroom. Other assets of this handsome home, built about an entrance courtyard and guarded by a security system, are a double garage with electric door control and storage loft; low-care and natural landscaping. Restrictions controlling building along the Big Sur Coast grow ever more prohibitive, increase the value of this home and its superb seacoast site. $750,000.

Howard Jarvis to speak here on Prop. 9

Howard Jarvis, co-author of Proposition 13, a property tax initiative passed in 1979 that reduced the homeowner's tax burden, will speak on Proposition 9 on Saturday, May 24 at the Rancho Canada Golf Club, located on Carmel Valley Road, Carmel. No-host cocktails will be served at 4 p.m., with the speech to begin at 5.

Sponsored by the Monterey Taxpayers Association, the program will focus on the tax initiative that, if passed in June, will cut income tax rates by half.

Jarvis, a crusty real estate lobbyist, claims that the passage of Prop. 9 will finish what Prop. 13 began, by trimming the remaining fat from government.

According to analysts, Prop. 9 will cut $271 from a middle income ($25,000) family of four's tax bill, with a single person making $1 million a year saving more than $50,000.

Government revenues may be cut by up to 25 percent. Tickets are $5.

For reservations, phone 375-4540, or Bob Brown at 624-8693.

Japanese and French cooking planned Saturday at Barnyard

Tempting Oriental, as well as French recipes, will be revealed this weekend at the Cook's Club demonstration at the Peppercorn in The Barnyard, Highway 1 and Rio Road, Carmel. Everyone is welcome to attend at no charge.

Japan's best known dishes, sushi and tempura, will be prepared Saturday, May 24 from noon-3 p.m.; quiche will be baked from 10 a.m.-noon and 1-3 p.m.

For more information, phone 625-0100.

When you choose a gift, let it be memorable!

How often does someone you love graduate, marry or achieve recognition? When that moment arrives, and you offer your love and best wishes . . . let your gift be memorable. Choose a gift that will be cherished for all time. And for just such a gift come to the Plaza in Carmel.

At the Chainery Too you can buy or sell gold, silver, coins, watches, jewelry and unusual chains of many types. Choose an exquisite heirloom piece or add to some loved one's collection from this great variety.

Contempo's dramatic sterling silver orchid with a touch of 14K gold, on a silk cord, was created by Gretchen Schomp. The ornamental neckpiece, shown with matching earrings, is just one of their outstanding pieces of contemporary sterling silver and 14K gold jewelry.

Goldsmith's Jewelers have a superb selection of Rolex, Omega, Seiko, Bulova and Citizen watches. This matching set aptly named "The President" is by Swiss watchmaker Rolex. In 18K gold, they are a magnificent pair! The ladies watch also shows the date; the gents, day and date.

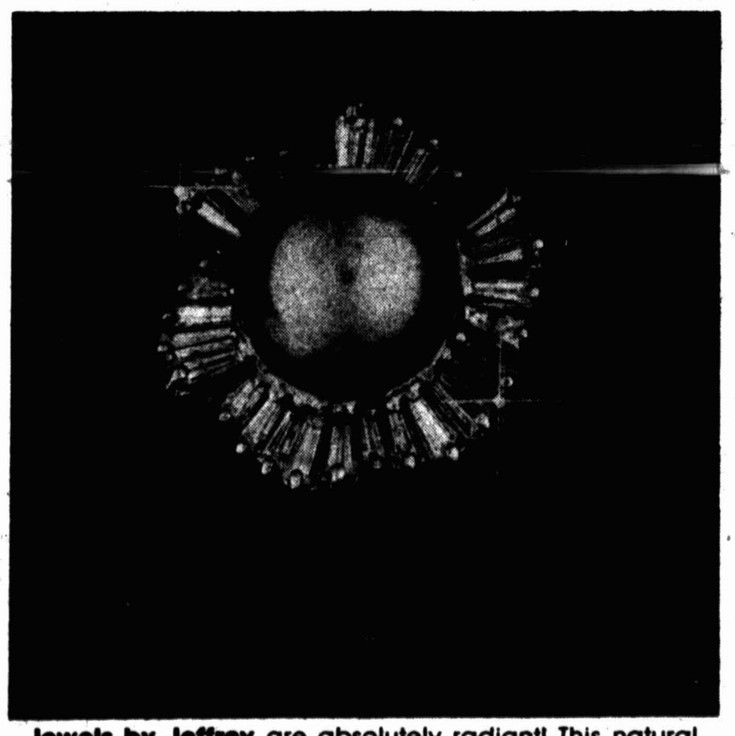

Designer Originals offers fine custom work, all on approval. You'll find investment gems: rubies, sapphires, topaz and tourmalines and their specialty, green garnets. Shown above is a mid-1800 Russian cameo cut from a shell . . . a fabulous collectable!

The Chainery sells most 14K gold Italian chain necklaces, bracelets and anklets by weight. You'll see fashionable chains from 15" to 32" and an interesting selection of pins, earrings, charms and pendants to match.

Sun Studios' matching wedding rings are of 14K gold. This simple, elegant set includes a brilliant cut 1.12 carat diamond on one of the rings, which may be worn by either partner. Come see other unique designs created by local artisans exclusively for Sun Studios.

Jewels by Jeffrey are absolutely radiant! This natural Burmese golden south sea pearl is surrounded by 1.55 carats in baquette diamonds set in an 18K gold ring. For other fine originals, see Jewels by Jeffrey.

Spencers Carmel is more than a stationery store

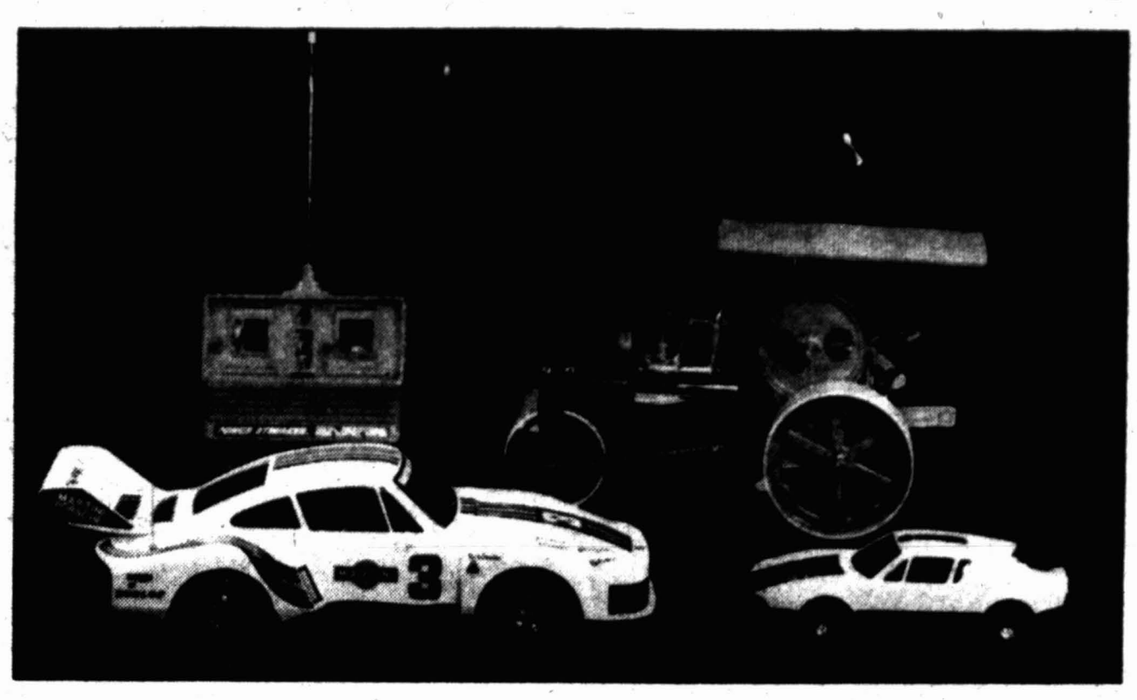

COLLECTIBLES are richly displayed at Spencers Carmel, on Ocean Avenue between Dolores and Lincoln, Carmel, an establishment which has served Carmel residents and visitors since 1936.

Fine giftware includes Boy with Flute, a porcelain figure created by Lladro of Valencia, Spain. Herend has crafted a handpainted porcelain tray with scalloped edges and a baking dish. Imported from Hungary, the pieces are ornamented with the Rothschild bird pattern.

In addition, dinnerware at Spencers Carmel includes porcelain creations by Fitz and Floyd and Wilton Armetale. Bing and Grondahl craft Copenhagen porcelain in their famous blue and white figurines and jewelry.

Crane's stationery offers custom prints and engraving for wedding invitations, graduation announcements and other occasions.

Spencers will happily giftwrap your package at no charge and ship it anywhere.

Hobbyists find a haven at Trains 'n' Things

TRAVEL FROM the world of steam power to electric energy at Trains 'n' Things, a Hobby Shop, located on the third level of Carmel Plaza, Ocean Avenue between Mission and Junipero, Carmel.

Hobbyists will be intrigued by a moving steam-powered tractor. The boiler must be filled with water before dry fuel is lit underneath. As the water heats, the resulting steam drives the tractor forward. Those who prefer speed will be enthralled by the radio controlled Porsche 935. Fully proportioned (control over direction and speed), the race car has five functions, forward-reverse, left-right, and stand.

In addition, the hobby shop displays seven scales and gauges of electric trains ranging from G, the largest, which is scaled 1" to 22.5", to Z, the smallest, scaled 1" to 220". Others are 0 scale, Line L, HO, Marklin HO and N scale, plus all accessories.

Youngsters will be fascinated by plastic models that can be easily glued or snapped together as well as strategy games.

Timeless treasures at Art Intrigues

THERE IS NO BETTER time than graduation to purchase fine artwork for loved ones. Paintings are truly one of the few timeless treasures.

Year of the Child is a rendering by local artist Ruth Hickok Schubert, displayed at Art Intrigues, in the American Tin Cannery Mall, 125 Ocean View Blvd., Pacific Grove. Winner of first prize at the Monterey County Fair watercolor competition, Schubert earned honors with distinction at San Jose State University and has studied at the Chicago Art Institute.

Nearly 20 artists are represented at the gallery. Among them are Van Waldron, an Impressionist whose works include depictions of Cannery Row, fishing schooners and Fisherman's Wharf, and Des Matthews, a California artist and teacher who works with charcoal, ink, pastel, collage and acrylics. Displayed at the gallery are Matthews' two-dimensional, earthy still lifes done on masonite.

Each artist represents a distinct media that promises the art buyer an extensive collection to suit discerning tastes.

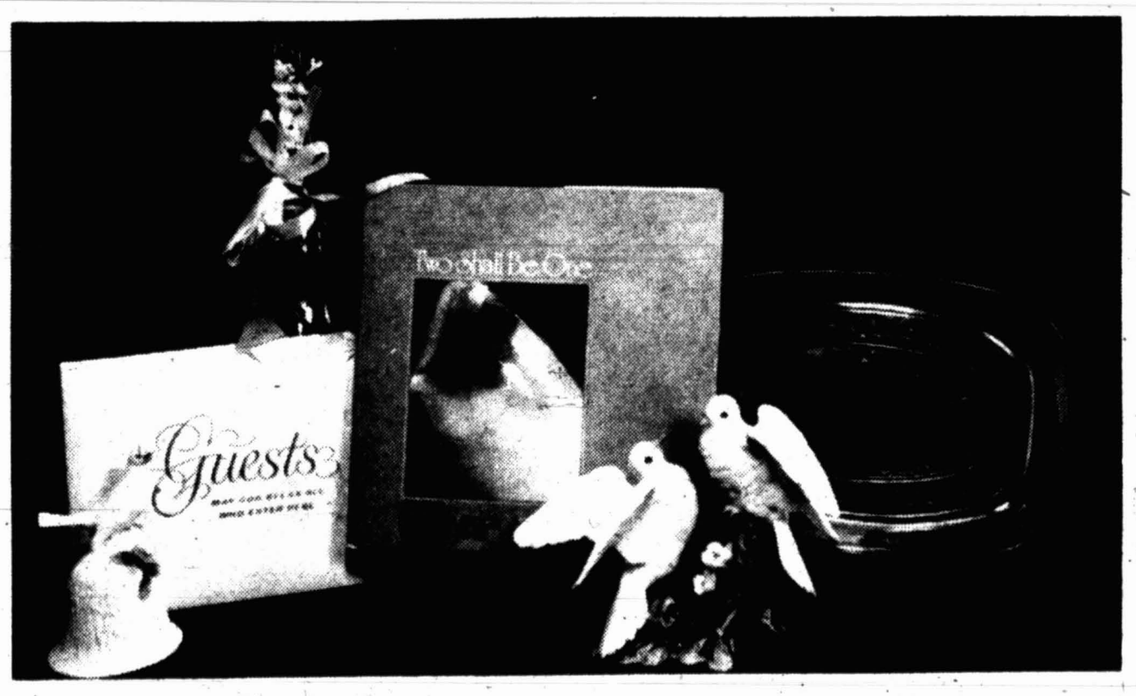

Step into shoes at Carmel Casual Shoe Co.

STEP INTO day and evening shoes at the Carmel Casual Shoe Co. on the corner of San Carlos and Seventh, where you will find Mia finely crafted Brazilian footwear. All-leather sandals with fashionable fish-mouth toes (center) are accented by stunning stacked heels. Slip into Mia slides (left) with comfortable low heels or pumplike designs, again with stacked heels for walking comfort.

Everybody loves Hush Puppies, those justly famous casual shoes for men and women, and the Carmel Casual Shoe Co. is Hush Puppy headquarters. The men's department offers an extensive line of casual walking shoes and new designer look styles that are just as comfortable as the classics.

Seafaring men will like the look of Sperry Topsiders, the all-leather sailor shoe. From Santa Cruz, a handmade sandal that is as durable as it is wearable, has arrived. Leather and a special fiber combine to mold to the contours of an individual's feet. In the athletic shoe department Osaga KT-26, a five-star running shoe, is displayed.

If walking about town is your thing, then Carmel Shoe Co. has just the style for you.

Visit Kingdom Come for inspirational needs

A MOST APPROPRIATE store for the bride-to-be is Kingdom Come in the Carmel Rancho Center, Highway 1 and Rio Road, Carmel, where non-denominational Christian items abound.

Perfect for every reception is a guestbook (above) with the inscription, "May God bless all who enter here"; a handcrafted crystal bell is delicately etched on the outside; below, a bird is perched on a fine bone china bell; an inspirational book, titled Two Shall Be One, offers letters to a bride-to-be by Ruth Calkin; fine bone china doves are a lovely gift to a newlywed; or surprise a bride with a pewter tray inscribed with a line from the Lord's Prayer.

Bibles are always an appropriate gift.

Kingdom Come also presents the amazing Musi-Ques system, which allows customers to preview records and tapes before purchasing them and the Musical Accompaniment Library System, which provides recorded background music for musicians and singers.

Parties sparkle when catered by Dilli Deli

JUST AS JUNE evokes visions of weddings, so do trays brimming with taste treats remind one of the fun that follows at receptions. At the Dilli Deli, located on the corner of Ocean and Monte Verde, catering services for large parties as well as intimate gatherings are offered.

More than 15 years of experience is drawn upon each time the Dilli Deli caters a celebration. In addition to impressively arranged cheeses and meats, the caterers will create an atmosphere in accord with each customer's desires. In short, everything that promises to make your party a stunning success will be capably handled.

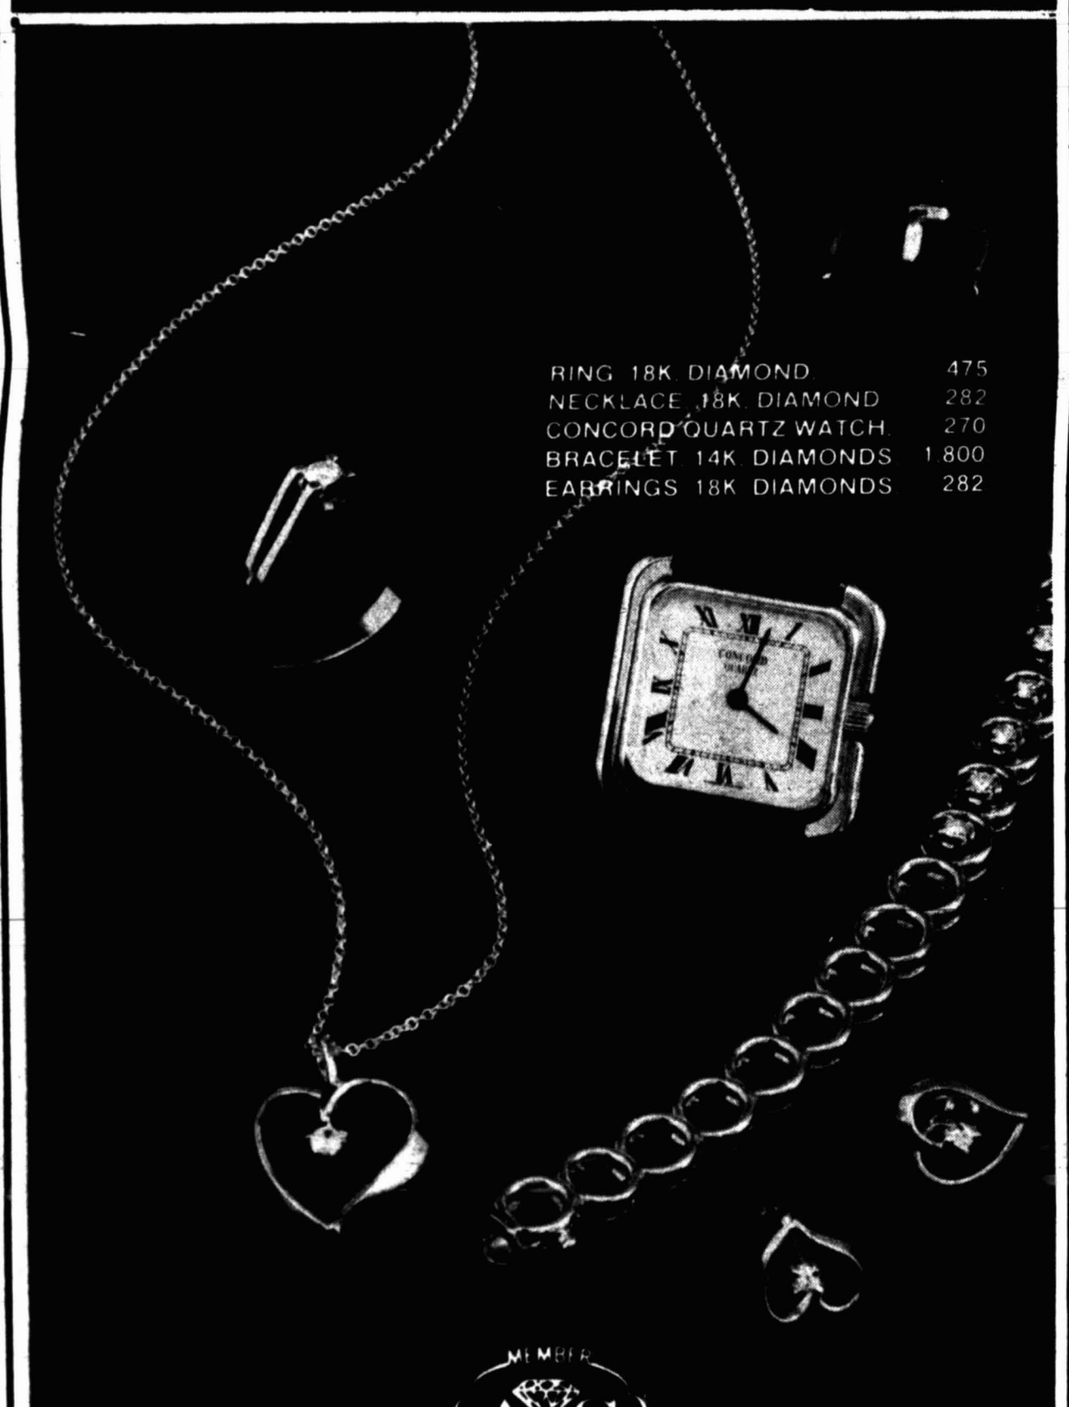

The Dilli Deli is also a delicatessen. Hearty appetites will be satisfied with the large proportions of each of the 30 made-to-order sandwiches available from 9 a.m.-8 p.m. Monday through Saturday and Sunday from 9 a.m.-6 p.m.

Try a California Classic (avocado, sprouts, tomato and Jack cheese) or a Slim Jim. An assortment of breads are available.

Great gourmet serving utensils

FOLKS WHO LOVE to entertain at home appreciate gourmet serving utensils. At the Cheese Shop in Carmel Plaza, on Ocean Avenue between Mission and Junipero, Carmel, glazed ceramic fondue pots made by Swiss craftsmen are displayed in decorator colors and designs. Pre-cracked for use on stoves and in ovens, the fondues are used to create a variety of tantalizing taste treats. A rechaud or heater is also available. From Gourmet-Topf comes a clay crock for wine chilling and a clay butter plate, designed to keep butter fresh.

New at the Cheese Shop is a coffee section that displays gourmet coffee-making accessories, perfect for gifting or your own at-home pleasure.

The Cheese Shop promises a personalized gift selection that allows customers to choose from nearly 400 cheeses, wines, culinary tools, coffees and more, all of which can be carefully gift-wrapped and shipped anywhere.

Give a Calvin Klein sportcoat

EUROPEAN CUT IS the hallmark of Calvin Klein sport coats handsomely displayed at the New Englander, on Dolores just south of Ocean, Carmel. Calvin Klein has blended silk, cotton and linen to create a muted two-tone blazer. The designer also fashions a knit tie worn with a St. Piel all-silk shirt.

Perfect for Father's Day gifts or summer occasions are the New Englander men's fashions in classic styles with special flair. From Israel come softest Begedor leather blazers, while Sculli leathers are American-made.

For summer, Bensol of Scotland weaves 100 percent lightweight wool slacks in classic lines. MacKintosh suits and sport coats are also displayed in tweedy weaves that will take their wearers from summer through fall.

Always a favorite gift is a LaCoste polo shirt for comfort, or classic cashmeres in V- and crew necks.

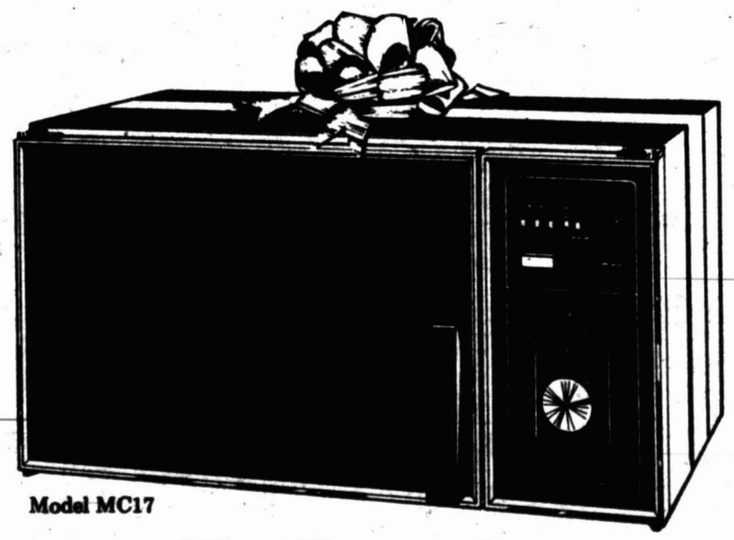

T-shirts of every description

T-SHIRTS IN EVERY shape and size can be emblazoned with colorful scenics and logos at Whale of a Shirt located in the Redwood Court on Mission between Ocean and Seventh, Carmel.

Customers can watch sportswear and T-shirts being silk-screened right on the spot. In fact, you don't even have to be a customer to come in and watch. T-shirt styles include tank tops and French cuts that can be imprinted with designs ranging from Carmel sunsets, gray whales, butterflies and sea otters to images of joggers and skiers. Every print displayed at Whale of a Shirt is exclusive, thus the same design will not be found at similar shops.

All silk screens are created using a special vinyl base ink that, when dried using infrared heaters, can be washed again and again without losing its vivid colors. And, Whale of a Shirt promises quality fabrics that will not shrink.

Appliances make great gifts

SUMMER THIS YEAR may include plans to remodel your house for a stay-at-home vacation. Peninsula Built-ins, 2004 Sunset Drive, Pacific Grove, displays kitchen and laundry appliances to suit every need as well as an array of gifting ideas for June weddings.

A Thermidor Micro-wave oven will give harried chefs more leisure time as roasts, stews and casseroles are quickly cooked. Remodelers will delight in butcher block tables that add an elegant yet utilitarian touch of kitchen convenience. A skewer for meats, a silver platter to serve gourmet delights and knives by Chicago Cutlery are a must for every kitchen.

Celebrating 20 years in the area, Peninsula Built-ins promises a relaxing atmosphere where shoppers are assured of friendly service by husband and wife Allan and Zelma Weinfield. Careful instructions are given on the use of each appliance, whether it is a free-standing stove by Hotpoint, Kitchen Aid or Chambers, or a Maytag washer and dryer.

Dresses for memorable evenings

THE JUNIOR—SENIOR prom happens but once a year. At Linda Jane in the American Tin Cannery Mall, 125 Ocean View Blvd., Pacific Grove, shimmering long dresses and lacey romantic creations promise a memorable evening.

Joy Stevens has created a red caresse crepe Qiana in a shoulder-flattering V-neck with gathers. A cool jade tone is also designed from Selesta polyester by Joy Stevens that shimmers and moves with its wearer.

Also at Linda Jane are sportswear perfect for daytime fun. Coordinating blazers, pants and skirts fashioned in khaki and white from pure cotton by Fay's Closet.

Terrycloth dresses offer cool comfort for summer. A white background provides a canvas for bold orchid prints or whimsical wild birds. Crepe dresses and tops are a tropical paradise when fashioned with images of wild animals.

Sundresses for warmer days as well as terry dresses with a V-cut back and belted at the waist are sure to catch a man's eye.

The luxury of 100% goose down

SURROUND YOURSELF in the luxury of a comforter made of 100 percent pure white goose down, available at two locations on the Monterey Peninsula—Down by Bugaboo in The Barnyard, Highway 1 and Rio Road, Carmel, and Bugaboo Mountaineering, 170 Central Ave., Pacific Grove.

A tightly woven down-proof fabric encases the high-quality feathers. Channelled baffled construction is the most efficient and versatile, for it prevents cold spots while allowing the down to be shifted to another area of the comforter by warm sleepers. The down is guaranteed for the life of the product. Sizes for twin, double, queen and king size beds are available and custom orders, even for round water beds, are happily filled.

At Down by Bugaboo, comforter covers are created in fabrics to enhance your decor and protect the handcrafted bedwarmer.

Each handmade down creation by Bugaboo promises the ultimate in comfort and long wear.

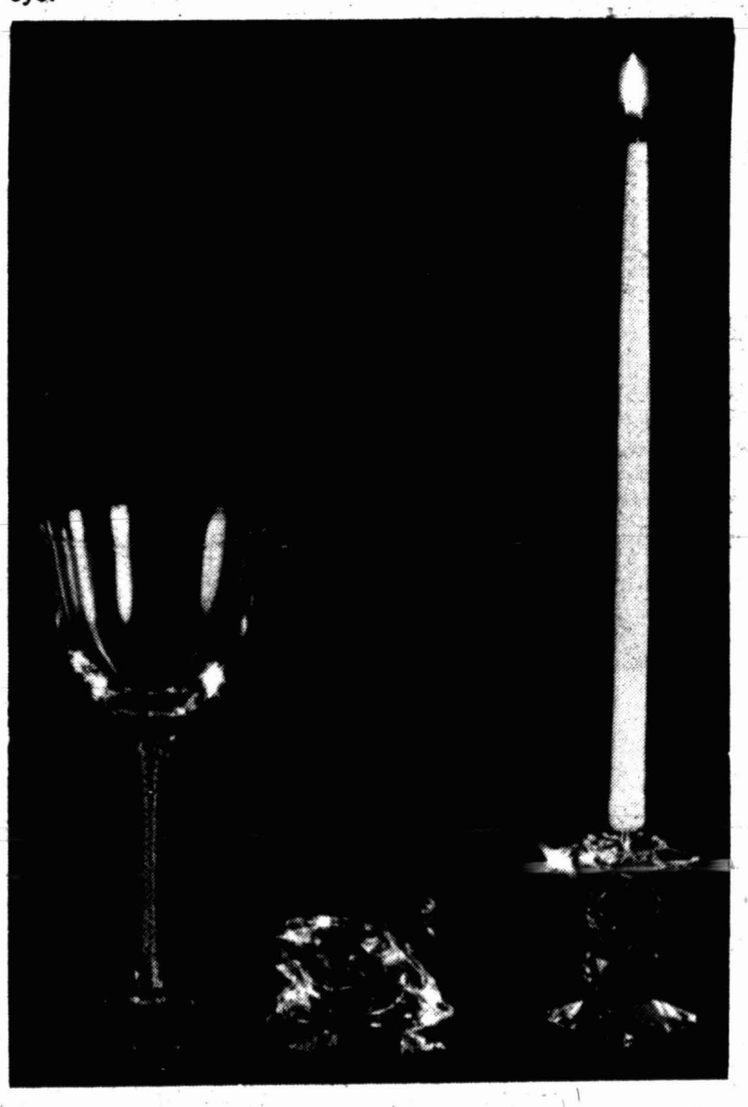

Gifts for tennis buffs

ATHLETES WILL MAKE a smash on the courts when wearing La Font tennis wear from Italy, displayed at Body and Sole in the American Tin Cannery Mall, 125 Ocean View Blvd., Pacific Grove. La Font has designed a matching short and sports shirt in classic tennis white with navy trim. A special feature is the waist band devised to hold a towel folded in the top. Nike Wimbledon shoes and Adidas socks sustain the fast pace.

Body and Sole has welcomed summer in expanded and remodeled headquarters. Its extensive tennis wear line includes Fred Perry and Paul Sullivan designs. For women, Aileen tailors cool shorts and tops, while Cal Sport offers separates for men and women.

Tennis comfort is not complete without perfect shoes created by Nike, Adidas, New Balance, Brooks, K-Swiss and Tretorn. Lotto, a racquetball specialty shoe, is also offered.

Don't forget your racquet needs restringing and the big game is coming soon. Body and Sole promises one-day service.

Glassware everyone wants

REFLECTIONS OF ELEGANCE are promised at Light Opera in Carmel Plaza, on Ocean Avenue between Junipero and Mission, Carmel. An extensive glassware collection from around the world includes (above) wine goblets by Ceska of Czechoslovakia. Ceska's Rhapsody design is marked by a breathtaking air twist stem.

From Austria comes a swan candleholder by Swarovski Silver Crystal.

Made of 32 percent full lead crystal, a menagerie of mini-glass animals by Swarovski includes owls, mice, birds, ducks and bunnies that measure one inch high.

An extensive collection of blown glass works by California artisans is also displayed. Irridescent glass is used to create stunning vases, stemware and paperweights.

Brides-to-be will be happy to note that Light Opera offers a bridal registry for stemware and will special order selections to their satisfaction.

Silks and wools in Carmel

A FASHION SPELL is woven around beautiful silk collections for women and classic men's sportswear in lightweight wools and silks for summer at the Woolen Mill, on San Carlos between Fifth and Sixth, Carmel.

Carol Little for Saint Tropez West has designed a pure silk dress that captures the spirit of an oriental painting: chrysanthemums are delicately brushed across the weave. A blouson top flows into a straight skirt with buttons on the shoulder and down the side that can be conservatively fastened for business and alluringly undone for dancing the night away.

The Saint Tropez collection of silk at the Woolen Mill also includes exquisitely tailored blouses with short and long sleeves accented with a notched collar and worn with double-pleated slacks of raw nubby silk. Stunning floral prints and brilliant solids complete a look of sheer elegance.

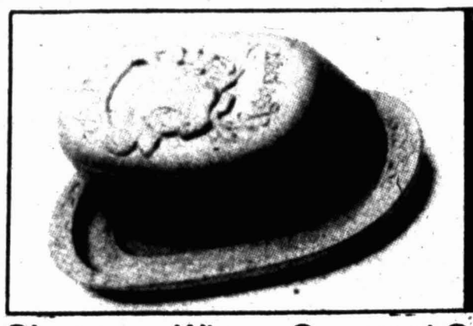

Women will also enjoy the classic Stanley Blacker suit collection as well as preppie style blouses by Hathaway and Eagle.

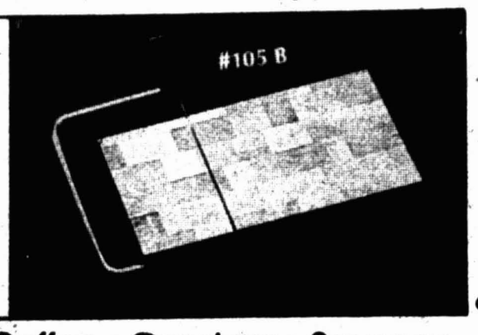

Anyway you slice it- you can't help but delight your special someone with a

Gifts for well-dressed gentlemen

CUT A DASHING figure at all the special summer occasions in fashions from Gentlemen's Quarters in Carmel Plaza, Ocean Avenue between Mission and Junipero, Carmel. A burlap textured all-silk blazer by Givenchy is worn (above) over a cotton open knit sweater designed by Gianfranco Ruffini and an easy-care cotton blend shirt by Pierre Cardin. Perfectly paired is the summer-weight wool slack by Van Gils of Belgium that is subtly pleated to add flair. An Italian silk tie designed for Gentlemen's Quarters completes the ensemble.

The elegant men's boutique offers a refreshing array of classic designs that reflect the Ivy League look. Suits have been fashioned to fit the man: unstructured sportscoats over-tailored jackets. Lightweight tropical wools, linens and silks are woven into suits which highlight narrower lapels.

The wide assortment of ties, shirts, sportscoats and loungewear at Gentlemen's Quarters promises a wealth of fashion for the well-dressed gentleman this season.

Sculpture for stunning gifts

RING AROUND THE ROSIE, an unglazed sculpture by artist Louise Buss, is included in an exhibit of her works on view through May 31 at the Highlands Gallery, located on Fern Canyon Road in Carmel Highlands, south of Carmel. The artist will attend a reception in her honor Sunday, May 25 from 1-5 p.m.; everyone is welcome to attend.

Entirely self-taught, Buss lives in Arizona. Her geometric sculpture has been displayed at galleries throughout the San Francisco Bay Area.

Guaranteed to please the tastes of discerning art lovers are abstract resin pieces by Ken Wiese; woodcarvings by gallery manager Jacque Colbert; copper electroplate works by Arizona artist Chris Christopherson; three dimensional fiber hangings by Sharon Wheat; Larry Fisher's bronzes of sea life; and Derrel Whitmyer's stainless steel and copper sculptures.

The lush garden setting at the Highlands Gallery enhances the pleasure of selecting lifetime gifts of fine art.

Summer classics at Saks

AS REFRESHING AS a summer breeze is this cool cotton and rayon blend sundress designed by Eve for Robert Janan discovered at Saks Fifth Avenue in Del Monte Shopping Center, Monterey. A white background accents vibrant navy and red poppies in a field of wildflowers. A scarf over the shoulders wards off cool evening breezes. Anne Klein's comfortably elegant sandals complete the ensemble.

Saks' summer fashions for women marks a return to classics that include crewneck, cotton blend pullovers by Marisa Christina in white with red or navy trim. Gloria Vanderbilt five-pocket cotton short shorts in kelly green or white mix or match with a waist-tie top fashioned of chintz in hot pink or kelly green.

Men are not forgotten here. The Saks men's store is featuring terry V-neck pullovers that are comfortable and stylish to wear with Calvin Klein painter's cloth jeans of natural color cotton.

Now... ice cream toppings at Godiva Chocolatier

WHAT BETTER WAY to cool hot summer days than with a delicious ice cream treat enhanced with toppings from Godiva Chocolatier in The Barnyard, Highway 1 and Rio Road, Carmel.

Rich and delicious, the butterscotch, dark and milk chocolate, raspberry and strawberry taste treats are made of 100 percent pure ingredients. Absolutely no preservatives or artificial ingredients are added. And there is more to Godiva Chocolatier toppings than ice cream. Try them on puddings, cheesecake and pound cake for memorable desserts.

Besides the 40 varieties of chocolates available at the elegant shop, taste treats just for summer have arrived. Non-chocolate hard candies are filled with cherry, lemon, raspberry, orange, kirsch and other delicious flavors. Also delicious are dried fruits and nuts cloaked in dark chocolate.

Delight guests with chocolate liqueur cups. Wrapped in gold, the 12 edible cups may be filled with liqueurs again and again until they are finally eaten.

Gifts, fashions imported from 50 nations

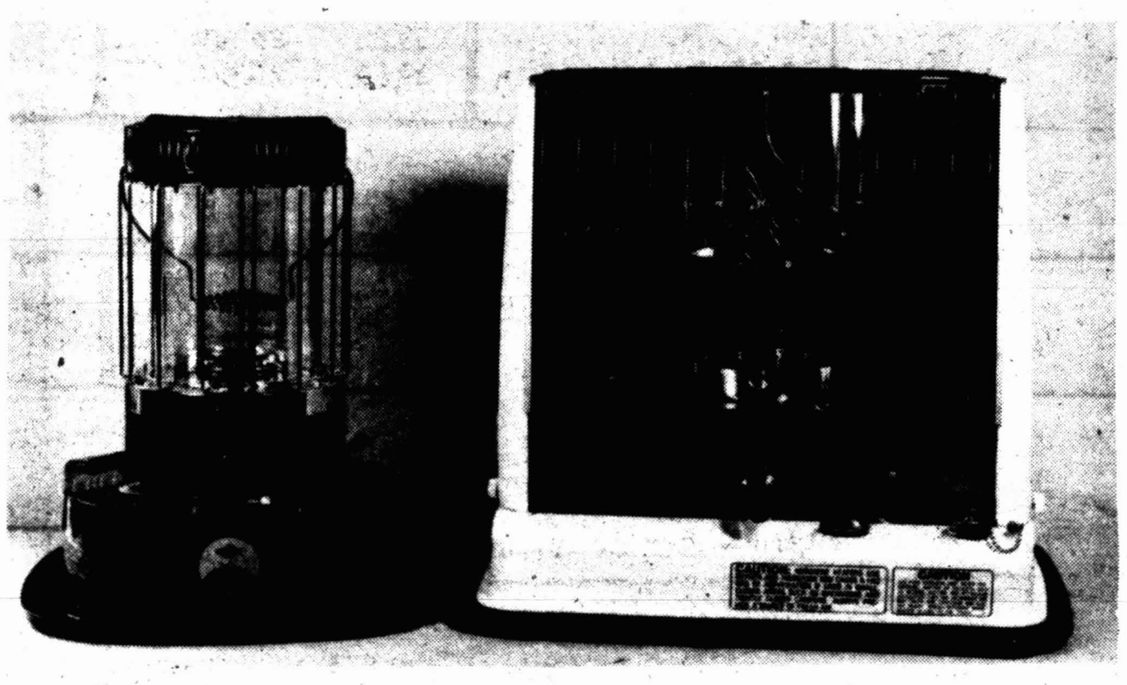

All dressed up for summer is Brown's Barn in Carmel Plaza, Ocean Avenue between Mission and Junipero, Carmel, where gifts and fashions have been imported from 50 nations.

Just south of Carmel, the Benedictine monks have crafted handpainted ceramic placques for newlyweds. Goblets by Big Sur artist Embree are included in her complete line of porcelain creations.

Only at Brown's Barn will you find soft wools woven into one-of-a-kind sweaters from Uruguay. Styles include classic cardigans, V-necks, pullovers and novelties.

Don't forget to browse through the hand-screened tops from Hawaii, loungewear from India, chamise jackets plus skirts, pants and jumpsuits from Canada.

Scarves by Chacharel offer scenes from fanciful paintings, while Liberty of London scarves are of the coolest cotton. Fisba-Stoffels' scarves offers a rainbow of colors in cotton, synthetics and silk.

Kerosene space heaters save $$$ on heat bills

THERE IS AN alternative to paying high heating bills and Alten's, 1219 Forest Ave., Pacific Grove, has the answer — kerosene space heaters.

Moonlighter (left) has developed a heater that can satisfy several functions. While camping, let it shed its light on your site; for cooking, use the top to heat water and stews. A larger heater is perfect for dining rooms, kitchens and living rooms. Both have a built-in safety mechanism that automatically shuts off the source of fuel when the lamps are tipped a mere 10 degrees. No matches are needed, since C-cell batteries are used to power an automatic switch.

Woodburning stoves which promise airtight burning have arrived from France and Norway and the United States. Bassfles recirculate gases across a hot fire to ensure that all the energy is released before being discharged. Accurately designed flues regulate the amount of heat that enters a room. The stoves burn continuously for up to 12 hours without refueling.

Peppercorn is haven for chefs of all ages

A HAVEN FOR at-home chefs is the Peppercorn in The Barnyard, Highway 1 and Rio Road, Carmel, a complete cookware shop offering utensils from around the world.

Portmarion designs cannisters and casserole dishes in its Botanic Garden and Birds of Britain patterns. A delightful way to serve eggs is in the exquisite Royal Worcester egg coddlers.

Culinary items ranging from pots and pans to specialty gourmet tools abound at the Peppercorn (no electrical goods are sold) including Cop-R-Chef cookware, Cuisinart cookware and the Peppercorn's own Kitchen Source Line from Germany.

In the mood for Chinese cuisine? Woks in an array of sizes, perfect for sizzling Szechwan or Mandarin dishes, will fill your needs.

Steak knives, chefs' knives and every imaginable size cutting tool are also displayed by Henckels and Chicago Cutlery, in addition to wooden spoons, whisks, spatulas, tongs and myriad culinary tools.

Consider leather, sportswear at Philip Rowe

SOMETHING IS IN the air at Philip Rowe Shoe Store, Ocean and San Carlos, Carmel. Sparkling new lines of leatherwear, active and casual sportswear as well as fashionable shoes have arrived in this one-of-a-kind boutique. From the Lynn James golf collection has come a classic cardigan sweater (right) worn over a polo shirt trimmed with a blue-and-white striped collar. Cool and comfortable cotton shorts display versatility for tennis, golf and walking. Lotus has designed a cowhide Western shirt for women (for men, too!) Handcut and glued before the seams are completed, the high-quality gameskin creation is designed at Mt. Shasta. For overnight and weekend excursions, Bugatti has created all-leather luggage.

Philip Rowe presents leather coats for men and women in classic as well as Western styling.

And, what cowhand would be complete without boots for men from Johnston and Murphy or for women by Lighthouse.

One-of-a-kind art created by laser beams

THE IMMENSE POWER of the laser beam can now be focused onto stone and glass to create art that is truly one-of-a-kind.

Laser technology has been applied to two art forms—sculpture and a new technique dubbed Holography—invented by artist/engineer Heinz Thummel of Carmel. The latest innovation developed by Thummel is found exclusively at Laser Creations at the American Tin Cannery Mall, 125 Ocean View Blvd., Pacific Grove.

The results are laser works that depict historical landmarks, sea life, whimsical unicorns and the ever-popular Lone Cypress. And custom orders can be easily filled for designs of family crests, commemorative pieces, pictures of pets and personalized desk sets.

A Hologram results from using a laser beam to create a three-dimensional image on a two-dimensional plane. Thummel and other artists at Laser Creations use the laser in the manner of a camera to create three-dimensional, multi-colored images on glass.

Easy-care hair styles at Glenn's

LIFESTYLES DETERMINE hairstyles that men and women prefer. At Glenn's Hair Design, located in The Mall on San Carlos between Fifth and Sixth, Carmel, precision cutting, coloring and perming are professionally achieved with the individual in mind.

Glenn says that he will always "do what the client wants." Just as executive men and women prefer more conservative styling that takes them from board rooms to dinner parties, so students desire longer, more imaginative, designs.

Today's active people, Glenn says, seek easy care styles that can be maintained several weeks without visits to a salon. Body perms add fullness to women's styles that just brush the shoulders, but the cut is always determined by the facial structure of each client.

A product exclusively carried at Glenn's Hair Design is Key West Aloe. Facial masks, cleansing lotions, sun screens, toners, night cream, lip balms, as well as perfumes and men's colognes are displayed.

Wildlife paintings are wild gifts

FINISHING TOUCHES ARE placed on a wildlife painting by Tony Rick who will display his works at the 12th annual Memorial Day Weekend World of Art Show, Friday through Monday, May 23-26 at the Del Monte Shopping Center, Munras Avenue off Highway 1, Monterey.

More than 50 professional artists will exhibit their work from 10 a.m.-9 p.m., Friday; 10 a.m.-6 p.m., Saturday; noon-5 p.m., Sunday; and 10 a.m.-6 p.m., Monday.

Among the multi-media work to be displayed are oils, watercolors, graphics, metal sculptures and pottery. Many of the artists will be present, creating more art to replace pieces sold.

Among the California artists returning to the show are Leslie Frazier, Merced; Dave Youngdahl, Kensington; Harriet Englund, Los Gatos; Diane O'Neill, San Jose; Betty Kelly, Alamo; Virginia Lucier, Kentfield; and Sharon Silveira, Benicia.

Western theme at Hudson's

FASHION AS individual as you are is promised with a visit to Hudson and Company in The Barnyard, Highway 1 and Rio Road, Carmel, where the theme is Western fashions as well as English and Western riding wear and equipment.

Salaminder creates one-of-a-kind appliqued skirts and vests. Mountain Rainbow is the scene appliqued on a dirndl wrap skirt. A classic white shirt by Nantucket is worn beneath a Salaminder vest accented with a horse applique.

Tailored in Kansas City, Mo., the Salaminder line is carefully handmade to guarantee quality craftsmanship. Appliques can be fashioned in many designs that include flowers, rodeos and eagles. All can be custom ordered.

Skirts are created in button down A-line, A-line and straight styles to flatter every figure. Denim skirts may have fluttering butterflies or loping horses that encircle the hemline.

Feminine fashions at Mayfair

ROMANTIC SUMMER NIGHTS are in store for women who wear Miss Ashlee designs found at Mayfair Boutique in Carmel Plaza, Ocean Avenue between Mission and Junipero, Carmel. A picture of femininity is created by a white dotted Swiss dress accented with an embroidered lace collar and cuffs. Delicate baby tucks across the bodice complete the image.

Miss Ashlee also designs Georgette dresses with pretty lace over swirling pleats in a silklike fabric, perfect for candlelit dinners or a romantic wedding.

The Classic tailoring of slim-pleated or flat panel trousers and skirts means blazers are a must to complete the traditional ensemble. At Mayfair Boutique beautiful poplin materials have been tailored into solid red and white jackets. A choice of unconstructed blazers or the more structured look is available.

The ethnic look has arrived in the form of handloomed Moroccan separates — vests, skirts and blouses as well as flowing caftans for elegant hostesses.

Gift heaven at David

DAVID IS A MOST eclectic shop on the corner of Ocean Avenue and Dolores Street, Carmel, where merchandise is so carefully chosen you'll be torn between keeping it for yourself or giving it as gifts. Driftwood and ceramic Little People by Suzanne Sable have been fashioned from natural driftwood with individual heads and hands of high-fired ceramic. Crafted in Carmel, each one stands from 4" to 10" high.

Here under one roof, but on three levels, discover fine contemporary jewelry made locally by J. Favela who uses only precious stones exquisitely displayed upon gold settings.

As true to art as they are utilitarian are the Neanderthal fur chairs, couches and animals made of driftwood and sheepskin.

Talented California artists are well represented at David. Whimsical birds and beasts are created in ceramic and metal as well as contemporary glass.

Other finds in this spacious gallery-giftshop are the phenomenal color photographs of Larry Secrist.

Give smashing tennis wear

SMASHING TENNIS wear has arrived at Hide Street, located on Ocean Avenue between Dolores and San Carlos, Carmel, new headquarters for athletes who strive for a winning match on and off the courts.

An eye-catching tennis dress comes from Paja of California in classic tennis white with teal green borders. Le Sacco tennis bags will tote racquets, balls and accessories to the courts and may double as a bag for an overnight excursion.

At Hide Street women will want to slip into Geoffrey Beene's designer tops and slicker jackets that are as chic with jeans as they are with shorts. Ruth Robbins designs fashionable white tennis dresses boldly accented with a magenta applique.

Men will look dashing in tenniswear by Paul Sullivan, West I, and La Font Tennis, an exclusive Italian line that boasts stunning designs.

Cool summer fashion ideas

INTERNATIONAL FASHION awaits summer shoppers at Boutique Antoinette in the Doubletree Mall, adjacent to Custom House Plaza, Monterey, here the warmer months are greeted by cool natural fabrics.

La Perla of Italy has designed a sheer cotton sundress with a dramatic swirling skirt. Warm vertical stripes in brown, mustard and taupe are accented by purple, orange and green. Perfect footwear for summer strolls are Sunstreakers by Monique, created with a clear plastic sole and ankle strings. Summer sun can be thwarted with a Christina N.Y.C. broad-brimmed straw hat.

As warm as shimmering summer days are natural pastels woven into a two-piece ensemble by Saint Claire. Or slip into a Pancaldi silk blouse in pastel tones designed with short or long sleeves.

From France, straight leg and baggy pants have arrived by New Man. Comfrotable to kick around in, the elastic waist baggies come in lavender, hot pink and berry shades.

Couroc trays popular gift

GREAT SUMMER GIFT ideas are found at the Second Look, 510 Broadway, Seaside, where seconds and discontinued items from the famous Couroc collection of inlaid resin trays are shown.

A California poppy design adorns trays (above) of every shape and size as well as candy dishes and ice buckets perfect for entertaining or gifts for newlyweds.

Each tray is made of a phenolic resin compound which is then individually hand inlaid with natural wood and brass and even seashells before it is processed through a heavy press at 300 degrees and under 50 tons of pressure to assure quality and durability.

Couroc designs have been made on the Monterey Peninsula for the past 20 years. The name derives from the first three letters of inventor Courvoisier's name and the word "rock" because of the trays' granite quality.

Give him Ultrasuede

ELEGANCE FOR HIM is a fashion byword at Dick Bruhn's men's store, lcoated on the corner of Ocean and San Carlos, Carmel, where men will discover a return to handsome, classic tailoring.

An Ultrasuede sportscoat by Halston (above), perfect for summer, is also a smash year round in beige, brown, navy, ecru, maroon, light blue and grey.

Talbott Ties uses pure silk for neckties that accent the contemporary fit of a poly/cotton blend shirt by Damon for wash-and-wear practicality.

Finely tailored suits by Yves St. Laurent promise a traditional cut with a splash of the 1980s in each jacket and slack. Summerweight sportscoats of wool and silk blends are a handsome addition to every wardrobe as are the nubby textured 100 percent silk jackets in summer tans, navy and light yellow.

Any ensemble from the Dick Bruhn's summer collection guarantees that the lady in your life will keep her eye on you.

Coffee, teas gift wrapped, shipped anywhere

COLLECTIBLES dating from 1840-1940 as well as charming gifts of today are displayed at McNaney's Mercantile in The Barnyard, Highway 1 and Rio Road, Carmel.

Potholders become kitchen delightful when fashioned with a sly cat face or quilted with a butterfly design. These original kitchen aids are by Danielle who also sews wine caddies, table runners, tea cozies and place mats.

A clothespin doll rests before a blue-and-white salt glaze pitcher with a pewter top; a Peter Hopkins plate circa 1841 is edged in a rose pattern; mug collectors will adore sipping from a cup dating to Victorian times; a very collectible coffee grinder and food processor more than 100 years old is American made.

Shoppers will be lured into McNaney's by the aromatic aroma of coffee and tea blends that include Royal Kona and Dutch Chocolate. Choose from 20 teas and 12 coffees that will be ground to order, gift wrapped and mailed anywhere.

Holly Berry tunes up for Christmas—now

IT'S BEGINNING to look a lot like Christmas at the Holly Berry in The Barnyard, Highway 1 and Rio Road, Carmel, where handmade ornaments are created by owner Joan Morris and her customers. Many who visit the shop are so charmed by her selection of ornaments that they submit their own designs. This has resulted in a display of works by craftspeople from throughout the United States.

A whimsical mouse (above) plays peekaboo while snugly tucked inside a stocking; Matilda is the name given to an angel with lace wings; every child will delight in the miniature wagon that dangles from a Christmas tree.

Santa may be seen relaxing before the holiday season in a three-story doll house. As Santa sleeps downstairs, the elves can be seen busily working on the second floor while little mice enjoy a party.

A special corner has decorations for miniature Christmas trees that include tiny gingerbread boys, garlands and sparkling handpainted ornaments.

Kids of all ages love Fischertechnik toys

EVERY CHILD AND young adults, too, will become fans of the Fischertechnik creative building toys displayed at The Wooden Horse, on Dolores between Ocean and Seventh, Carmel. Snow ploughs, trucks and trailers, a bulldozer, pick-up truck, tower cranes and race cars are only a few of the vehicles and machines that can be constructed, complete with moving parts and electro-motors, by using the durable nylon erector pieces. All the turning and moving increases the fun of playing with Fischertechnik even more. Lively toys that consist of colorful building blocks for children age 3-6 or the model building series as well as electromechanix and electronics for older children are available.

The proprietors of The Wooden Horse say that if play is the work of the child and toys are his tool, then toys must be selected to enhance his important world.

New Nikon 'E' at Carmel Camera Center

AMATEUR SHUTTERBUGS who prefer to point and click, as well as professionals who demand the finest equipment, will make the Carmel Camera Center at San Carlos and Fifth, Carmel, headquarters for photography needs.

The new economy priced Nikon E is one of nearly 50 35mm cameras displayed. Distant horizons will come into focus through Zeiss binoculars, one of the world's best glasses, that are accompanied by a lifetime guarantee. All major brands of processing papers are offered at the Camera Center, including Kodak, Agfa, Ilford and Oriental; Pocket Dust-Off will keep lenses and negatives dust free, one product included in a full line of darkroom accessories.

Durability and quality are wrapped into one package in the form of Weathermatica-A which boasts automatic exposure with flash and waterproof casing that protects the camera from water, snow, and sand; the Pentax 110 is an instamatic with interchangeable lenses and autowinder.

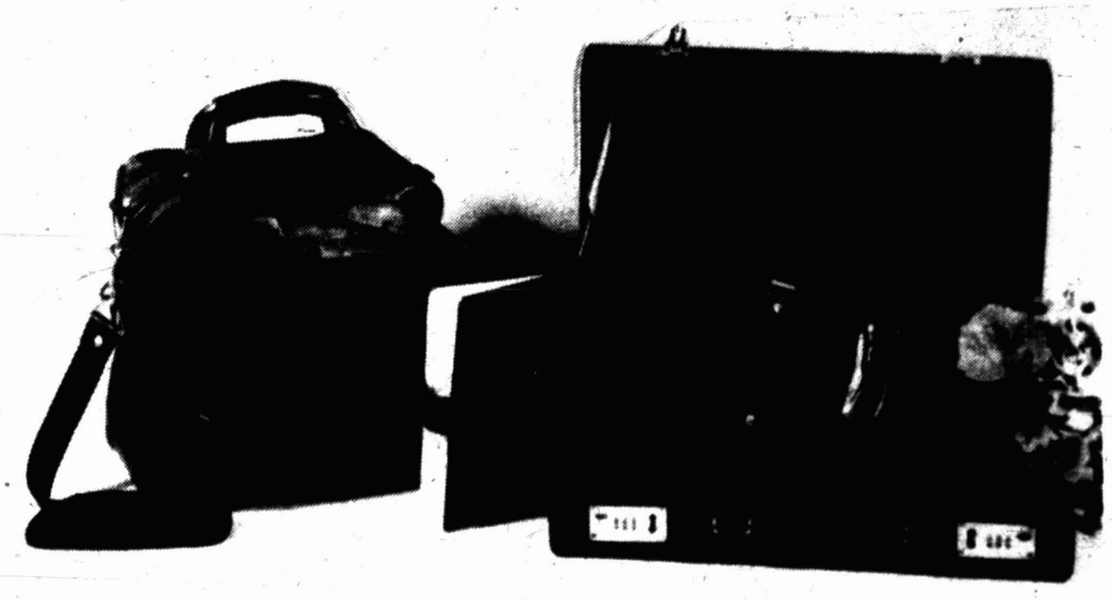

Wines, spirits for gifts and entertaining

HOSTESSES WILL BE happy to note that Carmel Rancho Liquors has a selection of the finest spirits, wines and gift packages for their entertaining needs, whether the occasion is a wedding reception or an intimate dinner party.

Among the palate-pleasing wines that have been recently added to Carmel Rancho's collection are Clas du Val, Callaway, Mark West Chappellet (whose '75 Cabernet Sauvignon placed third in a recent Paris tasting), Dry Creek and Joseph Phelps.

The Mark West '78 Russian River Gewurtraminer is a lovely, rich wine with balanced fresh flavors true to the grape and considered an excellent choice to be sipped with fruit and cheese.

Party needs are easily filled with the complete selection of mixers and snacks. In the spirit of summer, Carmel Rancho Liquors will even provide a loan of glasses, punch bowls and ice for celebrations at no charge.

Gifts for people on the go at Village Traveler

IF IMAGES OF SUMMER in Paris are dancing through your head, then a trip to the Village Traveler in Carmel Plaza, Ocean Avenue between Mission and Junipero, Carmel, will be the first highlight of the excursion. Simone creates all-leather luggage in russet, the designer's signature color. Not only luxurious, outside, the bags are lushly lined with velour suede. Simone offers a shoulder sling garment bag, weekender plus a clutch bag, briefcase and notebook complete with legal size pad and myriad compartments.

The Village Traveler also displays lightweight and durable Goar quilted rip-stop nylon bags plus complete lines of Hartmann and Bugatti luggage.

Shoes here have the traveler in mind as well. A highlight is the Rockport line of casual, crepe-soled shoes that are perfect for the person who travels mostly on his (or her) feet or walks a good deal on our own Monterey Peninsula.

Dekkers also promise foot comfort for weary travelers.

Romance at Peck & Peck

ROMANCE HAS RETURNED to Peck and Peck, located in Carmel Plaza, Ocean Avenue between Mission and Junipero, Carmel. Samuel Blue has designed a soft swirling Georgette dress (above) with accordion pleats and gathered cap sleeves. A lace collar accents a picture of perfect femininity.

Wonderful linen suits blended with synthetics to add shape and longevity to the fabric are created by Evan-Picone. John Meyer and J.H. weave cool seersucker suits.

Summertime is a bright and bold season that may be accented by a Liz Claiborne ensemble in red, green or blue jerseys. A hint of gathering is found in the elastic waist skirt that has a matching tube or spaghetti top and jacket.

Eye-catching poolside dazzlers are the one-piece maillot swimsuits that accent thighs in bright fashion colors, though the word is that black is back.

Easy living at Easy Street

SUMMERTIME AND livin' is easy when wearing casual designs from Easy Street in Carmel Plaza, Ocean Avenue between Mission and Junipero, Carmel. For a stroll along the white sands of Carmel Beach or an evening baseball game, don a cotton poplin windbreaker (above) in a wear-with-all tan accented with rust colored lining by Robert Lewis. Cooley comfortable is the all-cotton terry short-sleeved shirt by Ron Chereskin.

The mood is casual and comfortable in natural-toned pullover sweaters in V and crew necks or cardigans made of 100 percent cotton also found at Easy Street. To catch a lady's eye wear one of Easy Street's plaid sport shirts, sure to perk up your wardrobe in brilliant multi-color shades. Or brighten up the day in a Davil short-sleeved Hawaiian bowling shirt.

And perfect with every shirt, jacket or sweater offered are Pierre Cardin jeans in a straight leg, five-pocket Western cut.

Designs from all over the globe

A FASHION SPELL is woven at The Clothing Store, 125 Central Ave., Pacific Grove, with designs from every corner of the globe.

A hand-batiked rayon kimono (above) has arrived from Indonesia in an array of colors. Worn over a 100 percent stretch cotton pant in royal blue or jade, the kimono is displayed as a work of art.

Also at The Clothing Store are individually crafted tops, skirts and dresses accented with intricate embroidery.

From Greece, a cotton gauze has been tailored into halters, tunics, and blouses all accented by crochet work.

A tropical vacation adventure is promised in bold Hawaiian prints that have been transformed into tube and sundresses by exotic Indian designers.

And, Danskin leotards and tights in a wide variety of designs and colors take their wearers from the beach to the dance floor.

Mood is casual at Back Pocket

FASHIONS BY EUROCRAFT promise to create a stir this summer. At the Back Pocket, tucked away on Mission, south of Ocean, Carmel, Eurocraft for Members Only has tailored a striking silk blend sportscoat. A Loren shirt is accented by a pure wool knit tie by Yves St. Laurent. Lightweight wool slacks are by Tattersall.

The mood is casual at the Back Pocket where bright colors and tropical designs are the lively look from Ocean Pacific. Dressier cuts come from Calvin Klein and Bill Blass.

Young men's suits tailored in natural fabrics — cotton and wool — convey the popular nubbby look in tweeds and heather.

Angel Flight tailors summer brights into go-everywhere colors in both summerweight wools and cotton/polyester blends.

Jeans have taken a step towards high fashion in designs by Bill Blass, Calvin Klein and, of course, Levis.

Classic, tailored look for summer

SPORTSWEAR BY VINTAGE paints a classic fashion picture for M'Lady Bruhn, located at San Carlos and Ocean, Carmel. Red is the color of a nubby cotton blend blazer of classic proportions. Light wool gabardine has been tailored into a single-pleated trouser for summer in a matching shade. Stuart Lang designs a romantic lace collar blouse to complete the ensemble.

As vibrant as the season are Irka silks in colorful shades of turquoise, fuchsia and lavender. Trousers are created with a double pleat and a straight leg. Blouses are also elegantly tailored with short sleeves and tantalizing V-necks.

Very tailored yet stunning is the Norman Todd collection of women's shirts and trousers. Rayon is fashioned into straight leg pants paired with tailored silk tunics to be worn tucked in or belted.

Stanley Blacker creates classic blazers in unparalleled fabrics for summer and every other season.

Natural fibers in spotlight

TOWNSENDS IN The Barnyard, Highway 1 and Rio Road, Carmel, is a showcase for classically casual and formal Townsend creations.

Virginia Reap of California has designed a cotton Sahara jacket in a stunning batik for Townsends. Its black background hosts one-of-kind wheat colors in bamboo designs.

Quality without compromise is the hallmark of Townsends. Each garment is made of natural fibers that include cottons and handwoven South American wools, while batiks come from Africa and silks from Thailand.

In addition to the Sahara jacket, Katherine Hepburn coats recall the three-quarter length that was so popular during the golden era of movies. Caftans flow softly to the floor in elegant prints that are appropriate worn around the pool or while entertaining guests.

Sweaters-plus at Connexion

THERE'S MORE to summer fashion than sweaters at the Sweater Connexion in The Barnyard, Highway 1 and Rio Road, Carmel, where sportswear has a classic European look.

Shades of gray are the subtle tones woven into a sweater that blends wool, mohair, rayon and a lively metallic fiber. A burgundy silk blouse by Levante provides a splendid contrast.

Chinese designer Jennei has been inspired by the fashion moguls of France and Italy. Each carefully tailored silk blouse has a trim French cut as do her sweaters, jackets, slacks and skirts.

Bold Italian prints are created from rayon for an airy summer mood. A black background is the foil for the floral designs of a swirling Greek skirt.

A mandarin collar is sported on one Jennei creation for the look of the Orient.

Women who demand versatility in their wardrobe will desire a classic silk dress with a leg-lengthening slit that is both a striking daytime dress or stunning evening ensemble.

Silk separates make gift news

AT NINA B's in Carmel Plaza, Ocean Avenue between Mission and Junipero, Carmel, silk separates take fashionable women through day and evening. Slip a fuchsia-tone silk cardigan by Sport Limited worn over a natural tank top also made of silk. A fuchsia bow ties at the neck. A matching purple straw hat with a colorful flower trim completes the ensemble.

The preppie look has left campuses and found its way to Nina B in sportswear that includes bright print tops, pleated pants, handsome blazers and shirts.

Classically tailored shirts are trimmed with feminine lace collars; camisoles by First Glance are accented with delicate embroidery.

A summer wardrobe is not complete without terry tops and one-piece short suits in vibrant colors. As good-looking on the beach as on the streets are the terry blazers in natural, blue, gold, red, and green.

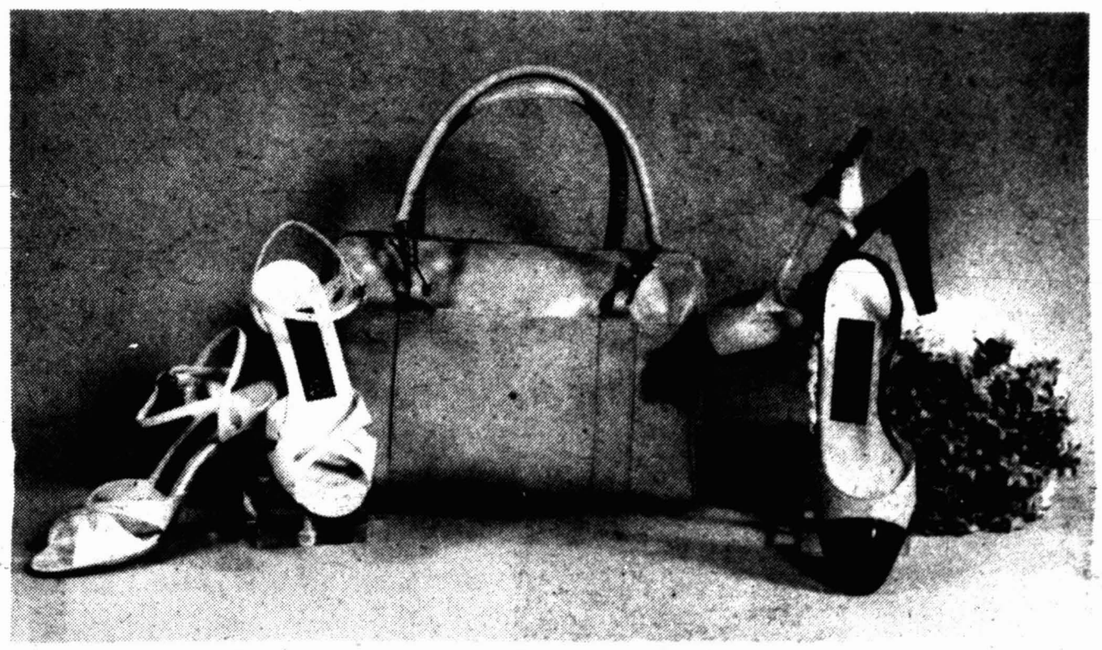

Timelessly elegant footwear at Cardinale

ENJOY THE COMFORT of walking shoes found at Cardinale's Fine Shoes in Carmel Plaza, on Ocean Avenue between Mission and Junipero, Carmel, where the latest styles are timelessly elegant.

The finest leathers are used to create Mikelos spectator shoes with stacked heels (left). The two-toned pump comes in white with navy toes and heels, or camel with a white center. Rosina Ferragamo offers tailored stylings in her tie shoe (right) accented with leather fringes across the toe. A leather and suede weave creates a checkerboard effect. And Anne Klein accompanies you through the day with a smart briefcase style clutch in burgundy shades.

Shoes by Julianelli this summer are city sandals. As heels become lower, Julianelli styles become slimmer and more feminine to complement the return to softer fashion lines.

For a dressy, tailored shoe collection, Julianelli creates open-toe sandals with closed backs in soft pastels or rich, deeper hues in both mesh and solid leathers.

Gifts a step ahead in style and comfort

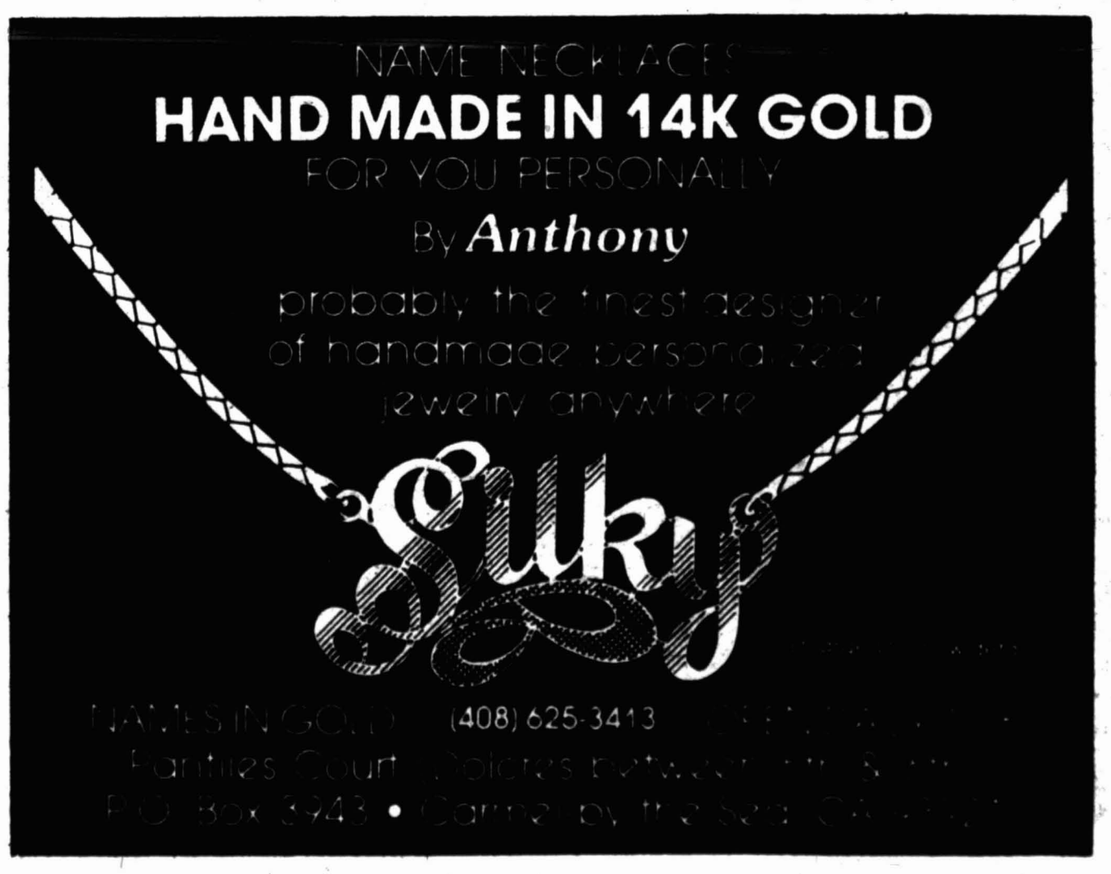

FOR WOMEN WHO prefer to be one step ahead in style and comfort, the summer walking shoe collections at the Village Shoe Tree, Ocean Avenue between Dolores and San Carlos, Carmel, promises versatility and fashion. "Famous" is the name designer Andrew Geller has given his classic sling pump (right) that is sure to gain eclat with every daytime ensemble. Geller has dubbed the city sandals "Rama" and creates them from soft calfskin to take their wearer from a luncheon and shopping spree to casual evening affairs. Complement the footwear with all-leather handbags by Margolin.

The Village Shoe Tree displays crepe-soled walking shoes by Sioux and dressy pumps and sandals by Carlos Sanchez.

Guidaveni translated from Italian into English means driving shoe and that is just what Bernardo has created. A special rubber backing on the heel protects it from scuffing while on the accelerator.

With an eye on Italian fashions, Town and Country now designs an extensive line of contemporary and traditional walking shoes.
